THE JOURNAL.

H. E. SUNN, Editor
W. HARPER, Business Manager.

NEW BERNE, N. C., NOV. 29, 1887.
Entered at the Post Office at New Berne, N. C. as second-class matter.

JOHANN MOST, the New York Anarchist, is again indicted and in prison. These people should be taught that while America is an asylum for the oppressed it is not a healthy place for law breakers.

The surplus revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1887 was $103,471,097. It is estimated that before Congress can provide any measure of relief against this dangerous hoarding up of the people's money it will run up to one hundred and forty millions. The News and Observer takes ground for the distribution of this large surplus to the States according to population. This is a good solution of the problem, what to do with it, and it should be done as soon as Congress convenes and the collection of a surplus should be stopped forthwith.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND is not a dull politician by any means. He knows where to put in the links that do the most good. He wrote a letter which, it is said, secured success to the Democratic ticket in New York. Now he appoints George L. Rives assistant Secretary of State and it turns out that Rives was a warm supporter of De Lancy Nicoll, the bolting Democratic candidate against Col. Fellows for District Attorney. With the assistance of Governor Hill who is continually throwing fire brands in the Republican camp, the President will be able to keep New York in the Democratic column next year, while North Carolina will not make any serious kick on account of Rives getting the place that was wanted for General Cox.

THE RESULT OF HASTY LEGISLATION.

"Our Supreme Court is overworked," has been the cry for several years, and the fact became so apparent that the last General Assembly passed an act, almost without opposition, submitting an amendment to the constitution, to be voted on in the next election, increasing the number of associate justices from two to four.

This constantly increasing work for the Supreme Court doubtless arises, much of it, from hasty legislation, and the additional deplorable fact that there are too many incompetent legislators. The courts are continually called upon to construe laws that are rushed through the General Assembly. The work of framing these is entrusted to committees, and many measures are passed simply upon the recommendation of the committee which have them in charge. In this way many members of the General Assembly vote for bills that they know nothing about, and in doing this they are only enting work for the Supreme Court and providing fees for the lawyers. To be sure we do not begrudge the lawyer who is devoted to his profession and labors to preserve the dignity of the same, earns all the money he gets out of it. But such legislation is costing the people much money that might be saved, and giving the courts much work that might otherwise be avoided.

We find evidence of this hasty and unnecessary legislation in the machinery act for the levy and collection of taxes passed by the last General Assembly which is already before the courts. This act changes the remedy for excessive taxation from a summary procedure to bringing an action for recovery after the tax has been paid. We question if a dozen members of the General Assembly, outside the committee that formulated and drew up the machinery act, knew that this section was embodied in it. Where is the necessity for such a law? If a taxpayer can sue the county and recover an excessive tax, why make him pay it? It is true there are instances where the justice and commissioners of a county feel the necessity of exceeding the constitutional limit in the levy of taxes in order to meet the current expenses of the county, and it is also true that there are always some citizens who, being actuated by a desire to hamper the county officials rather than reduce expenses, is ready to apply for an injunction. But the county officials have a remedy against all this. If a levy within the constitution is not sufficient the General Assembly can grant them the power to levy a special tax, or a more sensible way, as Judge Evans expresses it, is to reduce expenses.

The important business of a session and a great expense. They are a luxury that the people cannot afford to indulge in. The people ought to have protection against them.

THE BAPTISTS OF NORTH CAROLINA GOVERN IN DERHAM.

Edward B. Richardson, conductor of devotional exercises, read the 15th chapter of Romans, and led in prayer. Minutes of Friday's session were read and approved.

Rev. G. W. Thompson, one of the Trustees of Wake Forest College, who has been a trustee ever since the first teacher of Matthew Yates, was introduced and addressed the Convention.

On motion the report of the committee on the time of meeting was called and laid on the table. G. W. Green offered the following, which was adopted by a rising vote.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Convention all the Baptists of North Carolina earnestly desire that Matthew T. Yates should pay an extended visit to his native land, rest from his labors and see his brethren once more before he finishes his work.

Elder Cate read the following report on Orphanage which was adopted.

REPORT ON ORPHANAGE.

The Orphanage at Thomasville is firmly established; its success vindicates the wisdom of its founders and supporters; it has done more good work; it is doing a good work; it will continue to do a good work.

There are seventy six children at the Orphanage now, and others will come. These children must be tended, taught, fed and clothed. To do these things requires money. Our brethren have this money; they can give this money; they ought to give this money; they will give this money.

To make an argument to convince this Convention that these orphan children ought to be tenderly cared for, and trained for usefulness, would be to outrage your Christian instincts, and this committee has no ambition to incur your displeasure by any such performance.

We commend to your attention and ask you to heartily support Charity and Children, our Orphanage paper.

Dr. A. E. Dickinson Richmond, delivered a message from Mr. J. P. Pritchard, of Chase City, Va., brother of Rev. T. H. Pritchard, relating to the Baptist Church at that place, and indirectly asking for aid. The ladies of the Baptist Aid Society, at the adjournment of the Convention, 1 o'clock, met in the left ante-room of the church to discuss Mission. $531 were raised to buy a printing press for Charity and Children, a paper published at the Thomasville Orphanage.

The Convention adjourned to meet at 7 o'clock p. m. to the North Carolina Historical Society.

THE BRYAN HOUSE.
The convention raised $1,037.55 yesterday for Missionary Bryan's house in China.

Jones County Items.

The Trent is rising, making the timber men glad.

Seed cotton at Trenton on Saturday for three and up to 3.25. Eggs 15 cents cash. Corn 50 cents per bushel. Fodder from 60 to 65 and in demand.

Trade was lively at Trenton during the past week. Farmers are bringing to their products and our merchants are paying them very fair prices. While competition among our merchants this fall has drawn trade which has been done at other places, we are glad to see this and sincerely hope it may keep growing.

Several rafts of logs we learn will be started for New Berne during the present week on the Trent river. We are having a real timber boom all along the Trent. Timber carriages are in great demand, several are having new ones made, while others are content to hire, and the whole talk is timber. Some are cutting, others are hauling, which is giving considerable employment to all who desire it.

We need at Trenton a live, energetic man, who is willing to invest his capital in a good saw mill; we don't mean a pecuniary establishment, but one that could saw, plane and manufacture our timber all of the different kinds which could be shipped down our river at all seasons of the year. We are of the opinion that right here in our county is a fine opening for a live, energetic saw mill man with capital to start a good business, as timber is plentiful of the very best kind which is now awaiting for capital to develop it and make it pay. Now who will be the lucky man to start the enterprise and reap the profits?

As the new year draws near we hear of many who will change their homes for new ones, believing that by moving that they may eventually better their condition. We don't believe in moving as we never have tried it but once in twelve years, then we found it very expensive. Just let a one horse farmer start to move if he desires, to find out how much property he possesses. Why he may suppose that he has but little and can carry it all in a short time, but how deceived he will be. We think the better way for all who have to rent lands is to look well before you rent—once settled, stay right there as long as you possibly can and make the best of it you can. We should remember the old adage "that three moves are equal to a fire." Now if this be true have not many of our renters incurred heavy losses by their many moves, some moving several times from and then back again to the same place.
