The Superior Court.

Court convened Tuesday morning at 9:80 o'clock.

Work on the State docket was resumed and pushed with vigor. Many cases of minor importance were disposed of, among them several magistrates of the county who had failed to make returns. A nol pros. was entered in all those who were present and had not finally disposed of any cases during the time covered by the indictments. Capieses were ordered to be issued for those who were not present, provided they did not come in within thirty days and give bond for their appearance at the next term of the court. Among the cases tried by jury were the following: Ed. Henderson for an affray; not guilty. Israel Williams, col., A. & B. The defendant pleaded his own case, and it was generally conceded that he did not have a fool for a client, though the jury ing. found him guilty of the charge. Judgment was suspended upon payment of

The Game, Fish and Oyster Fair. The Craven County Gun Club held a neeting on Monday evening and appointed a committee to solicit donations for the Fair to be held about the last of January. The holding of the Fair de-Oysters are plentiful and fut and pends entirely upon the success of this committee. The thing has been carefully canvassed and the cost estimated. If the citizens of New Berne will contribute the sum of three hundred dollars to pay incidental expenses the Fair will be held and made a success. Commissioner Patrick will secure very low rates of travel for Northern people to floations for a bridge across Neuse river visit the Fair. The Game, Fish and Oyster Fair. EDITOR JOURNAL: - I am pleased to see that you are urging the people of our city to aid in the holding of a "Game, Fish and Oyster Fair. The advantage to be derived by the holding of such a tions at Hotel Albert are equal to that of any in hotel in Florida; they will also see that the gunning and fishing will surpass that of any section in the Union. Few people even in our own State are aware that we have bear, deer, turkeys, geese, duck partridge, and many other varieties of birds. The Northern visitors who visitour Fair will come again annually and be a source of revenue to our people. Second, the exhibition of our fish and oysters will be of advantage to that industry. It will advertise to our State and to outside people that we have them in excellent variety and superior quality, and dealers will receive more orders and our fish will command a higher price. Third, if we have three thousand people to visit our Fair they will spend on an average of five dollars each which will be a total of fifteen thousand dollars left by them in the city. This amount of money is worth having; this money will aid us in paying taxes and otherwise be of advantage. A tig advantage will come to us in the way of an advantage it could be settlers and manufacturers.

a few words to my race.

To my beloved race:

While I stand watching the funeral procession of my old schoolmate, Frank Pool, my mind is wandering over one question, What would we do if it wasn's for our white friends? Vary little. And when I hear any leading member of my race, or one representing himself as a leader, trying to draw the color line it makes my blood run cold to think that they are so ignorant. May God grant that their spirit in that light may take an everiasting flight and learn us to think twice before speaking once. Those who witnessed the procession last Sunday can plainly see that the whites who witnessed the procession last Sm-day can plainly see that the whites respect the blacks that respect them-selves. The farmer is often uncertain what to do with cotton stalks, corn stalks, weeds and grass that are on the field, and which are in his way. It is more difficult to plow land that is covered with the refuse of a previous crop, and it is so much easier to burn it than to plow it under, that many farmers apply the torch, and destroy the life of their way to visit relations in Wilson. article on the subject was written by T. B. Baldwin, of Texas, and published in the American Rural Home. He says

'I was traveling in Texas and stopped at night with a farmer of considerable intelligence and some means. I asked him why he burned his corn stalks. He replied I burn them in order to get them out of my way. My land is so rich and the soil so deep that it does not need the assistance of vegetable matter Building and Lean Association: to aid in making a crop. I replied that just as fertile lands as his had sucenmbed to such treatment in Indiana and Illinois, and that it was only a question of time when his own fertile scres would weaken under such treatment.

"Why," said he, "In the old States they almost cultivate their crops with fire. They begin by first cutting down and burning up everything that will burn, and every year afterward they burn whatever stalks and grass that may be found upon the ground at planting time.

"Yes, I answered, and in those States where they once made a bale of cotton to the acre, this and similar depleting practices have so damaged the soil that it now requires from two to four scree to make a bale of cotton.

"He soon saw the truth of my ar gument, and the following morning be sold me that he had thought much and seriously about what I termed his suicidal practice, and that he had determined to banish fire from his fields. "There are thousands of farmers

North and South, whom I would be glad to convert from this wasteful practice of burning the vegetable mat-ter on their farms. Do not burn anything, get a stalk cotton and a disc harrow, and after putting the stalks, weeds and grass in proper shape for plowing under, let your land have the full benefit of every particle. I have seen acres of excellent coat grass burned which if turned under would have been worth hundreds of dollars to the next crop. Instead of burning off anything, haul on more grass and leaves and turn it all under. A recent writer says the torch has wrought more ruin to farm lands in the South than all other causes. Many grain growers burn their wheat and rice straw. Instead of planting and plowing under peas, rye, grass, &c., they use the torch to destroy the refuse from the previous crop. Almost as well burn up the corn and wheat with it.

All farmers are not so short sighted Many are now seeking to increase the
