ATLANTA voted on Prohibition last Friday and "license" carried the day by over one thousand majority. The contest was a bitter one and a large vote was polled.

The Wilmington Messenger of Sunday last has a very caustic and pointed editorial on the critics of the Democratic State Executive Committee.

CONGRESS will convene on Monday next. The country needs relief from excessive taxation. The Senate branch of the Congress is Republican by a bare majority, the House is Democratic by twelve or fifteen majority. A square issue should be made on the tax reduction and the responsibility fixed upon those who stand in the way. The easiest way out of the difficulty is to abolish the internal revenue taxes and fix the tariff on a revenue basis.

La Grange Items.
Rev. Mr. Swain and Benj. F. Boston are away attending the State Conference of the M. P. Church.

The crops are about housed, and the shortage can now be accurately told, at least one-fourth short in the cotton crop.

A number of visitors have been in our place recently. We wish we could give names, &c., but cannot, however much we desire it.

Rev. Mr. Rose left for the M. E. State Conference at Fayetteville, Monday. It is the wish of the congregations served by Mr. Rose and Mr. Swain that they be returned the next year.

J. W. S. Hardy and Helen Scott were married in the M. E. Church in this place last Wednesday night, Rev. Mr. Rose officiating. There was a large attendance to witness the ceremony. May sunshine and not shadow, cross their pathway.

A union thanksgiving service was given at the Methodist Church in our town last Thursday. Rev. Mr. Hines preached the thanksgiving sermon. Business was suspended during the day and the attendance at church was large. Eleven dollars was collected for the Oxford Orphan Asylum.

The "Rainbow Party" given by the ladies of the M. P. Church, and their friends in this place last Thursday night was a complete success. This party was given in the interest of the M. P. Church in our town, and we feel justified in extending congratulations to the ladies of this church.

The opening of the new church took place here last Sunday. Rev. Mr. Hines, of Chapel Hill, preached an excellent sermon from Isaiah 14: 20. Dr. Hame is the first pulpit orator of the church. The church has been enlarged, remodeled and otherwise improved and is a thing of beauty. The seating capacity is much increased and convenience and comfort greatly improved. The congregation on Sunday was beyond counting capacity, and the aisles were filled to their fullest. After a happy and successful service, the congregation adjourned to the refreshment table. We think the response was made, either by the congregation or the church.

Sunday School mass meeting was held in the afternoon in the church and addressed by Mr. Hame. The address was the right thing in the right place. Services at night closed for that day. We would be glad to give a more extended notice. The Baptist brethren have shown themselves up to the times in this enlarging and beautifying their place of worship. Our town is one of churches and schools. The improvements that have taken place in five years, in these two particulars, are almost beyond belief. We would like to say all we know about these matters but some would say it was a puff. They are well known among us and are being understood abroad.

Jones County Items.
Several of our farmers have slaughtered their hogs. We suppose these early killings are a sure indication of a short corn crop.

Coon and possum hunting is the rage now and coon dogs are in demand. If any one desires to drive a trade let him come up and say that that dog is a good one.

We have not any deaths, marriages or accidents that we have heard of in our county during the past week. We believe the general health of the county is at the present time very good.

The cotton of our county is nearly all picked out and the most of it ginned and sold and the money spent except a few old well-to-do farmers who are waiting for the speculators to put a boom on it then they will ship and sell theirs.

We see advertised in some of the newspapers good watches for less than one dollar and yet we have right here some men who are simple enough to answer these advertisements by sending them this little sum in a registered package with an order for a watch. Well, I have just had the pleasure of examining one of them and we would consider them very dear bargains at any price.

Major Hawkins has gathered and weighed the cotton on the stalk which I called attention to in the JOURNAL a few weeks since with 410 bolls on it, which he says made 94 pounds of good seed cotton and that there yet remains 40 bolls on it that has not opened. We would like to hear if any other farmer in our section had a stalk to equal it.

The fruit tree agent was at Trenton on Saturday last delivering trees. We hope that our farmers will in the future recollect that it requires something more than the purchasing of trees to make an orchard. Careless, neglectful farmers need not expect to have fruit unless they give intelligent and careful attention to them after planting out in beautiful, straight rows. They must recollect that cattle when turned into an orchard will ruin them as effectually in straight as well as crooked rows. The cry in our county heretofore has been that our lauds are ruined by making cotton and the farmers too have been ruined by tending it and not making their home supplies. Yes, that is all true, but let me call our farmers' attention to another little rain that is creeping in on them unawares. Nearly every farmer is shipping off his cotton seed to get a little ready money with the expectation of buying cotton seed meal next spring. We always found that money was a terrible slippery thing and we fear that many of our farmers will next spring realize this very fact. Cotton sold, money spent and nothing to purchase cotton seed meal, and where they heretofore had made fine cotton by the aid of cotton seed. We fear that many of them will be looking around to settle on a substitute such as fence scrapings and ditch banks. Well, we will say to all such in advance that a poor man with poor land and with a poor mule hauling poor dirt to raise poor crops is certainly a mighty poor business from all of which as Bill Arp says "May the Good Lord deliver us."

A Cruel Calamity.
Hayne was a pleasing talker, fluent and picturesque. He had met nearly all the writers, great and small, of the South—Henry Timrod, Gilmore Sims, Nash, Randall, John P. Thompson and the rest; and of these he spoke in terms of generous friendship. Two or three visits to Boston and New York had brought him into the homes of Longfellow, Whittier and other famous Northern men. Speaking of the pleasure these visits had afforded him, he paused, and with a sigh added:

"There is a strange cloud upon my name in Boston, and it may never be quite removed."
He explained that an unscrupulous man had been personating him in the role of a drunkard, who told all manner of absurd stories regarding his alleged travels in the Orient, and who did in his name many disgraceful acts.

"I have tried to wash it clean up by articles. There comes to me no escape," he continued, "I am too poor and too far off."

Not long after this I met a distinguished man of Boston who told me that Hayne had been at his home and had frightened the ladies of his family with the story of a murder that he had committed while traveling in Palestine.
Never was there a gentler, more unassuming or more truthful man than Paul H. Hayne. The man who told the murder story was surely he who set drunkenness, mendacity and false representations against the poet's name in many a friendly home circle. It is but simple justice that this should be said.—The American Magazine.

A Lawyer Outwitted.
Several years ago a young gentleman went to consult a certain attorney how he might carry off an heiress. "You cannot do it with safety," said the counselor, "but I'll tell you what you may do: Let her mount a horse, and hold a bridle and whip; do you then mount behind her, and you are safe, for she runs away with you." The counselor, however, was sufficiently punished for his quibbling advice, when next day he found that it was his own daughter who had run away with his client.—Exchange.
