THE ISSUES FOR NEXT YEAR.

Mr. Cleveland's Record Makes His Nomination Certain.

Mr. Dormau B. Eaton, the well known civil service reformer, writes as follows in the North American Review: "Nothing spasmodic or extraneous decided the contest of 1884. There were three new things—new to many voters—involved in it, and they were the decisive forces: 1. The remarkable personality of Mr. Cleveland. 2. The principle and need of administrative reform as a great issue in a presidential election. 3. The acceptance of such a candidate and principle by the democratic party as a political necessity. It is so important to nicely estimate the relative influence of these elements, but we need to understand them. This new man in national affairs, whom the statesmen of his party sagaciously supported, whom its partisan leaders accepted in mere despair of electing one of their kind, whom vast numbers of greedy office seekers voted for in the belief that they could force him to universal proscription—this man who has risen more rapidly than any other in our history—has, in the thirty-two months since taking the presidential chair, become not only the greatest moral and political force in his party, but the statesman most respected and trusted by those whose judgments are least biased by party prejudice. "He has become the real leader of his party, so far as it has any as a whole, not by going down the way of its passions, but by calling it up to the plane of its duty. In a cabinet as able, perhaps, as any in this generation he is conspicuously foremost. If we except Jackson and Lincoln, no President since Jefferson has been so great a political force. His acts and State papers would be a better platform for his party than any its leaders could frame. He has elevated the leadership of his party and made a new career possible for it. His death would be the severest loss it could suffer, and more than that of any three men in the country would change all the problems of the next election. "President Cleveland is certain to be renominated. To substitute another, no matter on what pretense or with what platform, would be held by every voter, intelligent enough to be an independent or a reformer, to mean a repudiation of his policy and a triumph of the patronage-mongers and office seekers whom he has baffled and offended. "Feeble indeed would the democratic party be, hopeless its prospects, if they depended on what has been done in Congress, or by the old party leaders. It is the indescribable contrast between President Buchanan and President Cleveland which has made so many people, fortunately for it, forget even the nominal identity of the party behind them. A new Buchanan would ruin the democratic party. There are hundreds of thousands of voters feebly attached to any party, but deeply interested in good government, and having the courage of their convictions, who have taken notice that the vigor and moral tone of this administration will bear comparison with any in their time. They have seen with satisfaction the honor and dignity of the nation firmly upheld in every quarter of the globe, and would dread a change, especially in a policy of diplomatic weakness. The moneyed interests of the country have lost their anxiety and gained confidence in the evidence that the finances of the government have never in their history been more wisely or honestly administered. They not only see a navy being built, but apparently without fraud. If neither our cus-

The Fruit Garden in Early Winter. December is often a prolongation, as to weather, of November; in fact, of October, also, and work suitable to those months may be continued. However mild in the first days of the month, cold often shuts down with a snap, and we should be prepared at any day for the announcement that "winter is here." Some times it is even mild enough to continue tree planting but if the soil is at all frozen, leave the trees where they are. If well heeled in, they will be perfectly safe until spring. Young trees should be stiffened by a mound of earth at the base, which will also protect from the attacks of mice; rubbing the trunks with bloody meat, or sprinkling with blood from the slaughter house, to disgust and repel rabbits. A shot gun is very killing, and fat rabbits are good eating. Make surface drains to carry off the water from young orchards. Cut ditches before severe weather, label, and store in saw-dust.—American Agriculturist.

The Anarchists—Another one of Their Circulars.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The anarchists of this city have prepared the following circular for distribution among the workmen here: "Fight. Motto: Ruler we defeat, freedom we request, to be equals we aspire, we will or we'll expire." In the course of a conversation between John Swinton and Carl Marx which took place shortly before the latter's death Swinton asked Marx: "What will the future bring?" Short but meaning was the answer the great thinker and social philosopher gave. It was but one short word, yet a word expressing very much. The answer was "fight." How clearly Marx could look into the future. Yes, fight and struggle. Even if there are some optimists in our ranks the majority of our comrades are convinced that it will take hard fighting to gain the great final aim which the thinking proletariat of all countries with nothing feverish now struggling to reach. The picket skirmishing which has been done during the last few years in Europe as well as America in the war for the erection and institution of a free society proves there is no use in talking about a peaceable solution of this question. How brutally, without consideration—yes, barbarously, especially here in America, the moneyed ruling class faces all those who with pity for their fellow men and the courage of their convictions express their feelings and thoughts in words and writings was shown by the terrible Chicago tragedy which ended on November 11th, 1887. Eight of the best and noblest pioneers of the workingmen were sacrificed. Five were killed and three disabled. Verily such brutal class law as was shown in the modern trial of heretics here in Chicago cannot again be found in the history of the world. Yes, the trial of heretics. As in former times heretics were sacrificed at the stake by a fanatical mob, infuriated by bigoted priests, so-called political criminals were hunted down and murdered by the ruling class of their times, so the social heretics of today—all those who aspire to social equality—are persecuted by a rich mob. We must be clear on this subject. Can religious and political free thinkers and reformers express their opinions without fear of punishment? The proletariat of today is without religion. He pays his priests, supports his churches, etc., but this is only done to throw sand into the people's eyes. While they are making life upon this earth a hell, they can just as well assure us of heaven after death. It is not expensive. The present so-called political reformations are not intended to interfere with the privileges and property rights of the upper ten thousand. "War to palaces, peace to huts," Lassalle exclaimed twenty years ago. Whoever has heard the people wail in their present distress and desperation, whose heart is not withered in his bosom, ought to know that we need men who will take part with enthusiasm and passion in the fight of the working class against the social evil. Whoever joins us must take all the consequences upon himself and must be ready to sacrifice everything for the cause, even should it be his life. Life is not the highest of treasures. Finally I want to recall to the memory of our comrades the words of Schiller: "When the enslaved nowhere finds his right, when the burden cannot be carried any longer then be trustfully resolved up to the stars and take

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, plains and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up, disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease when there is no occasion for this feeling as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof that given a WATER will make them free from disease as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Constipation, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of WATER will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles 10 cents. Try it.
