THE JOURNAL.

ONLY A DREAM.
 ALMA HOPE WAYNE.

'Twas eventide, and cold and drear, and I was sad and lone,
 The clouds were drifting 'cross the sky,
 I heard the night winds moan;
 I was thinking of Judean hills, of songs of long ago,
 Of angels singing loud and clear to listening ones below.

Was thinking of the changes in household every where
 Since the merry bells of Christmas rang on the chilly air,
 Of saddened hearts, and darkened homes, all o'er our happy land,
 Of shining stars, to us gone down, within the "Household" band.

When quickly I to dreamland flew—I seemed far away
 Methought I stood amidst falling snow where people thronged the way;
 They hurried on with tiresome feet toward a mansion high,
 That sent afar its cheery beams beneath the clouded sky.

Wondering, I stood and watched the throng that trod the snowy way,
 Some bore sweet flowers from orange groves, some crossed the mountain gray.
 And others came from far away with gems and shining ore,
 But all were marching with their gifts toward the open door.

And some were there from Maine's rough hills with boughs of fir and pine,
 But many chose the laurel green with prairie flowers to twine;
 Others were there, a merry group—they crossed the ocean blue—
 With ivy from the ruins gray and heather wet with dew.

While standing 'neath the falling snow with none to guide and cheer,
 A kind old lady saw my grief, and said, "Why Alma, dear!
 How came you here in such a storm? Your breath 's almost gone,
 Get under my blue umbrella, and we will hurry on."

"No niece of mine shall suffer long in darkness or in light,
 While I've a strong arm by my side and this umbrella in my hand,
 Now take my arm and basket, dear, we'll get them if we try—
 Have time enough to chat awhile, and bid them all good-bye."

"See! see!" said "Aunt Jerushy," "th-r-e's 'Chesapeake' I know,
 He's arter his new stove pipe hat that's bounding o'er the snow,
 And there, assuredly I'm alive, is Patey and Sea Breeze!"

They're wiser than December's winds that howl among the trees,
 "Now, don't you get discouraged, dear, for we are almost there,
 The Christmas bells are ringing clear upon the evening air,
 The "Household" band are gathering fast just hear them laugh and shout—
 I looked, and lo, the wind had turned our "umbrella" inside out.

We passed the crowded vestibule—that home was truly ours—
 I placed my ferns and mosses among the fragrant flowers;
 Dear "Aunt Jerushy" called my name, but no one seemed to hear,
 Then I hid behind the pine boughs 'mong shadows dark and dear.

Just then my strange dream ended—I saw and heard no more,
 Until aroused by midnight bell, and moonlight on the floor,
 Henceforth may harmony prevail—"The Household" ring with glee,
 And every year bring peace an joy to homes beyond the sea

If the food is not properly digested it becomes corrupt, and poisons the system. It is intended to nourish. This indigestion.

"My wife has suffered for many years with indigestion. After trying everything else recommended, she tried Simmons' Liver Regulator. In three days after taking it according to directions she was in perfect health; she does not suffer at all and can eat anything she wants without any of her previous symptoms."
