A Good Thing for Boys

Manual training is one of the few good things that are good for everybody. It is good for the rich boy, to teach him respect for the dignity of beautiful work. It is good for the poor boy, to increase his facility for handling tools, if tools prove to be the thing he must handle for a living afterwards. It is good for the bookish boy, to draw him away from books. But, most of all, it is good for the non-bookish, in showing him that there is something he can do well. The boy is naturally unable, even if he were studious, to keep up in book knowledge and percentage with the brighter boys, becomes discouraged, dull and moody. Let him go to the work room for an hour, and find that he can make a box or plane a rough piece of board as well as the brighter scholar, may, very likely better than his brighter neighbor, and you have given him an impulse of self respect that is of untold benefit to him when he goes back to his studies. He will be a brighter and a better boy for finding out something that he can do well. Mind you, it is not planing the board that does him good; it is planing the board in the presence of other boys who can no longer look down upon him when they see how well he can plane. He might go home after school and plane a board in the bosom of his family, or go to an evening school to learn to plane, without a quarter part, may, without any, of the invaluable effect upon his manhood that it will have to let him plane side by side with those who in mental attainments may be his superiors.—American Magazine.

How Fatigue Operates.

After a study of some years, Professor Mosso, of Turin, finds that when fatigue is carried beyond the moderate stage, at which it is decidedly beneficial, it subjects the blood to a decomposing process through the infiltration into it of substances which act as poisons, and which, when injected into the circulation of healthy animals, induce uneasiness and all the signs of excessive exhaustion. When with in the resisting power of the subject, fatigue has its pleasures and even joys, these being the expression of the organic consciousness that bodily loss of tissue is being balanced by reconstruction. Mosso's experiments were performed on Italian soldiers, and they proved, among the other results, that the stature and power of the modern warrior are fully equal to those of the ancient Roman.—Arkansas Traveler.

An experienced apiarist declares that the modern improvements in bee keeping, including the movable comb hive, the honey extractor, comb foundation, and the methods of wintering, make bee keeping a pursuit which may be indefinitely developed. Indeed, it may be so followed that, from its wide diffusion over our country, and from the value of its products, it may be truly called a great national industry.

A would be wit once asked an old German: "Gritz, what do you think of when you think of nothing?" "I think of you," was the quiet reply.

Clara.—How did you enjoy the opera last evening? Lucy.—It was divine. I had the noblest hat in the house!

The Century Magazine

With the November, 1887, issue The Century commences its thirty-fifth volume with a regular circulation of almost 250,000. The war Papers and the Life of Lincoln increased its monthly edition by 100,000. The latter history having recounted the events of Lincoln's early years, and given the necessary survey of the political condition of the country, reaches a new period, with which his secretaries were most immediately acquainted. Under the captain

Lincoln in the War the writers now enter on the more important part of their narrative, viz. the early years of the War and President Lincoln's part therein.

Supplementary War Papers following the "battle series" by distinguished generals, will describe interesting features of army life, ranging from Libby, narrative of personal adventure, etc. General Sherman will write on "The Grand Strategy of the War."

Kennan on Siberia. Except the Life of Lincoln and the War Articles, no more important series has ever been undertaken by The Century than this of Mr. Kennan's. With the previous preparation of four years' travel and study in Russia and Siberia, the author undertook a journey of 15,000 miles for the special investigation here required. An introduction from the Russian Minister of the Interior admitted him to the principal mines and prisons, where he became acquainted with some three hundred State exiles.—Liberals, Nihilists, and others,—and the series will be a startling as well as accurate revelation of the exile system. The many illustrations by the artist and photographer, Mr. George A. Frost, who accompanied the author, will add greatly to the value of the articles.

A Novel by Eggleston. — with illustrations will run through the year. Shorter novels will follow by Cable and Stockton. Shorter sections will appear every month.

Miscellaneous Features will comprise several illustrated articles on Ireland, by Charles De Kay; papers touching the field of the Sunday-School Lessons, illustrated by E. L. Wilson; wild Western life, by Theodore Roosevelt; the English Cathedral, by Mrs. van Rensselaer, with illustrations by Pennell; Dr. Buckley's valuable papers on Dreams, Spiritualism, and Clairvoyance; essays in criticism, art, travel, and biography; poems; cartoons; etc.

By a special offer the numbers for the past year (containing the Lincoln history) may be secured with the year's subscription from November, 1887, twenty-four cents in advance, or with the last number
