MATCH GAME of Pool at Water's tonight.

Very low tide yesterday.

Grand parade of the Fire Department today. Many new exhibits will be added to the Fair today.; The Fair will be in full blast today.

Exhibits are constantly being added.

The special police on the Academy Green did their duty well yesterday.

The E. C. D. line have made some attractive improvements upon their premises foot of Craven street.

The truck farmers are replanting Irish potatoes, Many of the first plantings have rotted in the ground. Fair opens at nine o'clock this morning. Procure your ticket, go in at the right gate and there will be no trouble.

Today we give from Mr. Jonathan Havens! book, on our editorial page, the "Climate" and "Forest" of the Pamlico section.

The Lenoir Co. District Grange, P. of H., meets the first Thursday in April next, and not the first Tuesday as printed in last week's JOURNAL.

Visitors continue to arrive for the Fair. The Carolina arrived from Bell's Ferry yesterday evening with a good number, and a large crowd is expected from up the road this morning.

W. L. Kennedy, Esq., of Lenoir, has me very fine cattle on exhibition at the Academy Green. There are also quite a number of exhibits in this line from Craven which we will write up in full before the Fair closes.

The Davis Cadets and the Governor's Guard returned yesterday evening. Their presence added considerable to the Fair. The Davis Cadets are being quite favorites of New Berne. In fact there are several New Berne boys already there. We regret that it was not definitely known in the city that the Governor's Guard would come they would have been better prowided for, Meers, J. W. Moore and W. E. Guion, learning that there were mber of them without quarters, d the New Berne Fire Co's, room.

did the best they could for them. s of the riders in the races on I street yesterday got his race at J. W. Stewart's livery stables, m the horse began to come street at about 1:50 he didn't to care to stop for trifles, and havon of his , he was not estimied with runrace, but kept on at full speed, he reached his matter. OPENING OF THE FAIR.

Large Crowd Present

MATCH GAME of Pool at Water's The Parade and Preliminary

The Exhibit Surpasses the Expectation of Visitors.

Tuesday morning opened clear and day. cold, a most beautiful day for the opening of the Fair but for the wind which was just enough disagreeable to remind one that it is March.

At 11 o'clock the Davis Cadets commanded by Col. A. C. Davis, and the Governor's Guard commanded by Capt. Eugene G. Harrell, paraded on Broad street where a number of carriages had assembled with distinguished visitors and citizens of New Berne: A procession was formed under direction of Capt. Matt Manly, chief marshal, with The Fair. the New Berne Silver Cornet Band in the lead; the Governor's Guard following, then the carriages with citizens up the rear. This procession moved John S. Long, Eeq , and Rev. H. W. go to work. Battle. The line of march to the Academy Green was down East Front Premiums for Pigeon Shooting. to Broad, up Broad to Craven, down down Neuse to the Academy Green, entering at the south gate.

The Governor ascended the speaker's President of the Fair Association, Maj. John Hughes, John S. Long, Esq., Rev. before shot birds thrown from a trap. H. W. Battle, President Bryan, of the A. & N. C. R. R . Col. F. A. Olds and Mr. Richard Battle of the News and Observer. The crowd which arrived by the special train from Morehead City, was swelled to near two thousand.

Major John Hughes, chairman of arose and pronounced a fervent petition for the blessings of Almighty God upon well as their spiritual natures. At the L. A. Williamson, A. S. Wells. conclusion of the prayer, John S. Long, Esq., arose and introduced, in his earnest and eloquent way, Governor Alfred M. Scales.

age being in the open air and the at times blowing almost a gale. His speech was brief but appropriate. Fol. old ones. lowing the suggestion of his life-long friend and college associate who introproud of this greeting; he recognized the fact that he was the chief magistrate of all North Carolina and there was not one spot but what was dear to him. He alluded in feeling terms to New Berne's great men; to her great natural advantages: the resources of the Eastern section, the wealth of the forests and waters, and could see no reason why New Berne should not stand in the forefront of North Carolina towns in the race of progress and advancement. He loved New Berne because of her past greatness and her present prospects.

The Governor then gave a hasty review of what North Carolina had done within a recent period for the improvement of her people on matters of education and providing for her helpless insane, deaf and dumb. He alluded to the large surplus in the natioanl treasury as evidence of the prosperity of the people and said that they demanded a reduction of taxes because the government does not need the money. He alluded to the work done specially for Eastern Carolina by the State in the survey of the oyster grounds and predicted that this section would soon rival Florida as a winter resort on account of its mild climate, varied resources and eporting facilities. He had come down to see the Fair, felt a great interest in it and would be glad to tell the people of the West when he returned what we of the East are doing.

The Governor spoke about twenty minutes and declared the Fair opened, closing with a yerse or two of Judge Gaston's famous words, "Carolina, Carolina," etc. The silver cornet band followed with music, and the doors of the graded school building opened and the crowd began to examine and express their asishment at the fine display. During the evening the Davis Cadets were re viewed on the Green by the Governor and their movements and soldierly bearing were favorably commented

Twenty-six years ago today the people of this city and community were hurrying to and fro and preparing to flee from an approaching enemy. Many of them left their homes never to return again, others to return three years later cast down but not dismayed, to go to work to restore their lost fortunes and rebuild their waste places.

Today we are expecting a number of the survivors of that same enemy to meet us as friends and rejoice. with us in a restored and a reunited country funded. He was instructed to continue his visitation of the churches and breth reman the interest of the State mission work, and to protract at inviting points as opportunity affords. Several inviting mission points were presented and steps taken to occupy as soon as possible.

The Salvation Army and quite a nnm her of our best citizens feel somewhat aggrieved at the action of the county ommissioners on last Monday, denying the Army the use of the courthquee after Monday, March 12th. While many of us do not approve of their ways we d not see any good reason for refusing them. Nearly all of the soldiers are persons of very limited means. Besides they are becoming more useful catizens zens it seems to us ought to entitle them to consideration. Let the Army and others interested present their wishes to the commissioners in the form of a pe tition on first Monday and we have tomuch confidence in the board to think there will be further cause for com plaint.

A large number of our citizens gath ered at the depot Monday afternoon to welcome Gov. Scales. Many ladies were present although the weather was unpleasantly cold. Our colored band enlivened the occasion with plenty of music. Two coaches were filled with the Davis boys and one with the Governor's Guard. As soon as the train stopped the Governor appeared on the platform of the car and was introduced by J. F. Wooten, Esq. He spoke for a few minutes, dwelling upon the pros-perity of the whole country and specially of North Carolina as shown by the millions in the U.S. treasury and the good price of cotten and tobacco. He then greeted the ladies and said he was not ashamed to express his love for them there and then in the presence of his wife. He was heartily cheered Mrs. Scales was seated at an open window of the car and was an object of as much interest and more beauty than the Governor himself.
