The Fountain of Youth.

For the last six years-ever since the foundation of Chamberlain—the Sioux Indians have endeavored to preyent the whites from getting possession of American Island, which lies in the centre of the Missouri river. It was always supposed that their reason was of a mercenary character, and that their object was to cut the timber with which the island is covered, and turn it into the bright, yellow gold which they For Old and Young. do not covet so much."

But a different reason has lately, and by accident, been discovered. It has always been supposed that when the Spaniards failed to discover the fabled fountain of perpetual youth among the everglades of Florida, the romantic dream ended there and men grew old and gray as of yore. Not so, however, as this narrative will show. On the npper end of the this island, hidden form their functions as in youth. as of yore. Not so, however, as by drooping evergreens, and shaded by stately cotton woods, is a spring. It bursts forth clear and beautiful, and with a murmur as soft as a maiden's prayer glides from its island home into the yellow, gurgling waters of the Missouri. The water retains the same temperature winter and summer, and, its volume retains its uniformity throughout the year. It contains, in all probablity, the different car-bonates, and that is the cause of the youth-retaining qualities which Indians attribute to it.

The secret was let out a few days ago by an old hunter, who was familiar with the Indians and the spring long before this place existed in the fervid imagination of John.

They imagine that its source lies amid the perpetual fires that radiate from the centre of the earth, and that fountain is presided over by the father of the Indian race, who is doomed, throughout all time to regulate the temperature of the spring for the benefit of those who dread to see the footprints of old time mar their classic features.— St. Paul Gobe.

A YOUNG man at college wrote as follows to his ffather; "My dear father, I have only time—being greatly reashed with my studies—to send my love, and tell you that I wish you would send me $50." The fether replied: "My dear see, I have only time—being greatly reashed with my hay—to send love, and tell you that I have only time—being greatly reashed with my hay—to send love, and tell you that I have no mit love.
