Notice to the Stockholders of the Carolina City Company, and others.

State of North Carolina, by the Attorney General on the relation of Eliza Mason, vs. H. R. Eaton and the Carolina City Company.

In obedience to a judgment of the Superior Court of Craven County, at Spring Term 1887 in the above entitled action, Notice is hereby given to all persons holding certificates of stock in the Carolina City Company, to present them to the undersigned at his office in Beaufort, N. C., on Thursday the 24th day of May, 1888. All persons claiming to be owners of stock in said company, for which the certificates have been lost or in blank, are also notified to make proof of their several claims before me. All persons who shall fail to do so will, by said judgment, be forever barred from participation in the distribution of the assets of the Carolina City Company.

All persons claiming lots in the plan of Carolina City are notified to present their deeds to me for inspection, and all persons claiming to be owners of lots in said plan and who have failed to receive deeds are also notified to make satisfactory proof of the fact before me that deeds may be executed to them for the same.

All persons having books, papers, certificates of stock in other companies, or other property of or thing of value belonging to said Carolina City Company, are hereby notified to deliver the same at once to me.

J. D. DAVID, Receiver of the Carolina City Company, Beaufort, N. C., April 18, 1888. aid dsw

THE JOURNAL.

BYRON'S NAPOLEON'S FAREWELL.

Farewell to the Land, where the gloom of my Glory,
Arose and overshadow'd the earth
With her name,
She shone on me now, but the page of per story
The brightest or blackest, is filled
With my fame,
I have warr'd with a world which vanquish'd me only
When the meteor of conquest allured me too far,
I have coped with the nations which dread me thus lonely
The last single captive to millions in war.

Farewell to thee, France! when thy diadem crown'd me,
I made thee the gem and the wonder of earth,
But thy weakness decrees I should leave as I found thee,
Decay'd in thy glory, and sunk in thy worth.

Oh! for the veteran hearts that were wasted
In strife with the storm, when their battles were won—
Then the eagle, whose gaze in that moment was blazed,
Had still soar'd with eyes fix'd on victory's sun!

Farewell to thee, France!—but when Liberty rallies
Once more in thy regions remember me then,
The violet still grows in the depth of thy valleys:
Though wither'd, thy tear will unfold it again.
Yet, yet, I may baffle the hosts that surround us,
And yet may thy heart leap awake to my voice—
There are links which must break in the chain that has bound us,
Then turn thee, and call on the chief of thy choice

A Lost Locomotive.

"In the construction of the Kansas Pacific and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroads," said H. L. Carter, a railroad contractor St. Joseph, the other day, "one distinct of frequent occurrence was met with, which, as far as my experience goes, is unique in railroad history. I refer to the trouble arising from quicksands. From Western Kansas to the mountains, quicksands are to be found in nearly every stream, no matter how small, and to successfully bridge them required an expenditure out of all proportion to the size of stream to be crossed. We tried pile driving, but the longest piles disappeared without touching the bottom. Then filling with earth and stone was attempted, and met with equally poor success, as the quicksand was apparently capable of swallowing the entire Rocky Mountains. The only means of crossing was found to be to build short tress bridges across them. This was very expensive, but was the only thing to be done. As an instance of the practically bottomless nature of the quicksands, I may cite the case of an engine that ran off the track at River Bend, about ninety miles from Denver, on the Kansas Pacific. The engine, a large freight, fell into a quicksand, and in twenty minutes had entirely disappeared. Within two days the company sent out a gang of men and a wrecking train to raise the engine. To their surprise they could not find a trace of it. Careful search was made, magnetized rods were sunk to the depth of sixty five feet, but no engine could be found. It had sunk beyond human ken, and from that day to this has never been discovered. Cattle and horses are frequently lost, the only animal that is safe being a mule—the only animal that never gets caught. No greater instance of the same intelligence can be cited than the skill and care with which it avoids all unsond bottom. As its hoofs are much smaller and narrower than those of a horse, it would mire down in places where a horse could safely pass. Recognizing this fact, whenever a mule feels the ground giving away under its feet, it draws back instantly and cannot be induced to advance a step, although a whole drove of horses may have immediately preceded. Those who think a mule is stupid are much mistaken."—Scientific American.

PURIFY YOUR BLOOD.

Impurities in the blood produce disease. Bility and mental health depend upon a healthy condition of the blood. In the summer months, however, it is common to find the blood impure, which produces itching, eruptions, and other skin diseases. A purifying medicine is therefore necessary to cleanse the blood and restore it to its natural purity. Dr. J. C. Smith's Blood Purifier is a safe and reliable medicine for this purpose. It is a vegetable preparation and does not contain any harmful ingredients. It is a medicine that should be used by all persons who are afflicted with any of the above mentioned diseases.
