FOREVER AND FOREVER.

I think of all thou art to me
I dream of what thou canst not be
My life is cursed with thoughts of thee
Forever and forever.

My heart is full of grief and woe
I see thy face wh'er I go
I would alas! it were not so
Forever and forever!

Perchance if we had never met,
I had been spared this mad regret
This endless striving to forget
Forever and forever!

Perchance if thou wert far away
Did I not see thee day by day
I might again be blithe and gay
Forever and forever!

Ah! no! I could not bear the pain
Of never seeing thee again.
I cling to thee with might and main
Forever and forever!

Ah, leave me not! I love but thee
Blessing or curse, which'er thou be,
Oh, be as thou hast been to me
Forever and forever!

Extensive Farming

STEEDSVILLE, N. C., June 18, 1888.
MR. EDITOR—The preservation of our farms from gullies and unsightly galls is a subject upon which our farmers could spend much profitable thought. It hurts me when I see the once fine plantations of our farmers washing away the gullies steadily encroaching upon our best fields. If no other reason, we ought to have too much pride to leave badly washed and unsightly farms for our descendants to occupy. Brother farmers, take more pride in your profession. Let each one try to have the best farm. Have systematic your work. Plant a certain number of acres of each crop, and make those acres produce the amount desired. Manure every thing you plant, and manure it with a lasting manure, one that the crops will feed after the first year. Commercial fertilizer has no business on poor land, land devoid of humus. It is a good thing in its place, but its place is so seldom found. We must learn to make our own manure. The intensive system for us to follow. It is the right system if labor is abundant. But with us labor is scarce and we must adopt it or have badly prepared and cultivated crops. Have a few acres well manured and well prepared and we can rely with confidence upon a good yield.

Now, brother farmers, here is the point at which many of us stumble because we make a good application of manure this year we feel that it ought to last and answer for next year. That won't do. Didn't you eat a hearty dinner yesterday? I'll wager that you will feel that it would be unjust if your good wives were to say to each of you, "No, you mustn't eat today. I fed you well yesterday and that must last two or three days. I know you are hard worked and don't get any rest, but you must recollect that I fed you yesterday." Brother farmers, you treat your land—your capital—that which supports you, and out of which you must obtain your sustenance, upon the same principle.

Is it just as it ought that you should waste away and impoverish the lands entrusted to you? Remember that your children will one day have to till the soil that you have impoverished or improved. I ask you seriously, which shall it be?—HOWARD E. JONES, in Progressive Farmer.
