Names of Political Parties,

At the close of the Revolutionary War there was but one political party in the United Seates, and that original party was known universally as the "American Whig Party," who had fought the war to a successful issue, and had united to organize and sustain a new constitution and government. The war ended in 1781, and for the next five years few changes in politics occurred, but by 1787, the Whigs or National party, under the leader-ship of the first President, Washington, Hamilton, and their associates, that party became known as nents of the Whigs and their policy making a great outcry, evidently united and formed a new party and disturbed by something. In 1852 the American Party, composed of seceders from both the old parties, was formed. This was a secret, oath bound political organization, whose name, nature and object were not known, even to members, until they reached the higher degrees, and thus the party became known by the popular name of the "Know Nothings." Its design was to oppose the easy naturalonly native born citizens to office. After the election of 1856 the Southern Democrats withdrew their support from this party and it then disappeared from the politics of
