THE JOURNAL

NEW BERNE, N. C., NOV. 13 1888

THE LOGIC OF FACTS. During the late campaign it was charged that the election of Mr. Cleveland would prove deleterious to business and ruinous to labor.

As soon as it was announced that General Harrison was elected, the finances of the country felt the shock and stocks went down. Union Pacific, Erie, St. Paul, Reading, Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific, Louisville and Nashville, Lake Shore and New York Central—all went down, and strikes commenced!

Although the Democrats are defeated in the Presidential election, the principles of their party have triumphed. Tariff reform is the demand of the hour, and nothing can stifle it. General Harrison knows it, and at this early hour the policy of his administration is foreshadowed.

HERALD BUREAU

Washington, Nov. 8, 1888. It now appears probable that Gen. Harrison will, immediately upon his induction into office, call the members of the Fifty-first Congress together. His motive for this will be to arrange some plan for the reduction of taxation.

General Harrison's friends say he will be unwilling to wait eighteen months before moving in a matter so important, and that the outlook therefore for an extra session is one which may be classed among the strong probabilities of the near future.

In the Herald a dream of unity the Herald is wide awake. Mr. Cleveland is defeated because he wanted tariff reform. General Harrison, as soon as he is inaugurated, calls an extra session of Congress in order to reform the tariff!

If this is to be, the Democracy will be vindicated, and though robbed of the honors, we will enjoy the fruits of victory.

CLEVELAND AND HILL.

In a late issue of the JOURNAL, following the lead of the New York Herald and the New York Times, we charged Governor Hill and Mayor Hewitt with the defeat of President Cleveland.

So far as Mayor Hewitt is concerned nothing has appeared to change that conclusion. The friends of Governor Hill insist that he is not to blame for the result of the Presidential election.

Governor Hill was seconded at Albany, on the evening of Nov. 8th, by an immense gathering of Democrats to whom he spoke, in part, as follows: "Always conscious of my personal and official rectitude and of my loyalty and devotion to the Democratic party and to its candidates and principles, I awaited the verdict of the people with an abiding faith and unshaken confidence in the result.

"Our success in the gubernatorial contest is shared, however, by the shadow of National disaster. In common with every true Democrat, I greatly regret the defeat of President Cleveland in the State and in the Nation. He deserved better at the hands of the people of this country. Honest, brave and courageous, he gallantly led his party in the great contest for tariff reform and suffered defeat owing to the false clamor, unjust prejudices, unfair representations, and the gigantic and combined efforts of all the monopolists of the country.

"President Cleveland and the Democratic party were right and deserved to succeed. The issue so courageously presented by President Cleveland in the interest of the whole people must not be abandoned. Our flag has been nailed to the mast and there it must remain. Let us steadfastly adhere to the principles of tariff reform and the clouds that now obscure our pathway will soon pass away."

It will be observed that Governor Hill makes no allusion to the knifing of President Cleveland.

While we are not prepared to acquit Governor Hill of all the blame, we admit that it was possible for such a result to have been reached without treachery on his part. It is usual to hold leaders responsible for the conduct of their followers, and, judged by this rule, the Governor is guilty. But Gov. Hill asserts his ignorance, and President Cleveland endorses the assertion.

With this, we turn to the future, leaving the dead past to bury its dead.

A Bold Conception.

Under the headline "A Giant Undertaking" the American Agriculturist for November describes at some length what it rightly calls "a remarkable measure for the promotion of American agriculture." Briefly stated, Congress has appropriated $100,000 to be expended by Director Powell and his subordinates of the National Geological Survey, for an inquiry into the feasibility of building reservoirs at the head of streams west of the one hundredth meridian, so that their waters may be used for irrigating the vast arid plains below.

Director Powell, the author of the scheme, believes that a system of storage reservoirs and irrigating canals may be perfected that will water at a profit fully sixty million acres of now barren land. At thirty dollars per acre the reclaimed region would represent $2,800,000,000 of added wealth to the nation.

Discount this liberally as a roscate estimate, says the cautious editor, and it is still true that the project is one that should pay well for the millions of money required to carry it out. It is, moreover, a work that no single State can do, because of its far-reaching and expensive character.

If the inquiry should result in proving the practicability of the scheme, and eventuate in the construction of the proposed reservoirs, many distant points would receive the benefit. It is not solely a plan for redeeming ninety-six million acres of land now barren, but to provide for a more equal distribution of the mighty volumes of water that every season cause the destructive floods of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. "The effect would be to reduce the overflow and the sediment of these rivers, giving their natural flow a greater current with which to keep open channels for commerce and free exit for superficial freshets. Under this completed system we may hope to see a vast diminution in the flooded area and of the enormous damage caused thereby at most annually in the two great valleys of the continent. The Geological Survey estimates that for every acre reclaimed in the arid region another acre will be reclaimed or secured against overflow along the lower Mississippi.

The undertaking proposed is one of the most stupendous projects ever conceived in behalf of a nation's agriculture. It aims to improve and ameliorate the agriculture of a quarter of a continent. The storage works in the mountains of the far Northwest are designed to benefit the cotton and rice planter over two thousand miles to the South."

This is a bold conception and one worthy of the reputation and achievements of its distinguished author. Major Powell has never suggested anything that upon trial was not proved practicable. The exploring of the canyon of the Colorado river, and the reports subsequently made of that bold and extremely perilous undertaking, gave him a national fame, which has been maintained by the high character of the work performed by the United States Geological Survey under his direction. It is safe, therefore, to make the inquiry, and if satisfactory evidence is adduced that the work is feasible, then the country should engage in it. But in this, as in all other undertakings, it is best to be sure we are right before we go ahead.—Manufacturer's Record.

Must Not Drink When on Duty.

The Long Island Railroad Company recently discharged eight employes, conductors, baggage-masters and brakemen, for drinking intoxicating liquors while on duty. General Superintendent Barton, in a newspaper interview concerning this action, is reported as saying:

"Yes, I have discharged eight men altogether for drinking while on duty. Some are from Long Island City, others from Flatbush and Bushwick. The men violated one of our most stringent rules, and they had no excuse, as we provide tea and coffee for all who desire it. We deem it absolutely necessary for the safety of the people who travel on our trains, as well as for the safety of our property, that the men in whose care both are placed should be sober when on duty. What they do when off duty, so long as they behave themselves, is none of our business, but they must not go into saloons or drink beer or liquors while on duty. It does not matter who or what the person is, he must obey the rules of the discharge."

If all railroad companies would exact abstinence from intoxicants from employes while in their service, not only would their own property interests be largely benefited, but the safety of the traveling public would be greatly promoted.—National Advocate.
