BRUCE IN THE CABINET.

Ever since the war the negroes have been claimed as the rightful property of the Republican party. Nowhere have they been admitted to equal rights and privileges of white Republicans. They have been hewers of wood and drawers of water. Their tasks have been regularly set before them, and they have been required to vote early, often and late. Nothing has been given them but the crumbs that fall from the rich man's table.

The negroes are waking up to the situation. Not content with being the slaves of a party that professes to have made them free men, they are now demanding a Cabinet portfolio for Blanche Bruce, ex Senator from the State of Mississippi. It cannot be said that Bruce is not competent. As a United States Senator he received the respect of his associates, and wore the Senatorial toga with becoming dignity. Mrs. Bruce was distinguished for grace, elegance and culture most remarkable for one of her race, and shared with her husband the honors incident to his elevation. But, neither the Senator nor his accomplished wife were received into Washington society. A great gulf separated the Bruces and the Blaines, the Ingalls, and the Bayards. And so it will ever be. If every negro on this continent should petition Harrison to give Bruce a place in the Cabinet it would be scouted as a thing not to be thought of—a disgrace not to be tolerated.

It is a fact not to be denied that General Harrison owes his election to the negroes. They held the balance of power in enough Northern States to turn the scales in favor of the Republicans. The foremost men of their race are demanding recognition, but their voice will be as the idle wind. There are 25,000 negro votes in Indiana—4,000 in Indiana alone—and all these, and many more, are backing Bruce.

Alfred Banks, the leading negro of New York, is reported by the World with having said, "There is no nonsense about this matter. The colored people appreciate the importance of their services to the party. Through their vote nearly every Northern State was carried for Harrison, and without it hardly one in the Union could have been. The colored people will not be satisfied with servile appointments. They expect all through the North to be given recognition in some degree equal to their importance to the party. Gen. Harrison will be compelled to recognize them by the appointment of a colored man to the Cabinet. Nothing less will give them satisfaction. Mr. Bruce's fitness for the position no one can call in question."

We have no doubt there will be a better among the blackbirds when Harrison fires off his gun. The colored people who have set their hearts upon high offices under the Harrison administration are destined to a crushing disappointment.

Disadvantages of Union With Canada.

A union with Canada must first be asked for on the part of the Dominion or it will not be worth the having. It cannot be hastened by any effort of ours, but all such efforts will retard it. Canada was originally a colony of France, and there are now over a million of French Canadians, described by Godwin Smith, the eloquent propagandist of commercial union, as an "unprogressive, religious, submissive, courteous, and, though poor, not unhappy people." He adds, that while "they have a very indifferent reputation as farmers," they are governed by the priest with the occasional assistance of the notary." This certainly is not high commendation. Retaining in a poor way their French language, they have not been assimilated or anglicized, perhaps cannot be Americanized, and we have yet to learn that the Latin race have anywhere appeared to accept of a republican form of government with any enthusiasm.

The public debt of the Canadian Dominion, however formidable, would have to be paid or assumed by the United States in case of a political union. Its present amount in proportion to population is more than three times as much as that of the United States; and the latter is being rapidly reduced, while that of the Dominion for the last twenty years has steadily increased in every year except two.

We do not need the Canadian Dominion as a place of refuge for redundant population. We do not need it for the purpose of enrolling their young men in our army. We do not need it for the purpose of increasing our revenue, and, if we did, the balance would be found on the other side of the account.—Forum.

Modes of Execution Contrasted.

In modern and more barbarous times the aim of the executioner was to torture the criminal by killing him as slowly as possible; now, on the contrary, the aim is to kill him as speedily as possible and shorten his sufferings. From this point of view the English method of blowing from guns practiced in India, is the most humane—this mode of execution is sure, quick, and therefore nearly painless; at the same time the moral impression produced by it is very great, and well suited to the spirit of contemporary law. The next most humane method or of execution is by hanging, an old expedient, very much resorted to in Russia in modern times. This method is inferior to the former, because death is more lingering and cruel. But still it is an advance upon the very old system of crucifixion much practiced by the Romans. By this latter the man who violated the law was nailed to the wood of the cross and hung there often many days, during which time his sufferings must have been terrible.—Commercial Advertiser.

Game Preserves and the Public.

One thing to be said of private game preserves, in behalf of the public benefit accruing from them, is that they foster a game supply which often overpreads the preserve boundaries, and thus furnishes sport for outsiders. A case in point is that of the Country Club of Westchester county, New York, who sometime ago posted an extensive tract of land, and turned out quail in it. The birds have stocked all the country round about, and gunners report better shooting in the vicinity than for many years previous. No sensible person will ever object to posted land, provided there is a free range near by. Fences cannot be built so high that birds will not fly over them; nor has any genius yet devised a scheme to clip the wings and restrain the flight of grouse and quail. Thus outsiders come in for a share even of the expensive European pheasants and partridges put out in American preserves.—Forest and Stream.

Household Economy.

Besides the purchase, care and preparation of food, one must remember that there are a hundred other ways of economizing in the household. Time, to the housewife, is money, consequently, purchase such machines as will save both. One cannot afford to beat eggs with a fork, when, for ten cents, a beater can be purchased that will do the work in one-tenth the time. A farina boiler is a necessity, as there is no danger of scorching and wasting food. A meat chopper and braising pan enable one to use the cheaper pieces of meat. There are many other machines which are of great use in intelligent hands, but, as women are not machinists, many excellent machines come to grief from lack of understanding. All unnecessary or fancy utensils should not be indulged in.

American Versatility.

Is there anything more sublime than the way in which the American can combine the sacred and the profane? Why, he is a greater adept at it than John Bull. On board the steamer, we had a party of Americans who passed seven days of the voyage playing poker. The smoking room rang from morning to night with the oaths that they uttered every time that they threw a card on the table. They were so fluent with them that they hardly used the same twice in an hour. Their stock seemed inexhaustible. On Sunday, after breakfast, a young lady sat down to the piano and began playing hymns. What happened then? Our poker party gathered round the young lady, and for two hours sang psalms and holy tunes to the edification of the other occupants of the saloon. I was dumbfounded. In France, we have men who swear and also men who sing hymns. But I believe that the Anglo-Saxon race alone can furnish men who do both with equal facility and gusto.—Forum.

Separate Municipal Elections.

Without venturing to decide which plan is the most desirable, we think there is no longer any doubt in any impartial mind as to the need of the proposed separation. There can be no improvement in our municipal government, no relief from the extravagant and oftentimes corrupt expenditures which make life in our cities so enormously expensive, until we bring the mass of the voters to the comprehension of two points: first, that it is playing into the hands of the men who make their living out of politics to allow National and State political considerations to enter into the choice of municipal officers; secondly, that the burden of taxation is not borne by the rich alone, but largely by the poor. The voters must think when they are deciding how they will vote, not as to what the effect of their ballot will be on a candidate for Governor or President, but upon municipal taxation, schools, police, paving, lighting, street cleaning, sewerage, docks.—Century.
