A Dilution of Legal Science.

Within the memory of men still living it was not a difficult task for a lawyer in active practice to familiarize himself with all the leading American decisions. How is it now? Unless his memory is abnormally developed he cannot retain the names of the reports even much less their contents. In this multitude of authorities, both luminous and fuliginous, no proposition, however absurd, is required to stand without apparent support. The lawyer of the present, instead of basing his judgment upon broad general principles of right, is too apt to spend his time and waste his faculties in delving and searching among the yellow covered literature of a public law library (no one but a millionaire can afford one of his own) for some case similar to the one in hand. He shrinks into a mere "decision index or an echo." He becomes a patient toiler searching for the threads of precedent to twist a rope with which to strangle principle. A writer who took the pains to gather the statistics asserts that from December, 1886, to August, 1887—a period of eight months—the Supreme Court and the courts of last resort of the various States rendered 8,325 decisions, in most of which opinions were written. This for a part of a year and a part only of the courts. Is it surprising that this deluge of reports has diluted legal science and almost swept away the great landmarks of the law.—Forum.

Good books improve the mind and afford valuable aid as educators. The publishing house we are dealing with do an immense business and give us such rates for their books as can not be obtained by others than publishers. While these books are real handsome and worthy a place in any library, one other strong point should not be overlooked, the print. The type is large, clear, and will not injure the eyes. A large supply will be kept on hand, but should any selection not be in stock it will require only a short while to order it. Now is a good time to begin or enlarge your nice library. Remember that when books are to be sent by mail, 10c. extra will be required for postage.

A GREAT MAGAZINE.

The Century for 1889

Has just been published, and is now on sale. It is the most complete and valuable work of the year. It contains a full and complete history of the year, and is a most interesting and valuable work. It is a most complete and valuable work of the year. It contains a full and complete history of the year, and is a most interesting and valuable work.

THE SHERIDAN PAPERS.

by George K. Sherman, attracting the attention of the literary world. The Chicago Tribune says: "A no other magazine articles printed in English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America. It is already known, copies of The Century entering British hands these articles torn out by the customs officials on the frontier."

DUNRO 1889

The Century will publish the most important art feature that has yet found place in its pages. It is the result of four years' work of Mr. Timothy Cole, the leading magazine engraver of the world, in the galleries of Europe, engraving from the originals the greatest pictures by the old masters.

A series of papers on Ireland, its customs, landscape, etc., and there are to be illustrated art papers, etc., treating especially of the art of the International Sunday-Schools, London. George W. Cable will write "Stratford-on-Avon," and there will be novels and short stories by leading writers, occasional articles on war, etc. (supplemental to the famous "War" series by General Grant and others, which have been appearing in The Century, etc., etc.)

The Century costs four dollars a year, and is published by The Century Co. of New York, who will send a copy of the full prospectus to any one on request.
