Cleanse the System

DO IT NOW

With this most reliable medicine—Paine's Celery Compound. It purifies the blood, cures Constipation, and regulates the liver and kidneys, effectually cleansing the system of all waste and dead matters.

Paine's Celery Compound

combines true nerve tonic and strengthening qualities, reviving the energies and spirits.

"I have been troubled for some years with a complication of difficulties. After trying various remedies, and not finding relief, I tried Paine's Celery Compound. Before taking one full bottle the long troublesome symptoms began to subside, and I can truly say now, that I feel like a new man. Digestion has improved, and I have gained ten pounds in weight since I have commenced taking the Compound."

THE JOURNAL.

BEN HAZZARD'S GUEST.

AUTHOR UNKNOWN.

Ben Hazzard's hut was smoky and cold, Ben Hazzard, half blind, was black and old, And he cobbled shoes for his scanty gold.

Sometimes he sighed for a larger store, Wherewith to bless the wandering poor, For he was not wise in worldly lore, The poor were Christ's—he knew no more.

'Twas very little that Ben could do, But he pegged his prayer in many a shoe, And only himself and the good Lord knew.

Meanwhile, he must cobbler with all his might, Till the Lord knew when it would all be right; For he worked by faith and not by sight.

One night a cry from the window came, Ben Hazzard was sleepy and tired and lame:

"Ben Hazzard, open," it seemed to say, "Give shelter and food I humbly pray." Ben Hazzard lifted his woolly head To listen—"Tis awful cold," he said, And his old bones shook in his ragged bed—

"But the wanderer must be comforted, Out from his straw he painfully crept, And over the frosty floor he stepped, While under the door the snow wreaths swept.

"Come in, in the name of the Lord," he cried, As he opened the door and held it wide, A milk-white kitten was all he spied, Trembling and crying there at his feet, Ready to die in the bitter cold.

Ben Hazzard amazed, started up and down; The candles were out in all the town. The stout house doors were carefully shut, Safe bolted were all but old Ben's hut. "I thought that some one called," he said—

"Some dream or other got into my head, Come, then, poor pussy and share my bed."

But first he sought for a rusty cup, And he gave his guest a generous sup, Then out from the wind, the storm, and the sleet, Puss joyfully lay at old Ben's feet. Truly, it was a terrible storm, Ben feared he should never more be warm.

But just as he began to be dozy, And puss was purring soft and cozy, A voice called faintly before his door: "Ben Hazzard, Ben Hazzard," help I implore, Give drink and crust from out of your store.

Ben Hazzard opened his sleepy eyes, And his wrinkled face showed great surprise.

Out from his straw he stumbled again, His teeth a-chatter with neuralgic pain, Caught at the door in the frozen rain, "Come in, in the name of the Lord," he said:

"With such as I have thou shalt be fed," Only a little black dog he saw, Whining and shaking a broken paw, "Well, well!" cried Ben Hazzard, "I must have dreamed But verily like a voice it seemed," "Poor creature," he added, with husky tone, His feet so cold they seemed like stone; "Thou shalt have the whole of my marrow-bone."

He went to the cupboard and took from the shelf The bone he had saved for his very self, Then after binding the broken paw, Half dead with cold went back to his straw;

Under the ancient blue quilt he crept, His conscience was white, again he slept.

But again a voice called, both loud and clear, "Ben Hazzard, for Christ's sweet sake come here."

Once more he stood at the open door, And looked abroad as he looked before, This time, full sure, 'twas a voice he heard, But all that he saw was a storm-tossed bird, With weary pinion and beating crest, And a blood-red stain on its snowy breast,

"Come in, in the name of the Lord," he said, Tenderly raising its drooping head; And tearing his tattered robe apart, Laid the cold bird on his own warm heart.

The sunlight flashed on the snowy thatch, As an angel lifted the wooden latch, Ben woke in a flood of golden light, And knew the voice that had called all night,

And steadfastly gazing without a word, Beheld the messenger from the Lord. He said to Ben, with a wondrous smile (The three guests sleeping all the while), "Thrice happy is he that bleaseth the poor; The humblest creature that sought thy door, For Christ's sweet sake thou hast comforted."

"Nay, 'twas not much," Ben humbly said, With a rueful shake of his old gray head.

"Who giveth all of his scanty store, In Christ's dear name can do no more. Behold! the Master who waiteth for thee, Saith, 'Giving to them thou hast given to me!'"

"Then, with heaven's bright light on his face," "Amen!"

I come in the name of the Lord," said Ben.

"Frozen to death," the watchman said, When at last they found him in his bed With a smile on his face so strange and bright; He wondered what old Ben saw that night.

Ben's lips were silent and never told— He had gone up higher to find his gold.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone. D. G. Davidson with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.
