THE APPROACHING INAUGURATION.

On next Monday, March 4th, 1890, Benjamin Harrison will be inaugurated President of the United States.

It will be a grand occasion. Representative men and women of the North and the South, the East and the West, will join in a national pageant under the inspiration of American patriotism.

It would be alike contrary to the suggestions of reason, and the teachings of experience, to suppose that there could be absent from the occasion all semblance of partisan triumph and Republican exultation, but, it is pleasing to believe that a broader sentiment will prevail, compelling citizens of every political faith—statesmen and philosophers, orators and poets, mechanics and artisans, merchants and husbandmen—to participate in the great national jubilee.

At such a time there should be no exhibition of the spirit of bitterness. It is the beatific hour of translation in which the President rises from the murky atmosphere of party into the pure heaven of patriotism. No longer the chieftain of a clan; he becomes the ruler of a people.

Is Harrison equal to the occasion? Can he look with eagle eye upon the sun and rise above the clouds? Then, indeed, are we most fortunate.

If office holding is the ultima thule, the alpha and omega, of the successful party, Republicans only are to be benefited by this change of administration; but, if good government is the supreme object to be attained, a salutary influence will go out through all the land, blessing the poor in his cottage, making all the sons of toil clap their hands, and restoring government to its only legitimate object the happiness of the people.

There is no disposition manifested in any quarter to offer factions opposition to the Harrison administration. The country is in no condition for violent antagonisms. Besides, evidences are abundant that Harrison must follow in the wake of the Cleveland administration—not because of his conversion to Democracy, but on account of the evident necessity for the continuation of a policy essential to the national welfare.

But, is the body guard of the Constitution to be disbanded? Shall Democratic swords rust in their scabbards? By no means. Let the guard keep drilled, and our blades will sharpened. Let the Democracy rest upon their arms, and be ever ready alike to salute virtuous conduct and to defend the rights and liberties of the people.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

THIRD DAY.

Lieut. Gov. Holt called the Senate to order promptly at 11 o'clock. PASSED THIRD READING. To incorporate the Original Free Will Baptist Conference of North Carolina; to amend section 1,804 of Code, in relation to clerks of the superior courts, making annual statements of all moneys in their hands to annual section 104 of the code in relation to removals of proceedings in courts; to amend section 317, code, in relation to motions to vacate arrest or reduce bail; to amend subsection 9, code 155, code, in relation to code of civil procedure in cases of mistake and fraud; to annul section 3,466 of the code in relation to prison bounds.

THE SPECIAL ORDER.

Being H. B. 684, to provide for the regulation of the railroad freight and passenger tariffs in this State, was taken up on its second reading.

Mr. Emry sent forward an amendment to strike out sections 5 and 6 of the bill. Mr. LeGrand sent forward an amendment to strike out in section 17 the figures of $2,000 and insert $2,500, as the salary of the commissioners; also to strike out $1,000 and insert $1,200 as the salary of the clerk.

Mr. Payne spoke in favor of the bill, said it had become a necessity. It was within the province of the General Assembly to enact the law. It was not unconstitutional and he thought public opinion demanded its passage. It was not intended to inflict any hardships on the railroad corporations but to maintain a just and reasonable rate of freight and passenger tariffs. Mr. Payne made a most forcible and able argument from his position.

Mr. Kerr, opposing the bill, made a splendid legal argument against the passage of the bill. He was of opinion that it was in direct conflict with the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no State shall create any law which may impair any contract. He made a vivid comparison between rates in North Carolina without a commission and in Georgia with one. The remarks of Mr. Kerr were to the point, and a strong, forcible and logical argument from his standpoint.

Mr. Turner, of Iredell, had not prepared himself for a long speech upon this bill, but he favored its passage. He thought all the railroads of the State should be under the control of the laws of the same. He referred to the fact that the United States had a railroad commission; that 26 States had commissions and that 10 of the 26 were more stringent in their provisions than the one under consideration and none of them had been declared by any court to be unconstitutional. He referred to railroad building in this State and did not believe that the passage of this act would retard such work a particle.

Mr. Barber, in opposition to the bill, said the argument that public opinion demanded its passage was but a sentiment.

Mr. Lucas, being recognized, yielded, after stating that he noticed quite a number of bronzed faces in the lobby and galleries and desired to submit some clean cut remarks as a plain farmer on the bill under consideration, and the Senate adjourned till 8 p. m.

NIGHT SESSION.

Bills on the calendar of private nature were taken up and the following passed their third readings: To incorporate the Farmers' Co-operative School of North Carolina; to promote the immediate cultivation of shell fish in the State.

HOUSE.

The House was opened at the usual hour, 10 o'clock, with Speaker Leazar in the chair. The committee on judiciary reported favorably, a bill exempting telegraph operators from serving as jurors. Committee on military affairs, favorably, a bill for equalizing the appropriation to the State Guard among the several companies.

PASSED THIRD READING.

H. B. 612, incorporating the town of Soufletown, Greene county; H. B. 617, incorporating the Pender and Onslow Land and Improvement Company; H. B. 1,034, to make more effective proceedings before the boards of aldermen and other bodies.

WOMEN ARE FORMED FOR ATTACHMENT.

Their gratitude is unimpeachable. Their love is an unceasing fountain of delight to the man who has once attained it, and knows how to deserve it. But that very keenness of sensibility which, if well cultivated, would prove a source of a man's highest enjoyment, may grow to bitterness and wormwood if he fails to attend to it or if he abuses it.

Rubbish.

We talk of rubbish, refuse, waste matter; but to the philosopher there is no such thing. In the economy of Nature nothing is wasted. Reconstruction keeps pace with decay. Science, too, taking the hint from Nature, is continually applying to useful purposes materials which have apparently been exhausted of all utility, and often converts into objects charming to the senses substances which in their crude state are offensive and disgusting.

Fifth, that we would rather go a mile out of our way than encounter, used as a fertilizer, may enhance the perfume and beauty of the rose, or impart a rarer savor to the peach or the pear. From the waste matter of the gas works, black, foul, loathsome and tenacious, are derived some of the most delicate and fashionable colors of the day—magenta and magenta, for example. From the barrels of recreation which are set out on the sidewalk, the chiffoniers—literally "by hook and by crook"—extract merchantable "trash," the sale of which supplies them with their daily bread.

Not a gutter that has not some Pactolean grains, if we knew how to eliminate them; and fertilizers enough to enrich hundreds of worn-out farms pour through the culverts into the sewers of our city.

If there be anything in the material world which seems useless, it is only because man knows not how to turn it to account. Science proves the great Biblical fact that nothing has been made in vain, and at every stride it takes it develops new sources of wealth and enjoyment, making the world richer, happier, more contented, and increasing our admiration of the forecast and beneficence of the Creator.

Inherited Blood Poison.

How many people there are whose distress from sores, aches, pains and eruptive tendencies are due to inherited blood poison. Bad blood passes from parent to child, and it therefore is the duty of husband and wife to keep their blood pure. This is easily accomplished by a timely use of B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm). Send to Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, for book of most convincing proof.

James Hill, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "My two sons were afflicted with blood poison, which doctors said was hereditary. They both broke out in sores and eruptions which B. B. B. promptly controlled and finally cured completely." Mrs. S. M. Williams, Sandy, Texas, writes: "My three poor afflicted children, who inherited blood poison, have improved rapidly after a use of B. B. B. It is a Godsend."

J. R. Wilson, Glen Alpine Station, N. C., Feb. 13, 1885, writes: "Bone and blood poison forced me to have my leg amputated, and on the stump there came a large ulcer, which grew worse every day until doctors gave me up to die. I only weighed 130 pounds when I began to take B. B. B., and 19 bottles increased my weight to 180 pounds and made me sound and well. I never knew what good health was before."

ADVICE is one of the things most frequently given, but seldom taken.
