THE WASHINGTON CENTENNIAL. On the 30th the Centennial of the States, will be celebrated in the City of New York. It will be the occasion of a great military and givio pageant in which all the States and Territories in the Union will be represented and in which the State of North Carolina will have an honorable part. Governor Fowle has appointed a worthy delegation, headed by the courtly Stedman, to represent this commonwealth in paying appropriate honors to the memory of Washington.

Who can estimate the value of is exhausted in all lands and among all people, and still his name goes down the ages the and noblest deeds.

We trust that the Centennial Celebration of the event we comas and our posterity. We trust man and J, A. Provow. American patriotism will rerindle its fires the at altars of our beloved country will be more of its past history.

Let no North Carolinian, who has been appointed, by his Excelto the Washington Centennial, fail exalted privilege conferred by his commission. We trust that all will go and evince their veneration of the government founded by his fee will be very small. wisdom and defended by his valor.

BRIGHT SKIES.

Our skies are bright today. A merciful Providence has watched over us as a people, and enabled us to behold the centinnial of our national existence.

But, not alone as a nation are we ferored, and her people should acknowledge with thanksgiving the mder mercies of our God.

A FIGHT FOR LIFE.

Desperate Encounter With a Mad Dog. We wouch for the cold facts given as follows: On Thursday afternoon last Messrs. W. C. Leak ("Doe") and Henry Ledbetter were in the office of the Pee Dee Manufacturing Company, at work on the books. The cry on the outside of "Run Run! Mad dog!" caused them to jump to the door, when, to their consternation, in ran a little white boy named Barrett, hotly pursued The present is most propitious, and the future most promising.

The earth brings forth abundantly, in this time Doc and Henry were already fighting him with chairs, the dog dashing first at one and then at the other. The dog elamped his teeth once upon Doc's foot but, fortunately, did not penetrate to the skin. Blow after blow was dealt with the chairs, Doc's chair being broken by the force with which he struck; but the dog was unyielding until Mr. Will Steele would burst with fatness, and rushed in and hurled a hammer rushed in and hurled a hammer which struck the dog and stunned him so that Doc, against whom the brute's fury was chiefly directed, seizing the hammer, mashed in his skull at a heavy blow. He was skull at a heavy blow. The boys found, on examination, that his tongue was of a peculiar color and coated with mud, probably signs of his having wallowed on the ground in fits. His first apappearance outside the office was
