COMPANY DESCRIPTION OF THE PARK THE PAR

it is said to be the root is not in the article itself, which is as innocent and exemplary a commodity as you ahalf find in a day's journey, but in wretches who minuse as well as villify it. If the "representative of values" had a voice, and the world would listen to it, how hitterly it might retort upon its maligners. Fancy a thousand-dollar greenback, in the wallet of Dives Doubleshave, a railread wrecker, who will talk to you by the hour in his pious way about the deceitfulness of riches, thus addressing its owner:

"You contemptible scoundrel, the end and object of my creation, as you well know, was to assist in saving the Union, and to give the nation financial relief, but you have preverted me, you cut purse of the empire and the rule!" and by a mean fraud converted me to your own base uses. How dare you impute sin to me, the offspring of patriotism—pledged to noble uses but defiled, alas! by your felon fingers, and compelled ignominiously to minister to the cravings of your satanic instincts?"

In cases like this, is it not obvious that the man, not the money, is the root of the evil! If the circulating merits. For rale by E. N. Dufy, whole-that the man, not the money, is the root of the evil! If the circulating medium were indeed the source of all ain, how could the reverend clergy endure to take it in recompense for the shepherding of their flocks?

Really, it seems to us that money is the basis of more good, both spirtual and temporal, than evil. It builds and endows churches, sends missionaries to the heathen, feeds the hungry and clothes the naked; and as to thiorings, swindlings, and other crimes committed in the struggles to obtain it, they would be perpetrated just the same if it were not; for whatever honest men have that is worth possessing rascals will steal, and if there were nothing else to pilfer, they would rob us of our very teeth to keep their hands in.

Let money, then, be rated at its fair value, and not benated as an emanation of the Evil One. It promotes the highest virtues of his manity, and without its influence is may well be doubted if friendship honor and respect would not lack their most solid foundation. Looked upon in a presser light, a value of upon in a presser light, a value. ed upon in a proper light, a vement desire to accumulate a ment desire to accumulate a "big pile" of it by fair means is highly meritorious; and if men would drop the mask, and declare openly their motives and principles, what is now called idolatrous money worship might perhaps be considered a creditable reverence for a great social good.

I pray you, O excellent wife, cumber not yourself or me to get a curiosity rich dinner for this man or woman who has alighted at our gates, nor a bedchamber made at too great a cost; these things, if they are curious in them, they can get for a few shillings in any village; but rather let the stranger see, if you will, in your looks, accents and behavior, your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, which he may well travel twenty miles, and dine sparely and aloop hardly, to behold. Let not the emphasia of hospitality he in bed and board; but let fruth, and love, and honor, and courtesy flow in all thy deeds. I pray you, O excellent wife unrighteeness, the root of all evil, and other ugly names, which it by no means deserves. This abuse is simply popular hypogrisy. People who thus calcuminate cash love it in their hearts, and only rail against it to save appearances.

And why should anybody affect to despise money, or to account it as unclean thing? The evil of which it is said to be the root is not in the article itself, which is as innocent and examplary a commodity as you hall find in a large training to the courtesy.

We desire to say to our citizens that fer years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery fer Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitturs, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have wen their great popularity purely on their merits. For rale by R. N. Duffy, whole sale and retail druggist. Price per dozen bottles, $8.00.

This is a very practical age. The venerable motto, "Trust in God and keep your powder dry," has been translated thus by an old Iowa farmer: "Boys, don't touch these melons, for they are green and God sees you."
