THE JOURNAL.

WORTH AND WORTH.

JAMES E. ROBERTS.

They do the least
Who talk the most;
Whose good designs
Are all their boast;
For words are dew.

They do the most
Whose lives are spent
The sterling stamp
Of righteousness;
For deeds are true.

And if the heart
Be pure and good
The life will be
Just what it should—
Not dew, but true.

"THE SINEE IS KING"

The king had a horse, so loved and so dear.
He made him a foie-day once every year.
For Kincom—the name great treasure doth mean—
In beauty, outstripped any steed ever seen.

No stuffs were too rich, no gams were too rare,
For trappings, the king gave Kincom to wear.

To ride him, he chose a lad brave and sweet,
In truth he was fair, and worthy his seat.

No horse ever stepped so proudly and high,
The king, too, was proud when Kincom passed by.

His path strewn with flowers by all who saw,
This foie so splendid, the pride of Toisraw.

But prouder was one, that day in that town,
A shy little maiden, in peasant's gown.

Who sat in her heart, though giving no sign,
"The horse is the king's—the rider is mine."

How to Write an Advertisement.

Advertisers should generally write their own advertisements. The man who cannot do this is not fit to advertise, for if he don't know what he wants to say to the public, how can he expect it will pay him to expect large sums of money for the purpose of communicating with that public?

An advertiser without experience often writes an excellent advertisement, and many a notice is sent out which is made up on principles independent of English grammar and orthography, yet expressing the meaning in a manner which cannot be misunderstood, and showing the plain, straight-forward, honest intent of the advertiser in such a manner as to make it a most telling card. When an advertiser can write his own advertisements to suit himself it will be time enough to employ others to assist him, and he will frequently derive great advantage from such assistance. He must never forget, however, that as his own money pays for the insertion, he must use his own judgment in deciding what to insert.

There is one rule which has been found a good one by which to write an advertisement. It is to first write out, no matter at what length, all that it is worth while to say; next examine it critically, and expending upon it carefully, with the purpose of ascertaining how many errors can be stricken out without injuring the sense. It is rare to see a six-line advertisement which could not be expressed in five. An advertisement should be plain and honest. It should claim nothing which is not strictly true, but should be sure to claim as much as is true.

Whenever the case will admit of it, it is well to put in the words "send for a circular." A good pamphlet or circular setting forth the merits of the business is a good thing to have, and whenever a man invests a stamp to obtain one, he will look at when it comes to hand.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she stood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz. Thus wrote W. C. Hamrick & Co. of Shelby, N. C. Get a trial bottle at R. N. Duffy's whole sale and retail drug store. Wholesale, $3.00 per dozen.

"Excuse me, sir, but haven't we met before? Your face is strangely familiar."
 "Yes, madam; our host introduced us to each other just before dinner."
 "Ah! I was positive I had seen you somewhere. I never forget a face."

I HAVE been troubled with catarrh from boyhood, and considered my case chronic until about three years ago I procured ELY'S CREAM BALM, and I cured myself almost entirely, all from the use of one bottle. J. B. Conroy, New York.
