Mr. J. C. Moore, our postmaster' at Trenton, who has been sick for several days, is out again attending to his official duties.

The Jones County Institute opened Monday with a pretty good attendance of teachers. Processors Grady, Hester. and Miss Scarborough are here giving the teachers instruction.

The Fourth of July was a grand day at Trenton. The old veterans turned out from all sections of the country. After organizing the association, baskets, boxes, trunks, buckets, and several other different receptacles were brought in and emptied of their contents, and the large crowd marched up and appeared to be really satisfied. After dinner ice-cold lemonade was set out in several large tubs. All appeared good-humored, and everything passed off nicely. Why can't we meet every year on the Fourth of July and have these reunions and talk over the times that we had in old Virginia. Died, at his home near Trenton, on Wednesday last, July 19th, Mr. Peter Andrews, aged 69 years. Mr. Andrews was walking on his farm near his house, and was seen to fall, and was cead before he could be carried to the house. He had been in bad health for some time, but was able to go about and attend to his business. He was an excellent farmer, a good, obliging neighbor, a kind husband and indulgent father, and an honest, Christian gentleman, having been a member of the Baptist church for many years. His funeral was preached by Rev. G. W. Harrison on Thursday, largely attended by neighbors and friends. Mr. Andrews leaves a widow and seven grown children, with many grandchildren to mourn their irreparable loss.
