assecond-class matter. IS THE COUNTRY IN DANGER:

As Americans we are proud of our country. There is a natural inclination to extol its greatness tables. and celebrate its fame. While this is creditable to our patriotism, and consonant with our aspirations and our hopes, it is the part of wisdom to examine, to ascertain if our foundations are secure and the pillars of our national fabric strong and enduring.

We believe that the Union is more firmly established than ever, and that the future will be as the past has been, but more abundant. But, many, wiser than we are, see portentous clouds gathering on our political horizon.

Bishop Coxe contributes an article to the current number of the Forum in which he takes a gloomy view of the next century of the Republic. He thinks that "continued companied by Miss Nannie Sutton, the Constitution by our children's children is a consumation improbable in the extreme."

A Scheme Spolled. He looked very pale, tired and dejected as he threw himself on the lounge in the dark corner of the room.

"Mom, I'm so sick," he sighed, with a supdressed groan. "My poor boy! What ails you?"

"Sick."

"What made you so sick!" "Pa said at dinner time I would be sick if I eat another dumpling, but I didn't believe him; I eat another one and I'm sick."

"I'm sorry; I guess I'll have to give you a dose of castor oil." "I would rather be sick, ma, than to take oil." "Not if I put it in porter; then you won't taste the oil.' "I don't want the oil."

"Won't you, dear, if I give you a cup of jelly to eat to take the taste

"Give me a big piece of cake to ent with the jelly?"

"Yes, dear."

"And a big orange?"

"Yes, my poor sick boy."

"A big bunch of bananas and some candy?"

"Yes, dear."

Andy's father came in at this point, and spoiled the boy's prospect of a feast of good things. Going up to Andy and inquiring what the trouble was, Andy's voice became very weak, and in an almost inaudible whisper he gasped "sick." In fact his voice was so weak his sire was obliged to stoop down to catch the word, and at the same time caught the fragrance of a "twofor-five" breath.

"Sick, hey? Been smoking, hey, you young Arab! (Cuffs him.) Smoking cigars, hey? (Boxes his ears.) I'll teach you to smoke. Come along here."

And he takes Andy into the back yard and with a shingle persuaded him to never try again to obtain good things under false pretenses, while his mastood by ringing her hands in anguish at her dear boy's punishment and mentally voting Stock. Andy's father "a brute."-Detroit Free Press.
