Farmers Picnic at Ernuls.

A large crowd gathered at Ernnls near Street's Ferry to a picnic accord. ing to their annual custom. The indications of the weather were quite unfavorable. It seemed evident early in the morning of that day, that rain was on hand. A light sprinkle soon followed, the clouds stood firm and threatning; however the rain during any time of the day was only slight, but it deterred many from going, and also interrupted the speaker at the most interesting period of his speech. It did not rain enough to wet anybody, but it kept all a little uneasy. Ample refreshments of endless variety

Mr. F. C. Loops of Kinston is visiting our town this week.

The editor of the Sentinel spent several days at Morehead last week.

We sincerely hope it may be a cool day before we lose our excellant postmaster.

We are pleased to see Mr. B. Sutton at his post again after a little rest for his health.

What kind of fish is the"crocus?" We do not know, but a Kinston gentleman can give you all the points.

A slight jar of earthquake is reported to have been felt here ou Saturday night last by some of our people.

> Messrs. McCoy & Becton canvassed our town last week in the interest of a fine literary work and reading club, offering the advantage of low rates on the best standard works.

While at Morehead last week we had the pleasure of observing a baseball game played. The Goldsboro nine played the Beaufort nine Of course the Goldsboro nine got there. The Goldsboro nine was by odds in the favor of the on-lookers and we regret the "squall" that came up prevented us from waveing our best handkercheif in the general salute of victory. We can't see why our town don't organize a baseball club.

This is especially true of the works of Charles Dick-ens, and the most marvelously chesp cdi-tion of his works ever published is unques-lionably the "Bos" edition, now same by John B. Alden, the "Literary Revolution" publisher, New York, Chicago, and else-waere. It is printed in good, elear, large-faced nonpareli type (from the same plates as Appleton's Popular Lionary Edition, price per ast $10,00), double-column pages, small quarto form, easy for the eye, conve-nient to handle, and is handsomely bonn d in cloth, in eight volumes as follows:

Post, says:

"Sometime ago Dr. Hammond, ater years of patient research and experiment, proelaimed that death was not a necessity, and that the key lto perpetual mortal life was lying around somewhere in the immediate future. He claimed that all food was medicine, or mere fuel to the human machine. Once baving discovered the exact quality and quantity demanded by the several parts of the human organclaimed that death would be practically abolished. Dr. Hammond prophesied. Dr. Brown-Sequard has discovered it. It is, therefore, food. While Dr. Hammond gave more emphasis to the fact of youth and health may defy death.
