THE JOURNAL.

THE LIGHT-HOUSE.

Through the mist and through the spray,
Clearly seen though far away,
Stands the light-house towering high,
Pointing upward toward the sky,
Piercing through the midnight dark,
Speeds a ray to greet our bark,
Builds a path for it to keep,
Storm and wind may roar in vain,
Whirl the demons of the main
All unite in angry strife,
'Gainst the fragile vessel's life.
Bravely stands that single light,
In the grandeur of its might,
Does its duty, does it well,
Tells the tale it has to tell.

UNBELIEF.

There is no unbeliever,
Whoever plants a seed beneath the sod,
And waits to see it push away the clod,
He trusts in God.
Whoever says, when clouds are in the sky,
"Be patient, heart; light breaketh by and by,"
Trusts the Most High.
Whoever sees, 'neath winter's field of snow,
The silent harvest of the future grow,
God's power must know.
Whoever lies down on his couch to sleep,
Content to lock each sense in slumber deep,
Knows God will keep.
Whoever says "To-morrow," "The Un-known," "The Future,"
Trusts that power alone
He dares disown.
The heart that looks on when the eyelids close,
And dares to live when life has only woes,
God's comfort knows.
There is
And day by day, and night, unconsciously,
The heart lives by that faith the lips deny,
God knoweth "why."

THE LIGHT-HOUSE.

For two years I had rheumatism so bad that I disabled me for work and confined me to my bed for a whole year, during which time I could not even raise my hands to my head, and for a month could not move myself in bed, was reduced to flesh from 160 to 100 lbs. Was treated by best physicians, only to grow worse.

Finally I took Swift's Specific, and soon began to improve. After a while was at my work, and after the past five months have been as well as I ever was—all from the effects of Swift's Specific.

Getting Ahead of the Old Man.

A good story has never been told in print of royal Renben Wood, that genial friend to everybody, whose death was so widely mourned. He was a true son of good old Isaac Walton, an enthusiastic and successful angler, of course. One evening while in camp in the Adirondacks, he was challenged by a member of the party whose knowledge of angling was but slight. The conditions were that they should stand near each other by the side of a favorite pool, each casting into the pool during a period of fifteen minutes, the contest to be decided by count. Uncle Renbe's eyes glistened at the details of the match were considered, and at the same time he set about "making up" a new cast of flies, that he might be able to do his best when the struggle came the following day. It was prepared with all his wonted skill, cunning and delicacy, and laying the new "cast" and his cigar aside he lay down to dream of how he would lure the dainty trout to his reel. At the appointed hour the contest began, with the usual judges and a referee. The challenger oft and repeatedly led beautiful trout to his score, but Mr. Wood was less fortunate. He was not successful in "striking" his "rises," and only now and then did he secure a fish. Late in the contest he exchanged the leader he had made up so carefully for one which had been much used, and then his luck began; but it was too late, for when the time for the contest expired he was badly beaten. The real reason for his failure was kept a secret for some time, but it finally became known that while Mr. Wood slept the challenger had filed the barbs from his hooks. In no other way could that noble-minded man have been beaten.—Forest and Stream.

Hay Fever.

I have been a periodical sufferer from hay fever since the summer of 1879, and until I used Ely's Cream Balm was never able to find relief. It is truthfully said that Cream Balm cured me. I regard it as of great value and would not be without it during the hay fever season.—L. M. Georgia, Birmingham, N. Y.

I can cheerfully recommend Ely's Cream Balm to the suffering public for hay fever and stoppage of the nasal passages. I have tried it and find it gives immediate relief.—J. E. Rector, Little Rock, Ark.

Male and Hearty in Old Age.

What is more beautiful than an ancient tree clothed with an ample robe of verdure. Aft is the comparison between such a growth and an old man or woman infused with health and vigor. The sine qua non, the indispensable condition of vigorous youth, robust manhood and a virile old age, is sound digestion. Without this life is shorn of the hearty zest that should attend it. No more beneficent and agreeable contributor to the attainment of a hale old age, and efficient means of counteracting the indigestion that often attend life's decline, can be found than Hostetter's Stomach Balm. Dyspeptic symptoms, a tendency to kidney complaints, nervous inquietude, and rheumatic troubles are overcome by its use. The effect of exposure and over-work are nullified by it, and it affords efficient protection to all subjected to malarial influences. Give it a thorough trial.

REMARKABLE CASE.

For two years I had rheumatism so bad that I disabled me for work and confined me to my bed for a whole year, during which time I could not even raise my hands to my head, and for a month could not move myself in bed, was reduced to flesh from 160 to 100 lbs. Was treated by best physicians, only to grow worse.

Finally I took Swift's Specific, and soon began to improve. After a while was at my work, and after the past five months have been as well as I ever was—all from the effects of Swift's Specific.
