HENRY HALCOMBE TUCKER, D. D., LL. D.
 Rev. H. H. Tucker, a prominent Baptist minister at Atlanta, fell out of a second story window at Atlanta last Saturday, and after lingering three days died yesterday. He was a very gifted and eminent man. He was immersed in the river Tiber at Rome, being the first Baptist ever baptised in that river.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Dr. Tucker was a grand son of the celebrated Georgia divine, Henry Halcombe. He entered the ministry in early life, but was for the most part of it engaged in educational and literary work. We first knew him as a professor in the Southern Female College at LaGrange, Ga., and subsequently as President of Mercer University, and later still as Chancellor of the University of Georgia.

Dr. Tucker wrote and published several books of a very high order. His "Gospel in Enoch," is a literary gem and spiritual treasure, while his "Old Landmarks Reset" is one of the strongest of recent publications. At the time of his death Dr. Tucker was the editor of the Christian Index. There are many who believed that in his death the churches of the Southern Baptist Convention lost their ablest man.

EDUCATION.

If it be thought that the JOURNAL too often has education for its theme an adequate apology may be found in the importance of the subject.

Today, however, the mind of the writer is directed to the subject by the enquiry, addressed to us on yesterday; "what books ought I to study?"

It is usual for schools, academies and colleges to have courses of study, which matriculates are expected to pursue, published in their catalogues. It cannot be too often repeated that these institutions are but preparatory schools to the great university we all enter when we commence our life work in which we hope to make a living, and some day gain wealth, distinction, fame and immortality. The object of academic education is to train the mind—learn how to acquire knowledge, and how to apply it.

Then, in part answer to the particular question asked, we say, study those branches that most closely relate to the business that is to be your life work. Perhaps you have not decided to what calling you will devote your life. Then be directed by parents and teachers who will lead you in the way best suited to discipline the mind, and inculcate moral principle that are useful in all pursuits and helpful on all occasions.

It is certain that all men must come in contact with the world, and questions will constantly arise requiring the wisest judgment in their solution. Young men should accustom themselves to looking at both sides of questions, and expressing their thoughts in the most impressive manner. For this reason, and many others, it is to be regretted that the debating societies have lost the position they once held in academies and colleges. They have been supplanted by small secret associations which decorate themselves with Greek letter titles, but which, if they are literary at all, can never furnish the stimulus which the presence of a large audience always affords. The late President Barnard, in writing of this very thing, says: "I can only regret the change. It seems to me that with the loss of her literary societies half the glory has departed from Yale. In the old Lincoln Hall I spent many of the most profitable hours, of my college life, and I witnessed there some debates which for interest and brilliancy were equal to any at which I have been privileged to be present in assemblies of much superior dignity since. I would esteem it a great benefit if the societies could be resuscitated!" The same great educator further says: "In my view of the matter, a man's education must be mainly his own work. He may be helped or he may be embarrassed greatly by his environment; but neither books, nor teachers, nor apparatus, nor other surrounding conditions of any kind will be of any avail, unless he himself furnish the energizing spirit which shall put them to account. A mind is not moulded as an earthen vessel is fashioned by the hand of the potter. It molds itself by virtue of an inherent force which makes for symmetry or for deformity according to the direction given it by consciousness and will. Libraries, Universities, museums, and foreign travel are powerful auxiliaries to a man who is determined to be educated; but he will find them of no avail, if he makes them anything more than secondary instrumentalities in the work. On the other hand, no lack of such advantages will prevent a man from securing a valuable education who is resolved to educate himself. Witness, for instance, a Benjamin Franklin, a Hugh Miller, a Michael Faraday, and Abraham Lincoln."

OUR ALLIANCE COLUMN.

Let Us Sustr'n Our King.

BY L. E. D.

If producing but little cotton annually for five years raised the price of cotton from eight cents to forty cents per pound, what better proof do we need than this, of the fact, that we had better rest awhile on cotton. Do like causes produce like effects? If so, we can base a calculation. Do you want to double the price of cotton? If so, run the cotton fields on half time. I am going to lay down the assertion that there is an easy remedy for our embarrassments, and it is this: Raise no more cotton than we can manufacture in the States in which it is raised. Let the planters and the manufacturers agree. Let us give a monopoly to Southern factories and demand of them in return a stated price for our cotton before the crop is planted. Let us say to the manufacturers of each cotton State that we are going to control the price of cotton. Let us say to them, tell us the greatest possible number of bales that you can manufacture in 1890, and swear to them that we will not sell a single bale more than that amount for that year, provided, that they will give twenty cents per pound. For a monopoly in king cotton manufacture, they must give us a reward consistent with the endurance, the manhood and everything else required to keep one pledge. Then let the Alliance go to work in each State and apportion the acreage to the farms. Put one thousand Alliance men at work in North Carolina to get all the statistics that we need, and likewise a sufficient number in every State. The manufacturers can tell us what they can use. Our gatherers of statistics, can give us the names of every owner of land with his oath not to sell any more cotton for the ensuing year than may be allotted to him. Put in the field a well equipped corps of preachers, or lecturers, if you please, and let them stir the people, just as Patrick Henry did when there was a necessity for the revolutionary war, just as Yancy did in 1861. Let the people of this country know that our fortunes, our honor and our liberties are at stake. Let them know that our government, so beautiful in design must fall to wreck, and that our children, homeless, will be handed over to the control of money kings, from whom they may expect just such mercies as the poor of the old world receive from their lords. The people of the South have ever been equal to any emergency in hours of great peril. They were the first to make the "Declaration of Independence," and their every act during the war was consistent with it. What people have ever shown more willingness to endure for what they conceived to be right. Go with them through the dark days that shadowed them from 1861 to 1865. This fight will require no spilling of blood. The weapons will not be rifles, swords, and cannon; nevertheless it will be a fight for our homes and our firesides. People of the South buckle on your armor! You are well supplied with all the munitions of our needed for this fight. Your bodies are the arsenals, and magazines in which is stored an ample supply of everything that's needed. You will not be required to leave home, and join the tedious march to reach the battlefield. The fight will be at home where our wives and daughters can administer unto us when we are sick, and cheer us when we become faint. Put on your manhood, your honor and all necessary courage and endurance, and fall into ranks. Our government in this fight offers us all the protection we need.

Convincing Proof.

In many instances it has been proven that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm), made by Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga., will cure blood poison in its worse phases, even when all other treatment fails.
 A. P. Brunson, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I had 24 running ulcers on one leg and 6 on the other, and felt greatly prostrated. I believe I actually swallowed a barrel of medicine, in vain efforts to cure the disease. With little hope I finally acted on the urgent advice of a friend and got a bottle of B. B. B. I experienced a change, and my despondency was somewhat dispelled. I kept using it until I had taken sixteen bottles, and all the ulcers, rheumatism and all other horrors of blood poison have disappeared, and at last I am sound and well again, after an experience of twenty years of torture."
 Robt. Ward, Maxey, Ga., writes: "My disease was pronounced a tertiary form of blood poison. My face, head and shoulders were a mass of corruption, and finally the disease began eating my skull bones. My bones ached, my kidneys were deranged. I lost flesh and strength, and life became a burden. All said I must surely die, but nevertheless, when I had used ten bottles of B. B. B. I was pronounced well. Hundreds of scars can now be seen on me. I have now been well over twelve months."

Much as friends add to the happiness and value of life, we must in the main depend on ourselves; and every one is his own best friend or worst enemy.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors," which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can IT BE CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
 "My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Nauright, N. J.
