DICKENS' WORKS.

HOW TO OBTAIN THEM.

Any subscriber to the DAILY or WEEKLY JOURNAL, who has paid one year in advance, will be entitled to 10 per cent. discount on a set of CHARLES DICKENS' WORKS. For the money, this is the best edition on the market.

Compared with the cost of former, even recent days, it is amazing how the prices of standard books are now reduced. This is especially true of the works of Charles Dickens, and the most marvellously cheap edition of his works ever published is unquestionably the "New" edition, now edited by John B. Alden, the "Literary Revolution" publisher, New York, Chicago, and elsewhere. It is printed in good, clear, large-sized nonpareil type from the same plates as Appleton's Popular Library Edition, price per set $10.00, double-column pages, small quarto form, easy for the eye, convenient to handle, and is handsomely bound in cloth, in eight volumes as follows:

1. Martin Chuzzlewit.	8. David Copperfield.
2. Bleak House.	9. Christmas Stories.
3. Nicholas Nickleby.	10. Hard Times.
4. Uncommercial Traveller.	11. Pictures from Italy.
5. Pickwick Papers.	12. Oliver Twist.
6. Great Expectations.	13. Little Dorrit.
7. Dombey and Son.	14. Silver Ties.

Price per Vol. 45c. For set $8.00. Size of volume 5 1/2 x 7 1/4 inches; postage by mail, 12 cents per volume. Sample copies can be seen at this office.

THE JOURNAL.

THE MUMMY.

In these dim galleries of the world, Where bits of battered greatness lie, Lo! here, with eyes long sealed, am I, With blackened lips once proudly curled— Bound down and swathed, who was a queen, Gazed idly on by all who pass, All shrivelled, shrunk and put between These four walls of clear glass.

Three thousand years since that dark day, With sad chants flung on the red air, When the great bull Agis bare Beyond the Western hills away That which ye coffined here, Whose coffin painted was, and sweet With perfumes spilling from the bier Of scents sewn in my sheet.

Great pomp there was that buried me; The boat that carried me by night Was hued with trappings gold and white, Had muffled oars that dipped the sea, Broad oars that swung out measuredly, And swept by silent state along Beneath its shadowed canopy, With sounds of sullen song.

With funeral jars and offerings Engraved with long forgotten signs Put in stone with curious lines, And blazoned with strange patterned things.

Like unto those that banded me Above the place where I was hid, Red painted on my canopy, Gold on my coffin lid.

So to my sepulchre I went, With dull-winged scarabaei dried Laid in the hollow of my side, Fragrant with myrrhs and borrowed scent Hedged from Ambition's tireless strife, Out of the palace put away, From languid loves too weary life, I, who was, am not, yet shall be, Lie straitly here, who reigned a queen, A handful of fine dust between Four walls of glass for all to see, With bits of battered greatness near. Dwell on it, ye who idly pass My body's shell uncoffined here Behind these walls of glass.

Demorest's Magazine.

Where everything is exceptionally good, it is difficult to make a selection of the very best; and this is the dilemma we find ourselves confronted with each month when our favorite periodical, Demorest's Monthly Magazine, arrives. The October number is bristling with good things. To start off with, the colored frontispiece, "The Wedding Trip," is a lovely picture in the same style as "A Yachting Party," given in the previous number, and follows naturally in sequence; for is not a yachting party often a forerunner of a wedding trip? In addition, there are nearly 150 other illustrations, including a very interesting series showing various kinds of "Human Habitations." Then among the stories are one by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and one ("The Little Rebel") about Abraham Lincoln, and one for "Our Girls," about "A Butterfly in Harness." Christine Terhune Herriek defines in "A Bow of Ribbon" the mission and sphere of that decorative trifle; "The Chemistry of Cooking" is discussed in simple and intelligible language; and "Malaria: Its Cause and Cure" furnishes numberless suggestions about that fell disease so prevalent at this season. Besides, there is a Supplement to the Fashion Department, embodying lots of ideas that will be of great assistance in planning the winter outfit. But every one needs to have this comprehensive Family Magazine every month. It is published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York.
