WE like spice even if there is a little pepper in it, and so enjoy the following from the Post: "The colored men assembled in convention at Indinapolis showed wisdom in the resolutions they adopted concerning the war made upon their race in the South. They resolved first to lay their grievances before the governors of the several States in which the war is carried on, then to lay it before the courts of those States and then to lay it before the high court of Heaven. If this purpose is carried out we believe that in the end the colored people will get their case into a court that will listen to the evidence. The trouble, however, is going to sail this morning.

In Memoriam.

"The Rev. Dr. W. M. Robey is dead. This is the news that flashed over the wires on Saturday the 14th of September, which brought sadness to many hearts throughout North Carolina. But we hear the voice of Jesus saying to "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die," and hence we know that our true and tried friend is not dead, but living in a far better country and joining in his loved employ, telling the story of the cross.

In the removal of Dr. Robey to the church triumphant I have lost another of my strong friends. It is only a few years since I made his acquaintance but I soon learned to love him and that Mr. Jas. A. Bryan and wife left for love has increased with the days and

Years. Dr. Robey was a good preacher and will be remembered as such in time to come. I once heard the late Dr. W. H. Barker say that he heard him preach the best sermon he ever heard from the text, "Lord, to whom shall we go that hath the words of eternal life?" I shall remember some of the few sermons I have heard him preach as long as I live, and think we will talk them over in the city of our God, when I too shall go
