EDISON on leaving Paris gave $2,000 to the poor of the city.

CHOLERA has made its appearance in Bagdad and the disease is spreading in western Persia.

SENATOR DANIEL, speaking at Roanoke said Mahone was jealous of the devil and wanted to turn the State into an organized hell.

THE Chicago Times has struck a keynote, so to speak. It urges that less money should be spent upon the school buildings and more upon the school play-grounds.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE friends of higher education must be gratified to learn that John Hopkins University has not suffered pecuniary embarrassment to the extent that was supposed. It has recently received some $300,000 in legacies and gifts.

We indulged the pleasing hope that Governor Lowry had put an end to prize fighting, but the lionizing of Sullivan may have given fresh impetus to the barbarous practice. One day this week a prize fight took place at St Louis in which Thomas E. Jackson was killed by E. Ahearn.

ONE of the most beautiful traits in the character of the late S. S. Cox, was his intense love for his mother, who died shortly before he went as Minister to Turkey. He wrote to a friend then, that the death of his mother was the greatest affliction he ever knew.—Wilmington Star.

OUR only hope is in standing fast by a solid Southern principle, from which neither the mah's money can buy us, or the rich man's government can bully us. The day is coming—and it is nearer at hand than we think for—when the South will be the sheet anchor of the plain white man's liberties in this country.—Columbia Record.

We have said many times before that the South is the great break-water against centralization and anarchy, and the time may come before this country ends when a Southern army will have to march into the North and save free institutions and to protect the people in that boasted land against nihilism and death.—Wilmington Messenger.

OUR Northern friends need not give themselves any uneasiness about the Southern question. There is no fear of negro domination, even with the aid of Federal legislation enacted by the Republican party. Negro rule is a dead issue in Southern politics. What we most need in the South is a healthy public sentiment to protect the negro in his personal rights as a citizen and a man, to punish the lawless white man who violates the law, and to prevent a recurrence in the South of the cruel and cowardly outrages which have recently disgraced our State.—August 21-1m.

LOCAL NEWS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.
T. A. GREEN—Lost.
B. & L. Ass'y—Annual meeting.
C. E. SLOVER—Evaporated apples, &c.

Cotton comes in slowly.

The coming of Robinson's circus next Tuesday is being hailed with delight by many.

The thermometer registered as low as 44 degrees on Wednesday night in this city.

A large number of the colored elite of the city were at the depot yesterday to take leave of Bishop C. C. Petter, and bride, who left for San Francisco.

Sraw hats and soda fountains, and other emblems of summer, received a set-back yesterday from which they will probably recover in about eight months.

Mr. John S. Manix was the first city taxpayer to respond to the call for city taxes. Four others, including Major Palmer, for Messrs. Moore & Brady, paid before the call was made.

Besides his day school, Prof. W. R. Skinner has opened a night school, and we are glad to know that he has good patronage. With the opportunities offered today, there is but little excuse for any young man not obtaining a fair education.

The play, "Streets of New York," which is to be presented at the theatre next Monday night, is written by Dion Boucicault, after which he was immediately recognized as a playwright of renown. It is a comedy drama and full of thrilling scenes. Besides here, the company stops at only four other places between New York and New Orleans.

Shipping News.
The steamer Manteo of the O. D. line will sail today at 12 o'clock for Norfolk.

Steamer Defiance, of Clyde line, arrived last night from Baltimore with general freight. Sails this evening.

Schooner Mary S., of New Berne, is on Howard's ship railway for repairs.

Gov. Fowle Welcomed.
The following telegram received last night gives expression to the warm welcome tendered Gov. Fowle on his arrival at Morehead City:

MOREHEAD CITY, Sept. 19, 1889.
Governor Fowle arrived here tonight and was met by the band and a large concourse of citizens. A speech of welcome by Mr. John D. Davis was made. Governor Fowle replied in a beautiful speech. A reception will be given to-morrow night at Beaufort. Chadwick's friends are happy. O.

Drowned at Sea.

In the press dispatches of September 16 we note that five men were taken off the water-logged schooner Carrie Hall Lister, Capt. Howland, by a vessel when off the North Carolina coast. The Carrie Hall Lister, we learned yesterday, was bound from New York to Beaufort, with a cargo of stone. Capt. P. T. Howland, of Beaufort, was master of the schooner. The vessel became water-logged and unmanageable. During the storm Capt. Howland was washed overboard and drowned. The remaining crew were taken off by a passing barque.

Water Supply.

The hydrant placed in front of the cotton platform was tested this afternoon. The supply of water from Major Dannon's water works is inexhaustible. A three quarter inch stream through one hundred feet of 1 1/2 inch hose was thrown over the three story exchange building.

This hydrant was placed there by Mr. Wm. H. Olyer, at his own expense and has caused a reduction of 1 per cent. on the cotton on the platform. There are from 12,000 to 15,000 bales of cotton placed on this platform, representing from $800,000 to $700,000 each season and the reduction makes quite an item in the cost of insurance.

Personal.

Mr. J. T. Lincoln and family of Bayboro have returned from a visit to Currituck county.

Mrs. Basil Manly returned from Hillsboro last night.

Gov. Fowle passed down to Morehead City last night.

Hon. F. M. Simmons is in the western part of the State.

Mrs. B. H. Windley returned from western North Carolina last night.

Hon. C. O. Clark returned from Raleigh.

Col. Jno. D. Whitford and grandson John left yesterday for Washington, D. C.

At the Hotel-Albert: W. B. Spiers, Richmond, Va.; John A. Ross, New York; M. Odell, Cape Henry, Va.; C. E. Fowler, Bonwell; D. B. Hooker, Dr. F. E. Green, Bayboro; B. E. Odell, Norfolk; John Sanders, Pollockville; C. M. Rosenblatt, New York.

We Insist.

We insist that New Berne is the best home in the world. Provisions are abundant and cheap, the climate salubrious and delightful, the people hospitable and charitable, and the schools good and abundant. We insist that New Berne is a good place for business. One railroad and several lines of steamboats afford ample means of communication with the surrounding country and the Northern markets. We insist that New Berne can furnish as eligible sites for mills and factories as can be found on this continent. We insist that factories can be established at a hundred points of easy access to the outside world by means of the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad and the Neuse and Trent rivers. We insist that the country tributary to New Berne can produce enough cotton to furnish ten first class mills employing five thousand operators. We insist that the native woods in the vicinity of New Berne are equal in value and variety to those of any section. We insist that enterprising citizens have shown conclusively the riches of our native forests, and that very many industries can be built up and sustained by their contributions. We insist that the most beautiful and servicable plate, the most elegant and substantial furniture, the lightest and strongest carriages and wagons, the most elaborate public edifices and the finest private residences have been made of Craven county timber, and the supply is well nigh limitless. We insist that the way to do a thing is to do it, and that if something is not done divorces will be in order. We insist that people possessing advantages of situation, climate and productions, who do not move to the front, cannot sustain their claim to reputation and character by quoting the sayings and referring to the works of their ancestors.

Y. M. C. A. Work.

Mr. L. A. Coulter, State Secretary for the Association in North and South Carolina, has been in New Berne a short while and made a good impression on the young men that he met while here. He held a conference with a number of gentlemen Tuesday night at the rooms of the association and made a splendid talk about what these organizations are accomplishing throughout the country.

Mr. Coulter is a man of energy and well informed and devoted to the cause in which he is now laboring. His principle object was to examine into the practicability of establishing a general secretary in New Berne. The interest in the association here is reviving and with the co-operation of our citizens we think its usefulness could be doubled and quadrupled. The young men are endeavoring to help themselves and with a little aid and encouragement from the public we feel assured that they will have no cause to regret it. All young men and boys have some time for recreation and if a good place is not provided for them they are liable to seek worse.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

From the State Papers.

Raleigh is to have a $50,000 union depot.

The Fayetteville Observer came to us last week enlarged and improved. It is issued semi-weekly now. An excellent paper.

Wilmington Star: Large bales of cotton seem to be the style this season with the farmers. A number have been received weighing over 700 pounds each.

Wilson Advance: Wilson county will be one of the best tobacco counties in the State in the not distant future, we verily believe. We hope yet to see the town of Wilson filled with tobacco factories which use the tobacco raised on our lands, and sold in our own warehouses.

Raleigh News and Observer: There is a movement on foot, we are told, to establish at an early day a cotton mill in this city for the spinning of cotton bagging alone. We understand the machinery is not very expensive and that the farmers are willing to take stock in the factory.

Goldboro Argus: There was a happy social event solemnized at Mt. Olive yesterday morning; the marriage of Rev. J. B. Harrell, pastor of the Baptist church at Kinston, to Miss Effie Kelly, a charming and widely popular young lady of Mt. Olive, Rev. J. S. Dill, of this city, officiating.

Charlotte News: Charlotte's handsome and elegant Young Men's Christian Association building in this city, will be dedicated on the 23d inst. by Rev. R. C. Pearson, the evangelist, who may justly be considered the father of the building. Mr. Pearson will conduct a week's services in the building. A male choir of 40 voices will assist him.

Hookerton Clipper: No joke bagging in the market, and we don't think there will be this season.—We are pained to chronicle the death of Mr. C. F. Edwards of this place, which sad event occurred Monday, the 9th inst.—Rev. Mr. Thompson closed his protracted meeting here last Friday night with nine additions. Revs. Nathan Hooker and Mr. Crisp assisted him.

Trapping and Hunting Bear, Panther, Wild Cat and Wolf in Craven Co.

The writer has hunted many times with Mr. Lewis, though barely recollects Capt. Pasteur. With his sons he was present when Governor Spaight and John Stanly fought the duel. Pasteur, as an officer, was sent to arrest them, but was deterred by his cousin, Dr. Pasteur, Spaight's second, who threatened to shoot him if he attempted it, and no doubt would have done so, as he was a man of courage and violent temper when aroused. He was the chief owner of the celebrated privateer Snap Dragon, which played such havoc with British commerce in the war of 1812, when commanded by Capt. Burna. Edward Graham, the father of the late Mrs. John P. Daves, was the second of John Stanly. Spaight fell on the fourth fire, mortally wounded, and was carried to his house, now the residence of Major Dennison, then overlooking the palace and square. But I have gotten far away from my hunting expedition and must return to it.

We referred to bears being fond of acorns, and in attempting to procure them would sometimes subject themselves to no little peril—to sever if not fatal accident in case of a fall. After climbing the tallest oaks they push themselves out on the limbs and with the fore paws bend in the twigs within reach with the acorns on them. Mr. "Gid." Sparrow, of Smith Creek, the father of Mr. Thomas Sparrow of Aurora, informed the writer that he was one night hunting bear thus engaged in feeding. It was cold; the mud and water was frozen some under the oaks where he was alone. In a tree ahead of him he heard a bear pulling in and breaking the twigs, keeping up considerable noise. While he was stealthily approaching, his whole mind absorbed in the game there and his eyes strained to see it, he heard a crash directly above, and in an instant a bear was partly on him and both buried in the ice, mud and water. "Which was scariest," Sparrow said, "will never be known. When I came to my senses I was going one way and the bear t'other as fast as my legs could carry me. So, too, was going the bear, neither stopping till we got home. I forgot I had a gun, that was left in the mud, and when I went back next day for it I had not gotten over the fright and would jump at the crack of a stick."

He went on to say, never before or afterwards was he so demoralized in hunting bear or anything else. The fact is, Mr. Sparrow was an intrepid hunter, and was as easy in the thick swamps at night alone as most persons are in their houses. He would plunge through the ice for ducks and geese he killed (and he shot a great many) without any more hesitation than others would take a summer bath. But such exposure was too much for the strongest constitution, and it finally brought him to the grave in the very prime of life.

We have spoken of bear swimming Neuse river. We have heard our fathers tell of one climbing in a boat with a single occupant. An old white man named Furlow had been to New Berne and bought a little pork and meal. Returning home, when opposite the marshes two or three miles above town, he heard something in the water behind his canoe, in which he was sitting in the stern, paddling. Looking around he discovered a large bear close upon him. Rushing forward, he lost his paddle overboard in the excitement, and the bear crawled in behind, taking the old man's seat, who now sat on the head-cap of the boat. Bruin eyed him awhile, apparently with intense interest, and it may be supposed the first occupant was not indifferent to the presence of his unwelcome companion. All this went on silently for awhile, when bruin broke the solemn stillness by reaching down on the basket near him and drawing out the pork and began to feast without asking the owner leave, or offering to share with him. Through with the meat, he pulled out a small bag of meal, and not stopping to untie it, tore it open, and sticking his cold black nose into it and drawing the dust into his nostrils, gave a snort to clear them, and soon devoured that. Now, again eyeing the old man, and licking his mouth with his tongue, as much as to say, "I may try you next." The companion of bruin at any rate so believed. During this time the canoe had been turning round and round and drifting towards the swamps on the north shore, which it finally reached, when they both beat a hasty retreat without standing upon the order of going. Fortunately for the old man, the bear boarded his canoe or "dug out" over the stern; if it had been attempted over the side it would undoubtedly have capsize.

There was a man on Little Swift creek many years ago that bore the marks of a bear's claws on his breast, received when a child at home in the house. The males were all off at their usual employment and the females at home preparing dinner, when a bear suddenly appeared in their midst. It was customary in those days in many country houses to ascend to the second story on a ladder, which in their consternation they did pulling it up after them, leaving the little boy below. His screams soon attracted the attention of the bear, which turned and slapped him down and resumed eating what it could find; then left the premises, making off leisurely for the woods.

Dyspepsia
Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. We know of no remedy for dyspepsia more successful than Hood's Sarsaparilla. It acts gently, yet surely and efficiently, tones the stomach and other organs, removes the faint feeling, creates a good appetite, cures headache, and refreshes the hardened mind. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial. It will do you good.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the members of the New Berne Building and Loan Association will take place at the Y. M. C. A., rooms at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening Sept. 25th, 1889.

J. R. B. CARRAWAY,
Secretary.

TO DISPEL COLDS.

Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them use Syrup of Figs.

Snow Hill Baptist: We were informed yesterday that a colored woman on Mr. L. E. Pritgen's farm near here, awoke the other morning and found a large snake in the bed with her, and she at once vacated, leaving the snake in full charge.—Stagers among the horses here has assumed the form of an epidemic. Ten or fifteen have died in this county within the last ten days. An autopsy made by Mr. Lassiter on his horse, showed that the blood around the brain was in a clotted condition and very dark; also the veins about the head were full of dark clotted blood.

Pimples, boils and other humors are liable to appear when the blood gets heated. To cure them, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.
