A FAR-OFF LIGHT.

We have received, through the courtesy of W. G. Brinson, Esq., of New Berne, a copy of the "Solid Midnoon," published at Duray, Colorado, by Day & Atkins. It is as bright as a star, and as sound as it is bright. Following we give two or three specimen paragraphs:

"In the October North American Review Jeff. Davis gives Lord Wolseley a thorough turning over. Jeff's advanced age has not impaired his intellect, and only the brightest minds earth have any business monkeying with the 'old man.'"

"Secretary of War Proctor wrote the Governor of North Carolina in regard to the proposed removal of Geronimo's band to the western portion of his State, and the Governor immediately suggested to Proctor the propriety of locating the renegade Apaches upon the portions of Vermont now being abandoned by white people. It was a happy and appropriate hit."

"While in the Senate Mr. Harrison said: 'I earnestly hope and pray that no President will ever be mean enough to violate civil service rules.' But then Mr. Harrison is President by proxy only, he isn't a real President."

A NICE KETTLE OF FISH.

"Montana went Republican after all!" Indeed! On what ground is she claimed as Republican? Not on the popular vote, for that is conceded to the Democrats. But they say, "four hundred employees of the Anaconda Mines who could not read or write English voted the Democratic ticket because told to do so by their employers, and but for this there would have been no Democratic majority in that State."

This is a bold assertion that is not supported by the evidence in the case. But suppose it is true, what then?

It used to be said that "what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." They say, "men who cannot read or write English cannot be expected to understand the issues in an election." Apply this to Republicans, and how many votes will the G. O. P. get in the South? Ninety-nine hundredths of them vote without the least conception of the political issues involved. The Republicans claim on that score is nonsense. The only thing apparent on the surface is the fact that qualifications for votes in Montana were not strictly enough drawn to meet the present emergency. The law was framed by Republicans, and if it has worked against them it is because the popular majority is on the side of the Democracy.

We would be very dull, if in the light of experience we were not prepared to see Montana counted as Republican. Memory has its uses. The lessons of 1876, when Hayes was counted in, despite the election of Tilden, have not been forgotten, and those of 1888, when working men were driven to the terrible alternative of being sold like sheep in the shambles, or see their wives and children die in want and wretchedness are fresh in the minds of the people.

Such has been the brazen effrontery of oppression that it is no wonder many assume that the idea that this is a government of the people is to be relegated to the limbo of forgetfulness, or is only to be thought of among the improbable things of legendary lore. But we cannot believe that so great degeneracy will ever befall a people who were born free and have ever been jealous of their liberty.

The vote of Montana must stand as deposited at the polls. The vote of an unlettered white man for the Democrats is as good as the vote of an ignorant blackman for the Republicans; and upon that issue we are ready to go before the country. Let the Republicans join issue if they dare!

Mothers and Daughters.

It is a curious fact that mothers of ability frequently have helpless daughters, and that mothers who are by no means what is called "capable" in Yankee land and "clever" in England, have daughters who can turn their hands to anything.

The reason, however, is very simple. The capable mothers, feeling a certain pride in their capability, are loth to allow their daughters to help them. They desire them to feel that mother makes the best cake, does the nicest needlework, orders the house better than any one else; that her dealings with tradesmen are to the advantage of the family; that she cannot be cheated in the quality of goods; that she can entertain guests more charmingly than her daughters can.

In this natural delight in being esteemed by her girls, she forgets that time flies, that they will soon become women, that she must grow old. She does not teach them to tread in her footsteps, but represses any of them who are inclined to do so. She is very apt to say: "You cannot do it as it should be done, my dear," and so the girl becomes timid. She depends on her mother, often even for the arrangement of her hair, the purchase of her articles of finery. She comes to her mother to ask what she shall say when she writes a letter; she sits blushing in the background while mamma talks to her friends; she remains a child in feeling long after girls who are brought forward are women. And all this would be very pleasant if time could stop and the family circle remain as it is forever.

Alas! this cannot be. Changes come with the years; the girl marries and the head of a family of her own. She has no mother to guide her, or to advise her. It is too late to learn what she should have been taught in her teens, or earlier; her will is good, but she cannot regain her lost ground. All she can do is to teach her daughter to be as much like her own lost and adored mother as possible.

The little creature is pushed forward, is advised, has lessons in everything, and the hereditary ability crops out in her after skipping a generation. The daughter of the woman who "never could do" a thousand things that it is useful that a woman should do, is one of the most wonderfully capable women alive. Probably she repeats her grandmother's mode of procedure, making her own daughters incapable thereby; and so the game of lives goes on.

I believe it is possible for mothers who are useful in this world to make their daughters, even more useful than themselves, and they should remember this. The pride of being all in all at home, the desire to remain in every respect the head of the house, should not blind a mother to the fact that her daughter's future happiness must depend on the daughter's being able to take the same position in the home of her husband; and that the greatest tribute a woman can offer to her mother's memory is expressed in the words:

"She taught me all I know. She made me all I am."—New York Ledger.

A Valuable Remedy.
A letter from S. P. Wardwell, Boston, says: "I used Clarke's Extract of Flax (Papillon) Catarrh Cure in June last for Hay Fever with great satisfaction, and find it is the only thing I have seen which would allay, without irritating the inflammation of the nostrils and throat. Its soothing and healing properties were marked and immediate. Large bottle $1.00. Clarke's Flax Soap is the latest and best. Try it. 25 cents. Ask for them at F. S. Duffy's drug store."

You cannot exhaust excuses. They are more numerous than the hairs on your head. But you can take them up and bind them in one bundle, and mark it "Lies, Lies, Lies."

A SAFE INVESTMENT.
Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy from our advertised Druggist a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of Throat, Lungs or Chest, such as Consumption, Inflammation of Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Croup, etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. Trial bottles free at R. N. Duffy's, wholesale and retail druggist. Price per dozen, $3.00.

Destroying Moths with Salt.

For moths salt is the best exterminator. The puns in one of the hospital convalescents have tried everything else without success, and their experience is valuable, as they have so much clothing of the sick who go there, and strangers, when dying there, often leave quantities of clothing, etc. They had a room full of feathers, which were sent there for pillow making, and they were in despair, as they could not exterminate the moths until they were advised to try common salt. They sprinkled it around, and in a week or ten days were altogether rid of the moths. They are never troubled now. In heavy velvet carpets sweeping them with salt cleans and keeps them from moths, as particles of the salt remain in the carpets and corners. Salt is not hurtful to any one, and has no bad smell. Here is a little hint I add, which, perhaps, every one does not know: For cleaning wash-basins, baths, etc., use the same thing, common dry salt. Rub a little of the salt with your fingers on the basin. Often a sort of scum is noticed in the basins in a marble washstand in the bathroom; the salt takes it off easily, and leaves the basin shining and clean.—Philadelphia Press.

Confidence Begets Confidence.
A mendicant approached a benevolent-looking gentleman the other day and said: "Dear sir, I have lost my leg." The benevolent-looking old gentleman replied, as he hurried away: "My dear friend, I am very sorry, but I have not seen anything of it."

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.
Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's.
Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered."
Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.
Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.
Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine.
