UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE proclaimed in Brazil.

The first Congress will assemble in Washington City on next Monday.

The present position of France shows that the Republic is stronger than ever.

The spread of Republican principles is indicated by the revolution in Brazil, and the tendency to revolution in Canada, Cuba, and Australia.

The canvass for Speaker of the House of Representatives has practically narrowed down to a contest between Reed of Maine and McKinley of Ohio.

NORTH CAROLINA showed to advantage in the personnel of her statesman at her centennial. Not many states can produce on one occasion three such men as Fowle, Ransom and Vance.

WHY should the rumored revolution in Brazil put up the price of coffee or interfere with the supply of rubber? The Brazilians are not going to blockade their own ports. Philadelphia Ledger.

This will be an active week with Republicans at Washington. The Republican members of the House will hold a caucus on Saturday to nominate candidates for Speaker, Clark, Doercker, Postmaster and Chaplain.

JOHN SULLIVAN is about to arrange for another prize fight. John has an engagement with the superintendent of the Mississippi penitentiary for a year, and it is hoped that he will make no arrangements to conflict with that. Macon Telegraph.

The Augusta Exchange has invited the members of the International American Conference to visit Augusta. The City Council sends a similar invitation. Augusta is the largest cotton manufacturing centre in the South. Wilmington Messenger.

The absence of Mr. Jefferson Davis from the Fayetteville Centennial was a matter of universal regret, but his admirable letter was in some measure an atonement for his absence. It is probably the last public utterance of Mr. Davis, and it is with great pleasure we present it to our readers.

The confederation of the Australian colonies is but a prelude to their independence, and when federation shall have accomplished its perfect work there will arise in the southeastern seas a great nation, which will take its place in the allied sisterhood of republics under the name of the "United States of Australia." Washington Post.

It need should happen to be elected Speaker he can shape the committees as it pleases him best, and the representatives of wool-growing constituencies may be able to arrange the Ways and Means Committee so to secure a free wool clause in the tariff bill which will surely be a feature of the Fifty-seventh Congress. Toledo Blade.

The worst feature about tobacco is its tendency to become a habit. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures tobacco by purifying the blood.

LOCAL NEWS.

We are requested to ask all persons who attend church tonight to take their Gospel hymn books.

Two services will be held during the Fife meetings, one at 10:30 a. m. and one at 7:30 p. m.

Wake Forest College football team played the Chapel Hill team on Friday. The result was a victory for the Wake Forest boys, by a score of 18 to 8. A game between Wake Forest and Trinity is billed for next Thursday.

Mr. C. P. Stepper, of Calypso, N. J., has been in the city a few days looking for the best land for the purpose of growing tobacco. He is particularly interested in the soil of the Wake Forest and Trinity farms, and especially adjacent to New Berne, can scarcely be surpassed.

Members Rudolph Ulrich and Thomas F. Hargis have returned from that sporting expedition which was announced in the JOURNAL a few days ago. They covered themselves with glory. Just read: "Two deer, one big bear, eight brants, thirty-four partridges, twenty-six doves and eight rabbits." The JOURNAL returns thanks for a quarter of fine venison. Vive la Ulrich and Hargis!

Mayor's Court.

The following cases were disposed of yesterday:

Caroline Jones, chap. 5, sec. 3, riotous and disorderly in the city limits; submitted; taxed with cost, or 30 days on the streets.

Daniel Tables, chap. 5, sec. 3, disorderly; taxed with cost, or 30 days on the streets.

Thos. Chase, charged with violating chap. 5, sec. 4, of the city ordinance; dismissed.

Branson's N. C. Almanac, 1890.

As a hand book, for the people, it is full of what is daily needed by each and every citizen. Mr. Branson has compiled this book for twenty-three years, and has studied to put in it, the time of holding the courts, all the officers of the State and State institutions; also many valuable receipts for daily use; also many wise sayings in brief form. The people hang it in the chimney-corner and refer to it all the year long. It gives them much useful knowledge about the State.

Annual Reports.

The reports read at the Methodist church on Sunday night show that the affairs of the church are in a prosperous condition. Reports were submitted by the pastor, the superintendent of Sunday-school, the president of the church Working Society, the president of the Woman's Missionary Society, the president of the Sunday-school Missionary Society and the Church treasurer. The total income of the church was $3,200; new members, 109; loss of members, 67; total membership, 561, 510 belonging to the Centenary church and 51 to Hancock street church. The congregations at the Centenary church Sunday were very large.

THE FIFE MEETINGS OPENED.

Evangelist Fife Arrives, and Commences a Union Service under the Auspices of the Y. M. C. A., at the Baptist Church.

Large Concourse of People Out to Hear Him.

Evangelist Fife arrived in New Berne on the train last night, and commenced in a series of meetings that had been previously arranged for.

Mr. Fife is a man of more than medium stature and stout in proportion, and while prepossessing in looks, what impresses you most, after having heard him, is his great earnestness, candor, and warmth of soul and brotherly love.

The church filled up early, some time before the hour of service arrived. Mr. Fife did not go in the pulpit at all, but stood just in front to make his remarks. To begin with, that grand and inspiring old hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," was beautifully sung by a trained choir, the audience joining in. He said that he had no text for this occasion, but would make his remarks general and in a rambling way. With reference to New Berne, Mr. Fife said that it was with pleasure that he was here, at the place of his birth and where he was partly reared.

"To begin with," said he, "while in our city I am going to tell some plain facts, and back them up. At some places he had made people mad, but if there were any here, he would inform them that the doors and windows were open, they were free to leave, and if they did not want their voices exposed, they had better stay away." Particular stress was put on getting Christians to aid him in the work; every one, even the smallest child, could do something.

"Some tell me they can't do anything, that they break down. I say keep on breaking down. If you can't be a head-light or a light-house, be a little tallow candle. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father, which is in heaven." Let us worship God instead of any particular denomination. We want more Christianity and less aristocratic religion.

Mr. Fife is undoubtedly earnest in his mission, and speaks as one sent of God. He talks plainly and fearlessly and as a man who has given himself up entirely to the service of his Master in the salvation of souls.

Two services will be held each day, 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Last Thursday's Storm.

Rev. Mr. Love, from Bayboro, was in the city yesterday and gave some further particulars of the cyclone that passed through Beaufort county last Thursday. He says that the track of the whirlwind was from southwest to northeast and that the house of Richard Phillips, colored, that blew down and killed him and five of his children, was one of the most remarkable instances ever known. The building was one story with an attic in which one of the boys was sleeping. It was broken in twain, the upper portion with the boy in it taken up and carried away and neither have been found yet, though there was a rumor yesterday across Neuse river that the dead body of the boy had been found.

Two men who were on Indian island about two miles in Pamlico river report that the storm passed near them and that with other debris they discovered the ruins of a house.

In some places large trees two and three feet in circumference were snatched up by the roots and others broken and twisted off and hurled away in one mighty mass of ruins.

Craven County Superior Court.

The court convened Monday at 11:30 o'clock, Judge E. T. Boykin presiding.

The grand jury was drawn and N. M. Gaskill was appointed foreman. There are five colored men on the jury.

The Judge's charge to the grand jury was elaborate and comprehensive. He spoke about one hour and forty minutes, being very deliberate and explicit in style. His Honor is rather a young man, probably 40, is a widower, and of pleasant appearance. He was graduated from Trinity College. This is his first term in this county. In his charge he said that the grand jury's duty was a work that could not be performed by any other functionary of the law. That jurymen should be honest, trustworthy, representative men, the true exponents of the intelligence, integrity, and the moral and social standing of the county.

He said that it was the duty of the grand jury not to consider who has violated the law—that is, whether the guilty person is a man of education, a prominence, one who has, seemingly, the respect of the community, or one who lives an obscure life, and has no social standing—but it is their duty to consider the fact that the law has been violated, to investigate the case and indict the guilty person. It is not proper, just nor decent to discriminate, to consider who the offender is. The honor of the grand jury must be without reproach, else there is no correct appreciation by the people.

There are many offences that do not effect any particular individual, from a moral standpoint, any more than they do the community.

He then called their attention to offences that should come under their notice. He mentioned particularly the crime of bigamy and also fornication and adultery. The happiness and safety of society, the prosperity of the community and the State, depend upon the preservation of the moral code, the purity and integrity of social life. The laws in regard to married life should be rigidly enforced. Wherever there is civilization, wherever there is Christianity, wherever there is an advanced standard of society, monogamy prevails.

In almost every community there are men more or less prominent, men who have the respect of the community, seemingly, men who figure in public affairs, who live lascivious lives and are still tolerated by public sentiment. His Honor asked the question, "Do you know of such a man in the county?" And then he said, "His education will not excuse him, his prominence, political or otherwise, will not vindicate him. You would not be true to your duty, if you considered the man's station in life."

He went on further to say that the basis of our society, our social system, our home life, is the character of our mothers, our wives and our daughters. Barbarism would obtain, were it not for the influences and the associations of virtuous, refined women.

His Honor spoke at length concerning such offences as are mentioned above.

He then called attention to the statutes concerning riotous and disorderly conduct, selling liquor to minors (probably a hundred indictments might be procured in this county), embezzlement, false representation of goods, etc., cruelty to animals (any person inflicting a wanton punishment upon any animal, such as the horse, mule, ox, etc., by over-driving or overloading, or by not properly feeding and caring for it, is guilty of a misdemeanor). He closed his remarks by calling attention to the duty of the supervisors of the public roads to make a special examination of the roads once a year and report at the fall term of court. If the supervisors do not do this they are guilty of a misdemeanor. Also it is the duty of the grand jury to examine the jail, the court house and the poor house and report on the condition of the same.

The petit jury was impaneled. This jury is composed entirely of white men. The court took a recess until 3 p. m.

In the afternoon session the State docket and the civil docket were called and cases for trial noted. The civil cases for trial were referred to the calendar committee.

The grand jury reported a true bill in the case of State vs. Jesse Brown for murder of Francis Ann Harris. The prisoner was arraigned for trial. Solicitor White and C. R. Thomas, Esq., appear for the State and J. E. O'Hara for defendant. A special venire of one hundred was ordered to be called, from which to select a jury to try the case. The trial is set for Friday.

His Honor announced that the court would not be in session on Thanksgiving Day, that he would not furnish the lawyers an excuse for staying away from church.

The court took a recess, until 9:30 this morning. Becham's Pills act like magic on a weak stomach.

Corn Flour.

Mr. J. M. Patrick, a very social and cultured gentleman from Lenoir Institute, Lenoir county, is in the city for a week or two visiting relatives. Mr. Patrick brought with him an ear of corn, the variety of which is destined to become extensively used. He also has a sample of the corn ground into what appears to be a medium quality of flour. When kneaded, it has all the adhesiveness of wheat flour, and when baked it can scarcely be detected from the best biscuit. Mr. Patrick does not claim that it equals the finest flour, but says that it is a good substitute for the average flour used and that in swamp lands this corn is very prolific. He thinks it should be introduced especially in the counties of Pamlico, Beaufort and Hyde where wheat does not thrive on account of the rust.

Another industry Mr. Patrick tells us about is the growing of cane. Besides for home consumption, he thinks it can be readily marketed and made a profitable crop. The syrup to a great extent can be made to take the place of sugar and in no way can it be classed along with the store article of molasses that has had all the sugar extracted from it.

Sunday at Christ Church.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—It was a day of joy and sadness beautifully blended in the services at Christ church last Sunday. It was joyful because the beloved rector had an infant son presented for baptism, in which he was made a member of Christ, a child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of Heaven.

It was sad because it was the last Sunday's service that would be given by the Rev. Mr. Shields, who has so long and so faithfully ministered to the congregation. The text was from the Epistle to the Hebrews, 13th chap. and 17th verse. An able exposition of the true relationship between a pastor and his people was delivered, and must have impressed all who were so fortunate as to hear it.

The appeal was more for the incoming rector and the future of the congregation, than for the retiring one who is so soon to leave for a distant field of labor. I could not ask for space to print the whole discourse, but must beg the privilege of giving the closing remarks.

The reverend gentleman said he would like to close without any words as to himself, but the necessities of the case seemed to demand it.

"For myself, brethren, I have nothing to say. All that is to be said for or against my ministry among you will be said and made manifest by Him to whom I must give account. On that awful subject I am not able to judge. But you and I will know when the JUDGE speaks at the last day, for I believe that we shall stand before Him together."

But for you, I can say that to most of you I owe love and gratitude for many loving kindnesses in word and deed to me and my house. For loyalty and reverence because of the sacred office I have borne among you. For friendship and love which have lightened every care and sorrow that I have had. But above all, I thank you who have believed in me as a laborer worthy of his hire, and of the Gospel that I have preached unto you; and who have believed that it has been my unfeeling purpose to live the truth which I have preached, in sincerity of heart. Neither you nor I know now whether I have been worthy of this reverence, this confidence. We shall know in the end.

"But I will cherish that as the greatest blessing I have ever had; it is worth more to me than any gift on earth. And the memory of it will be strength, courage and inspiration to me to the end of life."

"And you who have been able so to receive and bear me in heart and mind cannot lose your reward for your loyalty and your charity."

"He that received a prophet in the name of a prophet, shall receive a prophet's reward. And he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, shall receive a righteous man's reward."—Matt. x, 41.

I came to you, and, as I trust, have lived among you, with the full purpose of bearing witness to the life and love, mercy and power of our Lord, Jesus Christ, so now I commend each one of you to His mercy and grace, and bid you farewell in His name."

There were many weeping eyes during these remarks, and many hearts were grieved at the parting with one who has been so faithful to his trust, so sympathizing in affliction, so consoling in trouble, and above all so Christ-like in his daily walk and conversation.

It will be remembered by most of your readers that Mr. Shields has accepted a charge in Jacksonville, Fla., and that Rev. Mr. George has accepted a call to this parish, and will be here about the first of January.
