It is with great pleasure that we notice the resumption of the publication of the Asheville Citizen.

We are not surprised. We did not believe that the progressive people of Asheville would permit so excellent a paper to fall for want of proper appreciation and adequate support.

Ripe strawberries in town. Isaac Powell, residing on Queen street, has some nice strawberries just about ripe, raised in his garden. They are large and of good flavor.

A gentleman in this city received a letter from a friend in New Bedford, Mass., a few days ago, in which the death of Mrs. Kingman, nee Miss Fannie Terry, was announced. Miss Terry visited Miss Katie Daniels of this city last summer and during her stay here made friends and acquaintances who will regret very much to learn of her death. She was married last October.

The Kinston Free Press says: "Mr. L.

M. Nash and Miss Bettie Kinsey were married on Tuesday morning, Dec. 24, in the Disciples church, Rev. B. W.

Nash officiating. The following gentlemen acted as ushers: Messrs. McD.

Taylor, T. R. Rouse, A. F. Moses and

Will Nash. The bride and groom took the cars immediately for Goldsboro to spend a few days with the groom's relatives. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Nash a long and happy life." The JOURNAL extends congratulations and wishes the newly married couple a bright and happy journey through life.

CONFIRMED.

The favorable impression produced on the first appearance of the agreeable liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs a few years ago has been more than confirmed by the pleasant experience of all who have used it, and the success of the proprietors and manufacturers, the California Fig Syrup Company.

SHALL NEW BERNE PROGRESS?

No. 19.

At the election to be held next Thursday, 9th inst., every one possessing the privilege should vote. Those in favor of the proposition to subscribe to the capital stock of the New Berne and Oswalo Railroad should be certain to vote their conviction, and those who are opposed should do likewise.

Upon this very important question every one should show his hand; there should be no dodging, no "running with the hare and holding with the hounds," no sitting astride the fence to "flip," as interest may dictate, but each and every one having the right should go to the polls and vote "for" or "against." In this way only can public sentiment be correctly arrived at, and after the result shall be made known, the fellow-who-knows-it-all, will be cut off from telling you how it would have been had there been a full vote.

This election differs in an important respect from any other held in the city, as a majority of those who vote will not determine the question, unless they also constitute a majority of the registered vote. In other words, in order to carry the proposition a majority of the registered vote must be polled for it.

Hence the importance of every friend of the measure, not only voting himself, but seeing to it that others who may be lukewarm or indifferent are brought out, and asked to do their duty to themselves and New Berne. No event has taken place in New Berne, within the memory of any of the citizens, that equals in importance the question to be determined on next Thursday, and a failure to realize this by permitting the defeat of the question would be indeed lamentable.

Let every friend of the measure, from now until the polls close, constitute himself an earnest worker in the cause, and seek to arouse that interest that will result in a sweeping victory.

Let it be borne in mind that "subscription" must have a majority of all the votes that are registered.

Those who register but do not vote are counted as voting "No." So the friends of the enterprise must exert themselves to get those whose names are upon the books to come out and vote "For Subscription." Z.

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.

In the long ago New Berne was the chief city of this grand old Commonwealth. To it the people came from afar with their country produce, and returned to their homes laden with wares and merchandise. We remember the stories that our fathers used to tell us of New Berne as it appeared to them in the bright morning of their manhood. It was the emporium of commerce, the seat of learning, and the home of affluence, refinement and hospitality.

Today, why is New Berne, amid all the whirl and excitement of the world's progressive development, so nearly stationary and silent? Has physical causes neutralized her energies? Has the religion of Christ steepled her intellect? Has the republic of letters been crushed beneath the iron hand of material despotism? Nothing of all this. New Berne is still the seat of letters and the home of refinement, but the world at large cares little for this.

The musical ripple of the Neuse and the Trent are unheard amid the roar of business that surges beyond her. The business men of New Berne have permitted themselves to be over reached by the business men of other ports, and the gloom that now envelopes her is the mist of unemployed opportunities, the fog of old fog notions.

But how shall it be in the future?

There is no fog that the sun cannot
