A SONG OF THE SEA.

Adown the bay, upon their way,
 The white ships leave the lead,
 Two sun-brown children, at their play,
 Are seen upon the strand.
 No clouds are in the sky above,
 The air around is still:
 They dream their early dream of love,
 As young hearts always will.

The moments fly. The years go by,
 With all their weal and woe,
 Along the bright and shining sand,
 Two lovers gayly go;
 They watch the white sailed ships depart
 And melt in misty air,
 They wonder if their blended lives
 Will be as bright and fair.

They part upon the sandy shore:
 The lover sails away;
 The maiden sees a stately ship
 Pass from the peaceful bay.
 Then like a snowy bird it wanes
 Upon the tranquil deep;
 And twilight falls upon the world,
 As lonely as sleep.

Above the bosom of the bay,
 The full-moon gladdly gleams,
 The restless ripples rise and fall,
 Amid its silver beams.
 The breeze grows brisk; the billows rise,
 They soon are tipped with foam,
 While, gazing at the quiet skies,
 The sailor dreams of home.

The waves grow white, dark falls the night;
 The storm clouds slowly rise,
 They hide the shining stars from sight,
 That deck the midnight skies.
 Then o'er the deep the dread winds sweep
 And howl along the strand,
 White wild, the bounding billows leap
 And surge upon the sand.

Above the bosom of the bay,
 The red sun gleams once more;
 And thro' the haze, purple air,
 It shines upon the shore.
 The wind above the weary waves
 Has died into a moan,
 Adown the damp and shining sand
 The maiden glides alone.

Along, with fleet and nimble feet,
 She hastens on her way,
 Nor heeds the wide returning tide,
 Approaching from the bay.
 She pauses, with a sudden cry
 More dreadful than the storm,
 Half buried in the shining sand,
 She sees her lover's form.

Then, sinking down with dripping gown,
 She waits in wild dismay,
 Gone is the gleam of her sweet dream,
 So bright but yesterday.
 With sullen pride, the cruel tide
 Arises round her form;
 She cries to greet the sailor love
 Who perished in the storm.

When tempests sweep along the deep
 The fishermen can hear,
 Above the gale, a woful wail
 Of agony and fear.
 And when at night with mystic light
 The bright stars shine above,
 The spirits of the lost are seen,
 In death they meet and love.

much of the commercial fertilizers and commence utilizing their rich swamps by composting it with another of Eastern Carolina's inexhaustible products—oyster shells burned to lime. Just try it, farmers of Jones, and see how cheaply you can renovate your old worn-out fields, which if not helped in some way in a short time, must be turned out to grow the old-field pine.

Cancer of the Nose.
 In 1874 a sore appeared on my nose, and grew rapidly. As my father had cancer, and my husband died of it, I became alarmed, and consulted my physician. His treatment did no good, and the sore grew larger and worse in every way until I had concluded that I was to die from its effects. I was persuaded to take S. S. S., and a few bottles cured me. This was after all the doctors and other medicines had failed. I have had no return of the cancer.

HOME AND FARM,
 LOUISVILLE, KY.
 The Leading Agricultural Journal of the South and West.
 Made by Farmers for Farmers.
 As a record of successful agriculture, HOME AND FARM has no equal. Every topic relating to agriculture is openly discussed in its columns by the farmers themselves. No expense is spared in securing a full account of every notable success on the farm. It is distinctively the FARMERS' OWN PAPER.
 A record of their daily life, presented in a form and language which make it plain to all.
 ITS LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS
 Contains the names of the most progressive farmers of the South and West. They do not treat of theoretical farming, but of the actual conditions which confront us to-day: B. F. Johnson, Willie B. Brown; Henry Stewart; John M. Stahl; A. P. Ford; Jeff Welborn; Hugh T. Brooks; John C. Rigler; Steele's Bayou; T. B. Baldwin and a host of others make this journal indispensable. Moreover, it is equally
 A HOME MAGAZINE.
 Every subject of interest to the home-maker is fully treated: Mary Madden, Lois Catechy, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Davison, Miss Cabell, Miss Mosby, Alice Winston and a score of others will contribute regularly.
 FAITH LATIMER
 is in charge of our Children's Department, and is the peculiar faculty of being both interesting and instructive.
 THE MYSTERY OF THE NATION
 is a thrilling story appearing in HOME AND FARM, by John E. Busch, and is exciting world-wide attention. Short stories by distinguished writers appear from time to time.
 BILL ARPS LETTERS appear in each issue, and this humorous philosopher was never more interesting than at this time.
 IN ITS EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT
 HOME AND FARM speaks boldly and fearlessly in behalf of "Farmers' Rights." It favors a revision of the tariff in behalf of the farmer; it backs the farmer for the farmer; it backs delivery to the farmer; it backs the farmer's rights, and it backs the "Bull Trust." Its motto is "For the Trade and Farmers' Rights."
