Mr. J. W. Walker, of Durham, is in the city.

Missee Mary and Bettle Gibbs have let us ask what are their wrongs, about which they are so incensed? This is the monstrous indignity, (for this includes them all) simply this and nothing more. They desire to be men, and since they were created women, they cannot possibly become men.

When God created man He made Adam first, then, seeing that it was not good for man to be alone. He gave to Adam an helpmest in the person of that God in pronouncing upon Eve the penalty of, her disobedience, tells her that her husband shall rule over her, not she over him.

penalty of her disobsdience, tells her that her husband shall rule over her, not she over him.

All through Holy Writ we learn that woman should be an halper—one whom it shall be a joy to protect and to honor, to love and to cherish. So we find that God intended woman as an helpmest, not as a ruler, as our friends, the advocate of woman arights, would have you believe. If woman becomes a politician will she still preserve her purity and honor? We well know that a political life does not call forth the purest and noblest elements of the human unture. When she begins to serve the nation as a public ruler what will become of her honor? Where will her sons receive the training which they need, in order to become honest, useful citizens? Who will lead her daughters in the paths of uprightness and virtue? While she is travaling through the land lecturing on the tamperance question, if we want to see her busband we shall find him in the nearest bar room, rather than in the place known as his home. The grog shop has fascinating attractions, his home is desolate. True temperance and true reform should begin in the home, and not until they gain a firm foothold there will they accomplish any permanent good.

The truest, purest, and best of women do not desire the right of suffrage. They are cognizant of the fact that by the attainment of such a right they way of exalting their influence and blessing mankind. In the proper management of their homes, in the wise training of their children they exert could possibly put forth by either voting or by holding the reins of power in their hands. Undoubtedly the home is woman's proper sphere. By her grace and adorn that sphere as it can be graced and adorned by none other than a woman. The family is her kingdom, her throne is in the hearts of its members, her sceptre is love, and if wisdom share the throne and the scepter, there is no power so great, no monarchy so absolute, no realm so-vast or so happy as is hers. The destiny of the family lies in her hands, and since the family is the foundation of both church and State, she stands at the head of national as well as private, spiritual makes upon their minds results in the weal or woe of the nation.
