A POOR excuse: "I'm broke."

We salute the people of Kinston. We understand that they are coming in masses to the Fair. A royal welcome awaits them.

SIX KING MILAN of Serbia has lost 300,000 francs gambling at Monaco. It was probably a case in which a pair of knaves beat a king full.

We are authorized by the management to say that ample arrangements have been made for the accommodation of all who will attend the Fair.

The New York Sun calls on the Democratic newspapers to stop abusing Democrats. Mr. Grover Cleveland will, no doubt, be pleased to learn whether or not the Sun proposes to take any of its own very good advice.

When Mr. Cannon called for the previous question yesterday, with a view to cutting off debate on the Rules, and found himself deserted by more than a score of his Republican colleagues, he must have felt like spiking himself.

The Republican party in Connecticut, Senator Hawley's State, is in a bad way. One of the most influential of its leaders declared the other day that "only an act of omnipotence" could save it from defeat.—Charleston News & Courier.

The debate on the new House rules will be historical. There is a chance for some one to make himself famous—we mean, of course, some Democrat. The Republican leaders have already made themselves infamous.—Kansas City Times.

Mr. Reed is not much of a Clear after all. The Democrats demanded a set of rules for the government of the House and the man from Maine had to yield. The Democratic minority is making a good fight. It has won the first knockout.—Houston Post.

The leading Republican papers of the North say there is now as great an exodus of negroes from Kansas as there was to Kansas ten years ago. They are returning South or going to Oklahoma in swarms. Why, Mr. Ingalls—Ottawa News.

We take off our hat to the Goldboro Argus. The papers of this State are very generous, but the Argus has something to say for the New Bern Fair every day. It is pleasant and fortunate to have such a neighbor as Goldboro and such a champion as the Argus.

On Wednesday the Senate passed a joint resolution congratulating the people of the United States of Brazil upon their successful adoption of a republican form of government. The House will probably reach it in time and the recognition business be formally concluded.

As a general rule, it is said to be very difficult matter to gauge the speed of fishes. The fast fishes are trim and pointed in shape, with their fins close to their bodies. The dolphin and bonito are thought to be the fastest, and, although their speed is not known, they are fully capable of twenty miles an hour.

The opposition to Senator Vest's re-election cannot be successfully accused of modesty. However, there is a general impression in Missouri to the effect that it is taking advantage of its only apportionment, and intends to have all the fun possible. In the mean time, Mr. Vest remains serene and undisturbed.

CONGRESSMAN CRISP, of Georgia, who has been making himself prominent of late, is a son of an English actor of repute. The elder Crisp supported Mrs. Mowatt when she first went on the stage. He afterwards settled in Georgia and died there." This writer frequently saw "The Crisp Family" in that state. The present Congressman was a little boy then, but gave evidence of future greatness.

WONDER if Benjamin Harrison ever thought that the interest he is taking in Illinois politics would be the means of sending Gen. John M. Palmer to the United States Senate in the place of C. B. Farwell. Should that be the case he can mark Illinois down as between Benjamin Harrison and Grover Cleveland in 1892 that it would be Grover Cleveland's every time.—Illinois Herald.

THE OYSTER PIRATES.

The Oyster Commissioners, Messrs. Ellis and Lane, Have Worked a Change in the State of Affairs at the Oyster Grounds.

The following, taken from a letter written by a correspondent of the Elizabeth City Economist, will give an idea of the work done by the Commissioners, who went down from here, some time since, to untangle things at the disputed oyster grounds:

"COINJOCK, N. C., Feb. 6.—Since my last report from Coinjock, times have materially changed here. We can no longer cry out dull times, for it is now very brisk here. Money is plentiful, at least in the hands of our local J. P., he having in the last few days made the "oyster pirates" dance to the tune of near $800 in fines, costs, and bonds. On Saturday night last, February 1, the oyster patrol boat Maudaymette, having on board Messrs. Wm. Ellis and F. B. Lane, of the oyster patrol, with a crew of five men, arrived in our port and at once proceeded to business by capturing a fleet of eleven vessels loaded with oysters, on their way to the waters of Virginia and Maryland. The patrol men made complaint to J. P. Henry Welstead, who issued warrants for the arrest of the masters of the vessels, who were forthwith invited before the court to answer to the charge of violating the laws of North Carolina, against the peace and dignity of the State. Each one pleaded guilty and paid into the hands of the J. P. $25 to cover fine and costs, after which they were discharged and allowed to proceed. On Monday night another fleet of ten vessels were stopped and the captains before were invited into the awful presence, where one gave bond for his appearance at Superior Court; three entered into bonds of $100 each for appearance at court and deposited the amounts of $100 in the justice's hands as security. The others pleaded guilty, and opened their pocketbooks, paid their fines, and entered into a solemn oath not to again violate the oyster laws of North Carolina. Since then seven more have been captured, paid their fines and taken the oath. This makes a total up to the present writing of 25 who have paid fines ranging from $5 and costs (in the case of one boy) up to $25, or given bond.

"Some of the captains were a little stiff about being arrested, using threats, according to report, of cutting down the bridge, using lead, etc., but as yet everything is quiet, except rough language which frightens nobody, and which the patrolmen only smile at and seem to care nothing for. Bluff game seems to take no effect here. The patrolmen say they are sent here to put a stop to the illegal carrying of oysters from the waters of North Carolina, and they intend to discharge that duty, but by pleasant means if possible. Several of the oystermen expressed their intention of returning at once for another load, but as yet none have gone back.

"An oysterman has written a letter to one of our prominent citizens here requesting him to use his influence among the people here to prevent the oystermen from being molested, or in other words, to prevent the officers of the law from discharging their duty."

The Economist publishes the original letter referred to above, and we give a copy, as follows:

"LAKE LANDING, HYDE CO., N. C., Jan. 31st, 1890.

"MR. THAD. HALL,
Coinjock, Currituck Co., N. C.
Dear Sir:—The oyster catchers, and the carriers engaged in the business from 'Gull Rock,' desire to obtain your assistance in preventing any stoppage of oyster boats at the bridge in Coinjock. There are two men on the way from this place to Coinjock for the purpose of arresting oyster boats at the bridge. The names of the men are Mr. Ellis and Mr. Lane; both belong to New Bern. Mr. Ellis is commissioned as patrol by Hyde county, and Mr. Lane is commissioned by Carteret county.

"These men pretend that a United States marshal is to meet them at Coinjock for the purpose of boarding and searching vessels for oysters. We believe that the money to send these patrol out is furnished by Moore & Brady, the cannery house men in New Bern. We believe that a man of your standing and influence in your community can prevent any annoyance being suffered by the boats which pass your place.

"The Governor of North Carolina has lately been down to Portsmouth among the oyster catchers, and told them personally to sell their oysters to any one who would pay the highest price for them, and that he would not have anything to do with any attempt to break up their market.

"The patrol men who had heard of the opinion of the Governor in the matter were exceedingly abusive in reference to him and spoke disrespectfully of him, which shows plainly that it is only an attempt of a Baltimore cannery house to oppress the native citizens of North Carolina who are obliged to obtain their livelihood from the water. Hoping to obtain your valuable aid and influence in preventing the oppression of the oyster catchers of North Carolina, I remain,

"Your most obedient servant,
"H. M. WARBURTON."

"I hereby certify that the above is a true copy of the original letter now in possession of Mr. Thad. Hall of this place."
Coinjock, N. C., Feb. 7th, 1890.

"HENRY WELSTEAD, J. P. [Seal.]"

The views and opinions of Mr. Warburton seem to have been greatly changed when he wrote the following letter to Mr. Ellis a week later:

COINJOCK, N. C., Feb. 8th, 1890.

MR. ELLIS—Dear Sir:—Having recently written a letter to Mr. Hall, of Coinjock, in relation to the oyster patrol and the gentlemen composing the same, I deem it a duty and pleasure to contradict certain statements which were put in that letter through misinformation. While at Gull Rock the only two gentlemen of the party with whom I became personally acquainted were most courteous and agreeable, both to myself, personally, and to all the people engaged in the oyster business at that place. In fact, as you yourself were one of the gentlemen and Mr. Lane was the other, your recollection of the day partly spent in your company will corroborate my statements. I was most anxious and desirous that you should stay over with us and become personally acquainted with the people of this little neighborhood, but as your time was limited you were unable to comply. Sometime after you left I heard reports very detrimental to the patrol party, and under the excitement produced by these reports I wrote a letter to Mr. Hall, which not being read over at the time, and being immediately sent off, was treating you very unjustly. The gentlemanly and courteous and considerate way in which the business at Coinjock has been conducted has been a credit to you and to all concerned, as I have myself been an eye witness to the whole proceedings today. The reports I had heard, which was the cause of this letter being written, I found upon personal examination to be entirely unfounded. The oyster boats were allowed to pass through with little delay as possible, and even Virginians themselves were most agreeably surprised at the politeness and consideration shown them. I was surprised to find a sentence or two in the letter in relation to the Governor of the State. I suppose that hearing a report which was circulated around to the effect of what the Governor is reported to have said at Portsmouth, I inadvertently put it in the letter in the form of a statement, but as I have never been to Portsmouth in my life, I of course could only speak from rumor and not from knowledge. What I misunderstood and mistook for disrespect to the Governor was qualified by the fact being stated that such rumors were false, and if such rumors were true, then the Governor would be acting outside the line of his duty and they would disagree with him.

The report that Moore & Brady had started the patrol I now think is most decidedly unfounded, because the patrol then would have naturally acted in a manner to inflict the most injury and annoyance upon rival oyster buyers and not to perform a duty in the impartial and kind manner in which they, the patrol, are at present working at Coinjock. I have had the pleasure and honor of an introduction to Mr. Hampton, the Representative of Currituck county in the Legislature, and find that he is desirous of using all his influence in any way that will contribute to develop, protect and enlarge the oyster beds of North Carolina. I believe that Mr. Hampton and Mr. Ellis, from conversation with them, are opposed to steam dredging on the natural rocks, as this is the greatest enemy that the oyster industry in the future will have to contend against. I earnestly hope that, now a decided policy has been inaugurated, all friends of the oyster industry will unite and secure such legislation as will make the oyster beds of North Carolina furnish employment to the greatest possible number of men, and not allow iron engines to drive the individual oysterman to the poor house.

I remain very truly yours,
A. M. WARBURTON.

Of course Messrs. Moore & Brady have had nothing to do with the sending out of the patrol boats to guard the rights of the citizens of North Carolina in this matter.

Following are the names of the boats captured, the masters and place they hail from:

MARRIED.
On Sunday, February 9, 1890, at Amity church, Pamlico county, Mr. Jackson Brinson and Miss Beatie Pickett, Rev. J. B. Parsons officiating.

Buried Alive.

There is a place on the bank of Trent river, just above Blade's mill, where the people of James City got white sand. The bank slopes up from the water several yards and then rises perpendicularly about ten feet. A great deal of the white sand has been dug out and thus a large hole was made in the bank. On Thursday Rosanna Latham, wife of Henry Latham, of James City, sent her two little children, a girl about seven years of age and a boy about five, to the "sandhole" to get some sand. The children not returning as soon as expected, the mother went in search of them. On reaching the place it was seen that the hill-side had caved in upon the children, smothering them to death. They were buried alive. It was considered dangerous by the crew on a vessel lying near the place to go into the hole and they accordingly warned a woman who came there during the morning for sand. The sand had become wet through from recent rains. The children, however, not thinking of the danger, ventured into the hole and met their fate.

Coroner Oden was called, but he considered an inquest unnecessary. It was evident that the children had gone into the place on their own accord and the hill-side had caved in upon them.

PERSONAL.
Mr. J. W. Walker, of Durham, who has been in the city for a few days, returned home yesterday.

Miss Jennie Myers, of Washington, who has been visiting Miss Maude Amyette, left yesterday on the steamer Manteo for her home.

Miss Mary Stewart, of Clinton, sister of Mrs. H. W. Battle, arrived last evening and will remain until after the Fair.

Rheumatism
Is undoubtedly caused by lactic acid in the blood. This acid attacks the fibrous tissues, and causes the pains and aches in the back, shoulders, knees, ankles, hips and wrists. Thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla a positive cure for rheumatism. This medicine, by its purifying action, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, and also builds up and strengthens the whole body.
