BLAIR is playing the assassin. The national Educational bill is his victim.

A GRAND Confederate reunion of the Veterans of all the Southern States will be held at Atlanta April 26th. The brilliant John W. Daniel, of Virginia, will be the orator of the day.

THE Progressive Farmer has entered upon its fifth year. It is ably conducted and is in all respects a worthy representative of the farming interest of the country. THE JOURNAL congratulates the Farmer on its merited success.

We may have a World's Fair in 1892. That is a future event and naturally uncertain. But if we do have a fair one of the first objects to catch the gaze of the approaching visitor will be the scalp of Thomas C. Platt adorning the apex of a lofty pole near the main entrance gate.—N. Y. Times.

A TERM in the penitentiary for guilty members will probably have a salutary effect in preventing such scandalism in the future as the Republicans have perpetrated this year in Montana. Thank Heaven, no Democratic Legislature has ever been guilty of such shameful conduct.—Omaha Democrat.

SENATOR HOAR'S bill to prevent the Democrats in Ohio from reappointing the State on a fair basis is a mere game of bluff. What power has Congress in the matter? The Senator knows it has none, but to avert a threatened loss of party supremacy he is willing to father an unconstitutional law.—Madison Democrat.

"A WASHINGTON book connoisseur named Boyd did a lively business with the delegates to the Pan-American Congress, who were under the impression that they were dealing with the Speaker of the House. After their experience with Wainwright the delegates doubtless thought that they were expected to "do business" with all the Federal officials."

The eagles that gather where the carcasses are never torpid until gorged. The Speaker at Washington has got the party well in line, and has arranged for a line arrangement of seats throughout to allow the majority.

The gorging will soon be under way. The Republican party at Washington had for its main motto the extermination of the Nevada Democracy from a River and Harbor bill for the consideration.

LOCAL NEWS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.
F. ULRICH—Virginia cheroots.
BELL THE JEWELER—New goods.

The suits for the jockeys are ready made, and are of the brightest colors.

A large number of live wild deer were brought to the city yesterday to be exhibited at the Fair.

The Fair opens tomorrow at 9 o'clock and will be open every day during the week from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Suitable quarters will be provided for dogs of all degrees, "Blanche, Tray, Sweetheart little dogs and all."

Business circles were quite lively yesterday. The stir and bustle on the streets looked as though the Fair had already opened.

The Governor's Guard of Raleigh is expected to accompany Governor Fowle Monday night and be ready for the competitive drill Tuesday.

The trotting race between Messrs. Hackburn & Willitt's bay horse Adonis and Messrs. M. Hahn & Son's bay mare Maude, will come off at 3 o'clock Tuesday.

The course for the pony races will be laid off and properly railed Monday morning and the contests beginning Tuesday will no doubt be interesting and exciting.

The New York cotton exchange was closed yesterday, it being a national holiday. The New Berne exchange was open and 55 bales of cotton were sold at 10 to 10 1/2.

The Wilson Base Ball Club will play the New Berne Club next Friday at the Fair grounds. The Wilson club is one of the crack clubs of the State, and a "rattling" game may be expected.

A gentleman in the city received a letter from Evangelist Fife, who is now conducting revival meetings in Burlington, N. C., in which he says: "Please request the pastors of your city to have special prayer at their churches on Sunday for our meetings and my health, and ask the Y. M. C. A. to do the same. Between thirty and forty conversions last night."

Through their representatives, Messrs. J. W. Moore and W. R. Guion, the Baltimore United Oil Co. offers one half barrel best Eldorado engine oil for the best exhibit of machinery at the Fair. Another handsome premium is a handsome veterinary case with complete apparatus. It is given by Mr. W. H. Harbaugh of Norfolk for the best thoroughbred stallion.

We do not know whether the management of the A. & N. C. R. has noticed that there is a south-bound train on the A. C. Line arriving in Goldsboro only a short while after the A. & N. C. Fair train pulls out. The difference of time is thirty-five minutes only and the convenience offered the traveling public along the W. & W. Line and its branches north of Goldsboro might be worth considering.

A small sail vessel arriving from Hatteras yesterday reported a three-masted schooner aground on Hatteras shoals. The Wilmington Messenger of yesterday speaks of it we suppose when it says: "The schooner Mary L. Allen, Capt. Gould, bound from New York to Charleston, with a cargo of dried blood, is ashore four miles south of Ocracoke, N. C. The schooner is a total loss. The material and crew were saved."

Zeb Vance Dies.
The "fat lady," the living curiosity of North Carolina, arrived last night from Forsyth county. His parents accompanied him. He will be at the Fair and everybody who attends is invited to take a look at a boy sixteen months old, who weighs 80 pounds.

Wolf! The Cry Was Wolf!
Passing a gentleman's residence yesterday, he cried, "Stop! see the wolf." We obeyed, and beheld the wolf—the skin of a wolf, though as natural as life. The animal was at the last New Berne Fair alive; since then it has died, and that cleverest of clever fellows, Will Hunter of the "Gregory and Arlington," Goldsboro, sends it back, if not in life, quite as natural as life.

It was amusing and interesting to watch the anxiety of a setter dog respecting the danger of a little boy near the wolf. The dog was really alarmed for the child, pushed him away and then turned to attack the wolf.

Will Hunter is a hunter indeed, and he will be here with a pack of twenty-five or thirty hounds, and several friends and hunting horses. Now what could be more exciting than to give them a run around the Fair grounds, then out in the open ground in front, after the trail of a fox skin! We respectfully suggest it.

Brook's Sarsaparilla is on the flood tide of popularity, which condition is caused by its own intrinsic, and positive

IN MEMORY OF OUR LATE EDITOR

Tributes of the Press.

As a tribute to the memory of our late editor, Henry S. Nunn, as well as in justice to the readers of the JOURNAL, we print today in condensed form some of the press notices called out by his death. We bear testimony to the high character and faithful services of Mr. Nunn, and unhesitatingly affirm that these commendations are abundantly warranted by the life of our deceased brother.

Besides these expressions of the press, many communications have been received, breathing the purest friendship, as well as the fullest appreciation of our lamented chief. For all this we are profoundly grateful.

The following extracts are now respectfully presented:

Bro. H. S. Nunn, the senior editor of the New Berne JOURNAL, is dead. A faithful and true man has gone to his rest.—Franklin Times.

We regret the death of Bro. Nunn, of the New Berne JOURNAL. Though a stranger to us, yet we knew him by a weekly visit from his paper, and honored and respected his virtues of the head and heart as expressed in his journal.—Mt. Olive Telegram.

We regret very much to learn of the death of Henry S. Nunn, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. In his death, North Carolina journalism loses one of its ablest representatives, and New Berne one of its most enterprising and valuable citizens.—Nashville Argonaut.

It was with regret that The Chronicle recorded the death of Henry Swinson Nunn, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. His paper is high in tone, firm in principle, outspoken and courteous, unremitting in its work for its town and section. His death is a loss to the State press.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Henry S. Nunn, the able and accomplished editor of the New Berne JOURNAL, is dead. Under his control and management the JOURNAL has been a power for good in the eastern section of the State, and in his death North Carolina journalism sustains a serious loss. Peace to his ashes.—Raleigh Call.

We regret greatly to hear of the death of Mr. H. S. Nunn, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. It was our pleasure to have been personally acquainted with him, and he was a friend whom we highly esteemed. His untimely death is a sad loss to that section of the State, for the development of which he had done so much.—Chatham Record.

We regret exceedingly to see in the New Berne JOURNAL the announcement of the death of its editor, Henry S. Nunn. It pays a touching tribute to this excellent gentleman, in whose death the social circle is bereaved, New Berne loses a devoted friend, the press an able writer, and the State a good citizen.—Wilmington Star.

The New Berne JOURNAL is by far the best weekly published in Eastern Carolina. We shall miss the writings of Bro. Nunn and in common with the entire press of the State mourn the death of this able and distinguished journalist. One by one the prominent journalists of the country are passing away.—Windsor Ledger.

We regret to learn of the death of Mr. Henry S. Nunn, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. He was a faithful soldier of the Confederacy, entering its service at seventeen and closing at Appomattox. He was in many battles and was wounded a number of times. He was a man of integrity, decision of character and practical talents, and died in the faith of Christ, and is at rest.—Wilmington Messenger.

The JOURNAL was not a pretentious paper; but Mr. Nunn had so impressed it with his broad views, and imbued it with his catholic spirit, that its influence was most salutary. Gentle, kind and tolerant by nature, Mr. Nunn was nevertheless firm in his convictions of duty and steadfast in adherence to principle. The North Carolina press has sustained a serious loss in his death.—Fayetteville Observer.

Mr. Nunn was one of the best newspaper men in eastern Carolina, and had made the JOURNAL a power for good in that section of the State. He was an honorable, upright, Christian gentleman, whose death will be deeply felt by his section. We had known Mr. Nunn for a number of years, and admired him for his many excellent qualities. In his death we feel the loss of a true friend.—Salisbury Herald.

Thus passes away an honest, an earnest, and able man, one who devoted the best years of his life to the advancement of his city, and who did accomplish much good for those among whom he lived; always following where duty led, fearlessly braving danger in the defence of his honest convictions. We always looked upon Mr. Nunn as a man of the highest type of honor, true to every trust.—Beaufort Sentinel.

We were pained to learn of the death of Mr. H. S. Nunn, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL, which sad event occurred at his home last week. Mr. Nunn was one of the brightest newspaper men in the eastern section of our State. He was an upright, Christian gentleman, whose death will be deeply felt by his section. We had known Mr. Nunn for years. In his death we feel the loss of a true friend.—Asheboro Courier.

We are pained to learn of the untimely death of Henry S. Nunn, the editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. He was in every respect a noble and true man, whose death will be deeply felt by his section. We had known Mr. Nunn for years. In his death we feel the loss of a true friend.—Asheboro Courier.

companion of a large class of readers.—News and Observer.

"Not a withered leaf or a fading flower has fallen," but a MAN in the strictest sense of the term. What else can we say? To call him more than a MAN would be telling an untruth. To call him anything less, would be doing him and his memory the severest injustice. He was, in all respects, exemplary in politics, religion and in business. He died as he lived, and, as a consequence, his home is heavenly. God bless his memory and make it a benefit to the press and to the people of good old North Carolina which he delighted to serve and to honor.—Edenton Fisherman and Farmer.

Thus passes away, an honest, an earnest, and able man, one who devoted the best years of his life to the upbuilding of his adopted city, and who in those years accomplished great good for those among whom he lived, always following where duty led, fearlessly braving danger in the defence of his honest convictions. We have personally known Mr. Nunn for a number of years and have always found him to be a man of the highest type of honor, true to every trust. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity of which Order he was a bright star. Peace to his ashes.—Winston Daily.

We mourn the death of a brother journalist, Mr. H. S. Nunn, editor of the New Berne Daily JOURNAL. We never met him but once, and that was at the Atlanta Exposition in 1881, which he attended in company with a large number of the North Carolina press. We found him a genial, companionable, well-informed gentleman, and conceived a very warm regard for him. Of his character as a journalist, the Charlotte Chronicle says: "His paper is high in tone, firm in principle, outspoken and courteous, unremitting in its work for its town and section. His death is a loss to the State press.—Asheville Citizen.

The death of H. S. Nunn, Esq., editor of the New Berne JOURNAL, has brought sadness to the editorial fraternity throughout the State. He had been connected with that paper since April, 1882, and his work has been all the while received with favor. He was aggressive and progressive, and his faithful efforts to build up his city and its interests will live in the development of that part of the State. The unostentatious yet constantly laboring Nunn, has passed into the shadow of that long, long night; and doubtless many more will lament his death than substantially and soothingly praised his life. The faithful editors of this country are a mighty power; but too true is it, that that power is often not acknowledged until another is called to take his place. The life of every H. S. Nunn marks the mile-stones of the nation's progress.—Scotland Neck Democrat.

In last week's Advance we announced the death of Mr. Henry S. Nunn, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. We can not refrain from adding our humble tribute to the worth and merit of this good man. It was our pleasure to know Mr. Nunn well. On several occasions have we "crossed swords" with him and on other occasions have we asked favors at his hands. We can say truthfully, and with pleasure, that we never "crossed swords" with a man who was more courteous, generous and forgiving. His heart was too free from guile to harbor malice, and he was never happier than when he could speak a good word or do a kind act for a fellow man. Nature fashioned him in a mould of gentleness and peace. He was a Christian man every day in the week. In the death of Mr. Nunn the State has lost an earnest, conscientious editor, the community in which he lived a man whose influence was always for good, and his loved ones an affectionate husband and father. Peace to his ashes! May that mercy he has always shown to others be shown to him by the Great and Good.—Wilson Advance.

We are sincerely grieved at the death of our friend, Mr. Henry S. Nunn, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. In January, 1883, Mr. Jas. W. Harper, one of the best editors who ever lived in Eastern North Carolina, died, and since then Mr. Nunn has edited the paper. He was a laborious, conservative, progressive and prudent editor. A man of the people, he never forgot their interests. He was sincerely impressed with the future commercial and industrial greatness of his section, and was ready to do everything in his power for the development of all agencies looking to greater prosperity. Public education had in him a warm advocate. He was a Democrat from principle and was the Democratic candidate for the State Senate in 1888. In the same year he was appointed collector of customs for New Berne. He was a modest man; a quiet, humble Christian; a member of the Disciples church; a fond husband and father; and a public spirited citizen. His death is a loss to New Berne and to journalism. After life's hard toil and conflict, he has gone up to his reward.—State Chronicle.

We mourn the departure of Henry S. Nunn, of New Berne, editor of the New Berne JOURNAL. Brother Nunn was eminently a good man, a sincere friend, a patriotic citizen. Gentle in manners, kindly in disposition, unpretentious and modest in demeanor, he was yet a tower of strength in his community and devoted to the interests of New Berne. He first gave impulse to the establishment of the "East Carolina Fish, Oyster, Game and Industrial Association," which has done much already for the progress and prosperity of New Berne and which promises so much in the future. To us the death of Brother Nunn is a personal bereavement. Among our associates of the press he was always ready to help us in our work. We always enjoyed his visits. We were always glad to see him. We were always glad to hear of his success. We were always glad to see him. We were always glad to hear of his success. We were always glad to see him. We were always glad to hear of his success.

blood was eastern blood and we fought together for the interests of Eastern North Carolina; her agricultural, piscatorial, mechanical, professional and every other interest. We miss him and shall miss him yet more.—E. C. Economist.
