WE LIKE IT.
 Yes, we like it. Like what? We like true manhood whenever it is displayed, but we are especially pleased when a young man meets adverse fortune with dauntless resolution and wins the victory.

Charles H. Turner, the "ice man" statesman of New York, is an illustration of the kind of man we like. With native genius, supplemented by industry, the rise from the position of driver of an ice wagon in the city of New York, to an honored place in the Congress of the United States; but he has recently won a victory in which he has the sympathy of every genuine man in the country. The National Democratic says:

"Congressman Charles H. Turner, the 'ice man' statesman from New York, finds it easier to succeed in politics than in love, but persistence has made him a winner in both. His engagement to Miss Winsie W. Lewis, the daughter of a good New Hampshire family, has just been announced, and ends a romantic chapter in the lives of both the now happy people. Cases are not uncommon in which the proud parents of a young woman prevent for a while the choice of a husband, and in which the aspiring youth, after a tremendous 'hustling,' wins the whole family over and carries off his bride. 'Ice man' Turner had won the consent of Miss Lewis, but was not acceptable to the family; so the engagement was broken off. Then Congressman Turner appeared, and as a legislator of his country was admitted to the home of the young woman's uncle in Washington. When Miss Lewis visited the galleries of the House, Congressman Turner realized his opportunity to attain a crowning victory. He asked for 10 minutes to speak on the Oklahoma question, and did so right eloquently; every one said that in elocution and diction the effort was commendable, and not a few knew that Mr. Turner's 'best girl' was the most interested listener. Miss Lewis's mother read Mr. Turner's speech—and her tardy blessing has now been secured."

PARTY ORGANIZATION.
 In all the States in which elections have been recently held the Democrats have been victorious. This is not accidental, but it is the natural result of education, organization and efficient management.
 The time is not far distant when elections will be held in North Carolina, and it becomes us to prepare for the approaching contest. In the congressional election next fall the people must ratify or condemn the atrocious conduct of Reed and his confederates in conspiracy against constitutional government. North Carolina contributed three members to the traitor band that sustained the usurper, and every true Democrat and patriotic Republican should see to it that the places now dishonored by Ewart, Brower and Clouston are filled by representatives of the patriotism, virtue and intelligence of North Carolina.
 We are no advocates of any trick by which the will of a majority is defeated, but we are in favor of that organization and discipline which in a just cause lead only to victory.
 With judicious management, and wise and resolute action, the next Congress will be Democratic. At all events North Carolina must do her part towards the glorious consummation. If there are hinderances in the way they must be removed. Personal partiality must yield to public necessity, and a rigid party moved forward with invincible resolution.

Fortunately there are no elements of Democratic discord in this district. All are united in the advocacy of the immortal principles that are the corner stones of the temple of liberty, and with one accord our people demand the return of F. M. Simmons to the National House of Representatives.

We trust that the districts now represented by Ewart and Brower will be redeemed, and that North Carolina will have a solid Democratic delegation in the Fifty-Second Congress.

A Very Live Old Man.
 John G. Whittier, who is now eighty two years old, is about the liveliest man of his generation. He is vigorous both in body and mind, and can do as good work as ever. His last poem, "The Captain's Well," which he wrote for the New York Ledger, in his eightieth second year, is one of the strongest, most beautiful, and most finished productions that ever came from his pen. Mr. Whittier, in sending "The Captain's Well" to the Ledger, wrote to the publishers of that paper that it would probably be the last poem he would ever write, but we hope that in this he was mistaken. The venerable poet did not fix any price upon "The Captain's Well," but left the remuneration to Messrs. Robert Bunner's Sons, and they sent him a check for a thousand dollars. Such unusual liberality touched the old man deeply; especially because (as he characteristically wrote) it enabled him to give more than he had hoped to be able to bestow upon certain charitable enterprises that were near to his heart.

It is seldom that so modest, peaceful and useful a life as John G. Whittier's is lived upon this earth, and millions of the aged poet's admirers and friends are gratified to know that there is good promise that his life may be yet spared for many years.

Dyspepsia
 Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." NEW BERNE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
 NEW BERNE, N. C.

Ignorance Costs.
JANUARY 20, 1890.
 Spring Term Opens

Intelligence Pays.
 I have kept up with the work of Prof. Adams in this city. It is genuine and thorough. It is education in earnest. With a splendid building, first class teachers and a judicious course of study, his school is a success. The department of his students is the outcome of good government. Bright, orderly and contented, they have learned to apply themselves both as a duty and a pleasure. Learning and Progress are the watch-words of the New Berne Collegiate Institute, and it is an ornament to Eastern North Carolina.
JOHN S. LONG,
 President of the Board of Trustees of the New Berne Academy.

NEW BERNE, N. C., Feb. 11th, 1890
 The advent of Prof. G. T. Adams to this city marks a new era in the history of its educational interests. Under a contract with the Trustees of the New Berne Academy this gentleman took charge of their school property in September last, for the purpose of conducting a High School; and what was at first regarded by many as a doubtful experiment has in a few short months proved a phenomenal success.
 New Berne Collegiate Institute, under the management of Prof. Adams and a corps of able assistants is rapidly taking rank with the most flourishing schools of the State. Parents and guardians, desiring for their children and wards a thorough preparation for college, could not do better than send them to this institution.
