your Excellency. Very respectfully and obediently

> JOHN PEARSON, J. ROTHWELLER L F. VAN CLEVE. E. B. HILL, Committee

Cincinnati, O., March 14. To which Governor Fowle replied: EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT. STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Raleigh, March 17, 1890 Sins:-As you seem to be very simple and credulous people, striving with more zeal than judgment to right what you assume to be a great wrong, I will answer with the same simplicity and frankness that I do the kind hearted but excitable colored peop'e, when their sympathies have been strongly aroused. Indeed the ferocity with which you enforce goodness, as you understand it, induces me to hope that you will heartily repent of the gross injustice done by your communication to the good people of our much loved State.

If Mr. Joiner was treated, as you charged, then justice requires that the people who assaulted him should be rigorously punished, and the courts in North Carolina stand ready to give Mr. mands it. The county in which the outrage is said to have been committed is a Republican county, its population ment, and there is no question that the perpetrators of the offence would have been punished if Mr. Joiner had been able to show that anyone had injured him. but unfortunately he did not do so. Now it is a fact well recognized in this, the most law-abiding State of the Union, that you can't punish a criminal until he is discovered. Why, in Pennsylvania it was illustrated in the case of Charley Ross' abductors, and although the community you represent is comparatively young and new, yet I have no doubt that in Cincinnati you would not see the unreasonableness of attempting to punish a man for a crime before he was identified. Your whole communication is based upon the Indlan's practice of taking revenge when line, will sail for Norfolk today at 12 one of his tribe has suffered upon the first man he meets, whether he was the guilty man or not.

I am authorized by the Attorney General to say that if Mr. Joiner will furnish the evidence against any person showing his guilt, that such person will be at once arrested, and if a case is made out against him, tried, convicted and punished.

In regard to the negroes in church meeting in Oberlin, who requested Mr. Joiner to depart from their midst, if you think that congregation was composed of "cringing negroes," who had been "intimidated by cowards," you are evincing a degree of credulity that is without parallel, even amongst our negro population.

Oberlin is a colored community in a Republican county. Its inhabitants are about as respectable and independent as you will find in any colored commu nity on earth, and any attempt upon the part of white rowdies or disorganizers to infringe their rights and privileges would have been resisted at all hazards. Judging from your violent language, there is not a man amongst you who would resist oppression like this respectable church of colored men and women you have the audacity to denounce as "cringing negroes."

One other consideration: The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in North Carolina is one of the largest and most influential denominations in our State, and would never submit quietly to-the courts refusing justice to any one entitled to its protection, but it is unreasonable for you to require any more protection for Mr. Joiner than a citizen of the State could get under like cir-

I therefore heartily recommend to you as a committee to read the 9th Commandment, and lay it to heart, and after doing so, communicate your reflections to your brethren who instigated you to address your remarkable epistle to me.

I have the honor to be, Your obedient servant, DAN'L G. FOWLE, Governor.
