A LETTER OF FICTION.

New Beans, N. C., March 21, '90. DEAR ROBERT-I have just returned from Nag's Head, where I have spent East Carolina railroad from this city to several days sailing, fishing, hunting,

> Several of my friends and mysel! had been looking forward to the 10th of March with great anticipations, it being little village of Nag's Head.

> At last the expected day rolled round. I arose early. The beautiful little birds were singing on every bush at five o'clock in the morning; and long before the king of day sent forth his rays of light upon the world the steam-Annie, with her loud whistle, reminded us that the time for our depart-ure from New Berne was near at band.

> A beautiful sunny day invited several of New Berne's fairest daughters and promising young men to accompany us on this delightful occasion. Among whom were Professors Skinner and Adams, the former of Vance Academy, the latter of the Collegiate Institute Miss Maud Moore, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of James W Moore, Esq ; Miss Allen Smith, of Pollokeville, one of Jones county's most promising young ladies;-and others not so pretty and too numerous to men-

> The steamer left promptly at 8.3s o'clook with one hundred on board. The ladies were lively, and we had a delightful time sailing down the beautiful Neuse.

While we were being "rocked in the cradle of the deep," Prof. Skinner, accompanied by his vocal class, sung some very touching songs, while Misses Maud Moore and Fannie Holland gave us some instrumental music that was jungle were fired on from ambush. A considered, especially by me, a real treat.

We reached the beautiful little vilage of Nag's Head at 6 o'clock, p.m. A large number of us were conveyed to Hotel Tull, where we were enter tained by the clever proprietor until morning.

The next morning we took a walk through the village; found good schools, churches, fine dwellings, etc. We then gathered at the river, where boats of all sizes were waiting to take us to the beach.

We reached the beach after about wo hours' pleasant ride. Our fishing tackle being ready, we tried our luck. Prof. Skinner caught an eel, Prof. Adams caught a turtle, and I caught orab and fell overboard trying to get him off the hooks. Miss Maud Moore caught a fish, but it was so small and she so sympathizing that she threw it overboard. The others didn't catch anything. We had a good time, though, gathering sea shells.

We returned to Nag's Head at 6 p.m. Prof. Skinner, being at his former home, was called upon to speak at the Academy at 8.30 p.m. When that hour rolled round, the large ball was filled to overflowing. The NewYork Sun's Report of the Market Yesterday.

NEW YORK, March 26 -The Sun's review of the cotton market today says: Futures opened quite buoyant. Early reports were generally favorable to the bulls, but the chief element of strength was a large spot business at Liverpool-14,000 bales. Buying at Liverpool was largely for export. Then another report said Lancashire spinners were buying because cotton which should have reached them directly have been detasined by the late strikes. Private advices from Manchester were said to be very strong. In the last hour there was a fresh boom, led by a German house, and the close was at the best prices of the day. The activity of the Liverpool spot market was variously explained. Some said Lancashire held off for nearly two months, and is now compelled to enter the market.

China and Japan.
