SELF-RELIANCE.
 Nothing is more essential to success in life than self-reliance. It is the very essence of manhood. The school boy who has no confidence in himself, but goes for assistance the moment a difficult problem is presented can never become a scholar. The city that puts forth no effort of its own, but waits for distant communities to come and lay their treasures in its lap, can never become a commercial emporium.

Admitting that self-reliance is necessary to success in all avocations and among all people, it is pre-eminently true that the South has been thrown back upon her own resources and her sons made the arbiters of their own fortunes. The Federal Government sees fit to oppress labor everywhere, but nowhere is oppression so grievous as at the South. Not content with an attempt to humiliate her by denying to her equality in the Union; not satisfied with driving her representatives from the halls of Congress and giving their seats to aliens who are hostile to her rights, she is compelled to furnish the means for defraying the expenses of the Administration by which she is oppressed. No man can deny that agriculture is more heavily taxed, by present laws, than any other industrial pursuit, and it is established beyond controversy that the department of agriculture peculiar to the South is especially burdened.

What is to be done to meet this condition of affairs? Shall we resort to the boycott? Not as that term is usually employed, but we may make new commercial alliances, and transact our business through channels unobstructed by hostile legislation and uncontaminated by sectional malevolence. But the great need of the Southern farmer, in the present emergency, is self-reliance. God has given us a magnificent country. Our fields bring forth abundantly, and our barns are overflowing with golden grain. By diversifying labor our resources can be quadrupled, and want, in any of its hideous forms, be a stranger at our gates. North Carolina can be an empire within herself. With her own markets of commerce; her own furnaces; her own manufactures; her own fields; her own vines and fig trees; her printing press; her schools and colleges, her temples and her shrines, with none to molest or make her afraid. Reverencing the Constitution and obeying the laws, our people may rely upon themselves to achieve a high and glorious destiny.

Sub Stations of the N. C. Agricultural and Experiment Station.
 In order to bring the work of the Experiment Station more directly before the farmers of the various localities of the State and to secure the benefits resulting from experiments on various soils, it has been decided to establish sub-stations in about eight or nine representative localities. These points will be three in the section west of Raleigh, and three in the central section west of Raleigh, and two in the mountainous section. These sub-stations will work in connection with the Central Station at Raleigh in conducting field tests with fertilizers, in testing varieties of grasses, forage crops, fruits, vegetables, etc., in trying improved implements, new agricultural methods, and in the general sense to try experiments in agriculture. Necessarily the beginning will be small, and it is expected that it will be sometime before results can be pointed to, but success is bound to be reached sooner or later. In the meantime every one should be patient, and be ready to cooperate in the work and give it a helping hand, to take interest in what is being done and watch the work as it progresses. The bulletins of the Station will contain full reports of operation at the various sub-stations.—H. B. Battle.

In Behalf of Ireland.
 INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 3.—Tomlinson Hall which seats 6,000 people was packed last night by friends of the Irish cause, who had assembled to express their sentiments regarding the recent arrest of Dillon and O'Brien and the conduct of their trial at Tipperary. Mayor Sullivan presided, and made a strong appeal in behalf of Ireland. Rev. J. S. Jenks, of St. Paul, Minn., and Hon. Wm. H. English, Judge N. B. Taylor, and other prominent speakers addressed the meeting. A long series of resolutions was adopted. Among them was one which after denouncing Balfour and Salisbury pledged the meeting by all honorable means at our command to sustain the Irish people in that moral struggle until it culminates in the glorious achievement of home rule for Ireland.

THE NEW ANTI-LOTTERY BILL.
 Instructive to Postmasters Being Prepared—Wide Scope of the Act.
 Judge Tyner, the Assistant Attorney-General for the Post-Office Department, has about completed the instructions to postmasters in regard to the enforcement of the anti-lottery law. He intends to consult with Judge Taft, the Solicitor-General before they are finally issued. It has been found that the law is more comprehensive than is generally supposed. In prohibiting lotteries it also prohibits all schemes for distributing prizes by chances and applies to the church fair as well as to the great Louisiana Lottery Company. An advertisement for a church fair which speaks of a raffle or anything of the kind would be excluded from the mails.

A POINT TO BE SETTLED.
 Judge Tyner has had referred to him for decision a question as to whether a newspaper published in Texas that has a guessing scheme can be admitted to the mails. The paper offers a prize to the lady who will guess the name of the most popular man, and all the details for voting, &c., are printed in the paper. Judge Tyner has not as yet made a ruling on this question, but it is only a sample of the various problems that are presented for his decision.

A Reprieve for the Condemned.
 Wretched men and women long condemned to suffer the tortures of dyspepsia, are filled with new hope after a few doses of Hood's Stomach Bitters. This budding hope blossoms into the fruition of certainty, if the Bitters is persevered in. It brings a reprieve to all dyspeptics who seek its aid. Flatulence, heartburn, sinking at the pit of the stomach between meals, the nervous tremors and insomnia of which chronic indigestion is the parent, disappear with their hateful progenitor. Most benevolent of stomachics, who can wonder that in so many instances it awakens grateful eloquence in those who, benefited by it, speak voluntarily in its behalf. It requires a graphic pen to describe the torments of dyspepsia, but in many of the testimonials received by the proprietors of the Bitters, these are portrayed with vivid truthfulness. Constipation, biliousness, muscular debility, malarial fevers and rheumatism are relieved by it.

A POUL OUTRAGE.
 A Negro Narrowly Escapes Lynching for His Heinous Crime.
 WILMINGTON, Del., October 2.—Gracie Clark, the 10-year-old daughter of Tasker T. Clark, a farmer, was assaulted on Sunday evening while she was playing in her father's barn, near New Castle, by Jacob Starker, a negro weighing 180 pounds. Starker was captured to day, and had to be taken secretly to the jail, owing to the threats made against him. At the hearing this morning the prisoner was committed to jail without bail to answer the charges. The negro had compelled the child to keep silent about the affair under a threat of drowning, but her sufferings through injuries became unbearable and she told everything.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the symptoms of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, and I did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced."

I do not believe we would advertise anything that was not exceptionally good. This Remedy has certainly answered the purpose in my case. It cured a cold, an obstinate cold, and after I had tried a number of the principal cough remedies without benefit.
