Gilman and his independent opponent, Mr. F. D. Koonce, was held Saturday at Polloksville, A large crowd representing both parties was present and much interest manifested.

> As an evidence of the intense desire existing among the Jones county people to secure the railroad, we will mention that one farmer said he would give half his farm if necessary to accomplish that object rather than see it take another route. Another said if the railroad wanted to come where his store and gin house stood he would move them and tell the railroad to come.

Dr. John S. Long in Commons Hall at Raleigh.

The State Chronicle gives the following complimetary notice of Dr. Long's address before the Educational Convention. It was a great gathering of the distinguished men of the State, according to the Chronicle, with a strong COTTON.-New Berne market-Sales programme, and a long list of famous speakers:

"John S. Long, LL D., of New Berne, was introduced. He most cordially endorsed the proposition that the sexes ought to be educated together. Common sense and Christianity alike demanded co-education. Baltimore professors say that where boys and girls go to school together the scholars are the best to be found. It encourages discipline and good behavior. He took up the objections to co education and answered them eloquently and ably. He was most happy, ornate and witty.

Of course many of these manufactured articles will be from a distance, but New Berne is not too selfish to show the progress and advantages of our Southland, and then the New Berne Fair has grown to be more than of local interest. This will be the fourth year of its existence and each time has brought increased throngs of people and from a greater distance and wider section of country.

One of the principle efforts of the Exhibition has been to induce Northerners to visit it whereby our advantages and undeveloped resources may be learned of, therefore it is to the interest of our manufacturers to place their goods where they may be more generally known and the demand increased.

Would that we had more men of Mr Oliver's energy.

The State Chronicle thus alludes to one of our townsmen: "Among the visitors to the fair whom the Chronicle has been pleased to grasp by the hand is Mr. Wm. H. Oliver, of New Berne. He has been a thorough atudent of our financial system, and more than five years ago wrote valuable essays showing that the great need of the people was to secure the free coinage of silver. He rejoices now to see that all the people of the State are earnestly seeking to secure free coinage. He was a pioneer in this reform in North Carolina."
