PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Fortune is not more fickle than are her woovers.

Now is the time to do whatever you dislike to do.

Dyspepsia fears a buckskin more than a pill box.

Opportunity is a slow coach that seldom overtakes, but may readily be overtaken.

The love of glory can only create a hero; the contempt of it creates a great man.

A rich man despises those who flatter him too much, and hates those who do not flatter him at all.

Cutting one's garment according to the cloth is poor policy, unless one happens to have a sufficiency of cloth.

If you wish to appear agreeable in society you must consent to be taught many things which you know already.

There are many vices which do not deprive us of friends; there are many virtues which prevent our having any.

There are two things to which we never grow accustomed—the ravages of time and the injustice of our fellow men.

The reputation of a man is like his shadow—gigantic when it precedes him, and pigmy in its proportion when it follows.

The errors of great men and the good deeds of reprobrates should not be reckoned in our estimates of their respective characters.

He who cannot feel friendship is alike incapable of love. Let a woman beware of the man who owns that he loves no one but herself.

To succeed in the world it is much more necessary to possess the penetration to discover who is a fool than to discover who is a clever man.

It is sometimes quite enough for a man to feign ignorance of that which he knows, to gain the reputation of knowing that of which he is ignorant.

A great capitalist is like a vast lake, upon whose bosom ships can navigate, but which is useless to the country, because no stream issues thence to fertilize the land.

Carrying Milk in a Paper Bag.
 "Here you are, two pounds of chops, good scant weight," said the merry Cranston street grocer to the young man of family who had brought in an order from his wife, "and now for your milk; where's your can?" The young man of family protested that he hadn't read the order, and had not been equipped with a can. "Never mind," said the grocer; "here, hold on to it," and he dexterously slipped one paper sugar bag inside of another and filleted the corners into place. The two quarts of milk were poured into the inner bag. "The grease in the milk prevents it from going through the paper, as water would," explained the grocer. "I had hard work to get people to believe they could carry milk in a bag at first, and had to let it go at my own risk. I've sent it so half a mile by slow transit; still I'd advise you not to stop to tell any long stories on the way home."—[Providence (R. I.) Journal.]

due earth's age.
 The age of the earth is estimated from the increment in the temperature as we penetrate its crust. The rate at which the earth cools can only be determined by making use of data confessedly imperfect; but from these Sir William Thomson finds that 100,000,000 or 200,000,000 years ago it first began to be crusted over by a solid fire of rocks; that 10,000,000 years afterwards it was still so hot that the temperature increased two degrees Fahrenheit for every foot vertically descended below the zone of constant temperature. The present rate of increase averages about 1.51 of a degree for every foot.—[St. Louis Republic.]

The Man Who Cannot Laugh.

There are some individuals we really can't adore. And the chiefest of the number is the very trying bore. Who when you're feeling jolly and a bit of fun would poke. Will never see the point until you diagram your joke. His eye assumes a vacant stare until he thinks awhile. With great deliberation, then he dons a faded smile. O, it would be a pleasure just to write the epitaph. And hide away the presence of the man who cannot laugh.

How like a biting frost that chills the roses in their bloom. Are sombre individuals who wear a cloak of gloom; Who cannot comprehend the worth of just a spark of fun. Who shrink from joy and pleasure as the bats avoid the sun.

The deeper sober thought within the heart should have a place. But let glad laughter now and then the cares of life erase; Away with him who cannot sift the kernels from the chaff! The world could wag along without the man who cannot laugh.

HUMOROUS.

It lacks point—A circle.

An empty pepper-box is out of season.

The mane part of a horse is the back of its neck.

An echo is like a woman, always determined to have the last word.

"I've gone through a great deal," remarked the saw as it emerged from the log.

The man who tried heroic measures found they were several sizes too large for him.

"Thank fortune," as the man said when his money opened to him the doors of society.

Littleshort—Ah, Mr. Cutaway, how do you do? What's the condition of trade this season? Cutaway (briefly)—Cash.

When there is no hawk flying around the biggest thing in the barn-yard is the strut of the smallest rooster.

Young lady (to young man who kissed her)—That's very singular, sir. Young Man—Ah, well, allow me to make it plural?

"Why do you object to German opera? It is full of vigor; it braces me right up." "That's my objection to it; it is Teutonic."

"Anything new on foot?" asked one politician of another. "Yes," was the reply. "What is it?" "Our baby. He's just learned to walk."

There is constant complaint of the lack of morals in politics. There is no place yet discovered, even out of politics, where there is an oversupply.

Cavasser—Can I see the good man of the house, madame? Mrs. Naggers—No, you can't. There isn't any good man in the house. There's only my husband.

A story at hand, describing a love scene between the hero and heroine, says: "He wooed her with a will." That's a good way, especially if the wooer is old and the will is in her favor.

Physician (with ear to patient's chest)—There is a severe swelling over the region of the heart which must be reduced at once. Patient (anxiously)—That swelling is my pocket-book, doctor. Please don't reduce it too much.

The other day a philanthropic New York lady found the following appeal among her usual grist of begging letters: "Dear Madam—Will you help me to get a position as teacher to support myself and two little ones? Also tell me where I can buy a parrot one year old."

Fanciful Derivations.

The San Angelo (Tex.) Enterprise says: "The term 'greaser,' as applied to Mexicans of the lower classes, was not started, as many suppose, as a signification of disrespect, but was applied by a witty war correspondent in 1846, just after the battle of Palo Alto, to those Mexicans who had forsworn allegiance to their own country and in preference to fighting taken the task of loading and unloading provision trains, which then consisted mostly of bacon. In this way they gained the name of the 'greaser brigade.'" Whatever the term implies, it is much older than the Enterprise supposes. It was known to the United States volunteer who came to what is now the Indian territory in 1831, at the end of the Black Hawk war. The story that the name Maverick, applied to yearling cattle, was given on account of the head of the San Antonio family of that name, is equally fabulous. It was in use in Louisiana before that state was a part of the United States.—[Dallas (Tex.) News.]

Jesus Was Right About It.

Brother, some peep think if you start out to be religious you have to give up everything, and you can't make any money—you can't do anything; you have to give the whole business up. I was talking to a fellow some time ago, and he said:

"Jones, the church is putting my assessment a little too high."

I said: "How much do you pay?" He said: "Five dollars a year."

"Well," I said, "how long have you been converted?"

He said: "I have been converted now about four years."

"Well, what did you do before you was converted?"

"I was a drunkard."

"How much did you spend for whisky?"

"I spent about $250 a year."

"How much were you worth?"

"I rented land and was plowing a steer."

"What have you got now?"

"I have got me a good plantation and a pair of horses."

"Well," said I, "you paid the devil $250 a year for the privilege of plowing a steer, and now you don't want to give God $5 a year for plowing horses. You are a rascal from the crown of your head to the sole of your foot."

There are a great many people that way. I have never known the Lord to bankrupt a man yet. I have never known a man that couldn't do better, everything being equal, as a Christian than as a sinner.—Sam Jones.

The spread of women's clubs throughout the country has led Mrs. Olive Thorne Miller to prepare a practical guide which is to contain directions for organizing a club, suggestions for proper management and a form of constitution ready for use. The manual will be the only one of its kind extant.

For every dollar invested in West End Town Lots, adjoining the Trinity College property, the purchaser realizes 50 per cent. in First-Class Industrial Enterprises, which will enhance the value of his investment.

The "CONSOLIDATED" confidently believes that the above is the most liberal and at the same time the most legitimate offer that has come before the public. In fact the offer is so liberal that we do not hesitate to say that in our opinion, the opportunity will be promptly taken advantage of by those who have been waiting for the BEST, or persons desiring to secure first-class educational advantages for their boys, on the most advantageous terms.

Maps showing the property and Price List of the lots cheerfully furnished on application to
