Ask for the reduced rate to the months been travelling through states to the south of us.

He tells us that the crop of peas and beans are both light and that New Berne has no cause to hurry her peas in. Charleston is shipping her regular following tribute to our esteemed crop now and next week will ship marrow peas, and that if North Carolina holds back her peas they will be the occassion of his first holding court better matured, better for market and command higher prices.

He thinks it better for us to hold back on cabbages also. The crop further south is fine and they are now going in heavily but will be less in about two weeks.

Mr. Palmer has not been to Norfolk, but his information is that it is late on all crops and will not begin shipping cabbages until the middle of next

The Charleston and Savannah potato crop is large. The potatoes are now the size of hen eggs, which indicates earliness, but they will all be needed at good prices, as the old crop is scarce and high. He thinks there is but little that the crops will be marketed from the southern points to those more northern in succession.

The indications are that a profitable year is ahead of our truckers. Personal.
