TEACHERS' ASSEMBLY.

Grandest Day Yet-The Governor is Present and Addresses the Teachers-Honors Done The Chief Magistrate.

SIXTH DAY

Soon after the session was opened with divine service by Rev. A.B. Hun-ter, it was announced that Governor Holt was at the Atlantic Hotel which was received with applause.

Resolutions inviting him to the meeting were at once adopted and a committee appointed to wait upon His Excellency and inform him of the wishes of the assembly. During the absence of the committee some routine business was attended to and a plea for family government was emphasized by resolu-

President and Superintendent Henry Harding, of McIver in a happy style presented him Pitt. to the teachers as one of the steady friends of the assembly though not a Governor Holt then in a plain but forcible address entertained the audience for 30 minutes or more. He spoke in high commendation of the works of the assembly and of the noble service of teachers to the common wealth At the conclusion the Old North State was sung, the assembly standing and joining heartly in the chorus.

The next speaker was the Rev. C. E. Taylor, President of Wake Forest College. For real merit, valuable sugges of popular Education, no one yet has equalled his address. It bristled with practical ideas and well considered propositions. The Doctor advocates all schools in the State. He also suggested a better acquaintance of the faculties and professors of the different colleges in the State and also the University. There are now none but friendly relations between them but they are not personally acquainted with each other, and the speaker hoped there would be improvement in this direction that the army of educators might feel the touch of elbows in the elderation of propositions from various advance toward a higher and better cities in the State. Sunday-School Picnic.

The Disciples' annual pionic occurred resterday. Comfortably quartered on the Trent, we left the wharf promptly at 8:30, a jolly crowd on pleasure bent. Cook's Juvenile band discoursed the music-ample in quantity, admirable in quality.

A pleasant run of three and a half hours on the placid surface of "the beautiful river," brought us to Adams they have so far eluded arrest. Creek, where we debarked. The clean grassy yard, generously tendered by Sunday afternoon, June 21st, at the the people of the Gray-Lee place, furresidence of Mr. E. H. Anderson, in nished a suitable place for rest, shade and refreshment. In the yard, or contiguous to it, are a number of magnificent shade trees, among them five varieties of oaks; some of the live oaks, gnarled and decayed, and festooned with masses of gray moss, looking as if they had "waited by the river" for several centuries.

The dinner was a thing of beauty and s joy-but not "forever"-to a hundred and fifty hungry people. The history of eighteen centuries ago repeated itself -as it has done "not once nor twice"they did all eat and were filled, and many backetsfull remained.

Dinner over, an hour or two were given to games and amusemente. Sing- and lived to see the youngest of his ing and swinging and swimming, and children married and settled—he leaves jumping the rope, were indulged in. Ball and croquet were played, and the social faculty cultivated.

With a mild breeze, and smooth sea, with mirth and music, the time sea, with mirth and music, the time passed all too soon, and we glidded into the harbor of the old city by the sea, just before sunset, amid the inspiring harmonies of Cook's "incomparaing harmonies of Cook's "incompara-bles," having spent a day in mutual acquaintance and companionship, with no imperfection to mar its pleasures, and so, with grateful hearts, we thanked God and sought our homes in peace.
