THE BALTIMORE SUN in a recent editorial says: A liberal education in letters might be obtained from a study of the Bible alone.

JAMES G. BLAINE was once able to carry a load of mortar or a load of bricks to help along a building operation, and didn't think he was losing any dignity when he did so. It was only when he had to shoulder the Harrison administration that his knees gave way.—Philadelphia Times.

SINCE January, 1891, the actual shrinkage in the Treasury holdings is $38,000,000. The expenditures on the other hand have increased $36,375,000. These are the figures the New York Financial Chronicle. That makes a difference against the people and the Government of $67,000,000. Such is radical rule—a fraud all through.

M. EIFFEL, the tower man of Paris, whose 1,000-foot tower was the feature at the Paris Exposition, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, cabled to President Baker, of the World's Fair, that he desired to make a proposition to the exposition company for the erection of a tower on the grounds. President Baker cabled the answer that he would be glad to receive and entertain such proposition.

THE present Congress is expected to make the tariff issue more clear cut before the people than ever. Colonel William R. Morrison, of Illinois, thinks the House will pass a measure making so many changes in the tariff schedule that it will amount to a general bill. This, of course, will be defeated in the Senate, and thus the two parties will appear more distinctly even than now in their true colors as opponents and defenders, respectively, of the infamous robber protection fastened on the country by the McKinley law. Should the Senate, contrary to all expectation, pass this bill, it would be a case of flagrant self-satisfaction, and would show that even Republicans were ready to confess that they had burdened the country with a system of onerous taxation both inexcusable and indefensible.

THREE met at the Bible House New York, June 25th, the representatives of a dozen missionary and benevolent societies to consider the question of a united religious exhibit at the Columbian Exposition in 1893 and the erection of a suitable building for such an exhibit. Letters were read approving the proposed project on the part of a number of societies which were unable to send representatives. The following were appointed as a committee to gain further information and to call a second conference at a later date: Rev. Josiah Strong, general secretary Evangelical Alliance; Rev. John Kimball, secretary Protestant Episcopal Missionary Society; Rev. Adna P. Leonard, secretary Methodist Episcopal Missionary Society; Rev. H. L. Morehouse, secretary American Baptist Home Missionary Society; Rev. Alexander McLean, secretary American Bible Society.

A Big Alligator.

About midday yesterday the steamer Kinston was coming to New Berne from Kinston, a large alligator showed himself in the Linkfield channel, Neuse river, four miles from the city, and Capt. T. G. Dixon, of the aforesaid steamer, after repeated firing—several of the balls taking effect in the head of the ugly monster—succeeded in killing him, and the huge carcass was brought to the city.

His weight was variously estimated at from 60 to 800 pounds. He was precisely 11 feet in length and he measured five feet around the body, 1 1/2 feet around the largest part of his tail, and the same around his legs, and it was 11 feet from the outer part of his jaws to their junction.

An effort was being made last night to have him taxidermized for the colored Fair, which begins here on the 25th inst.

STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Elegant Banquet—Excursion to Wilkesboro—Charming Trip—Cordial Reception.

WILKESBORO, N. C., Aug. 13.

The Winston banquet given to the Association last night was a most brilliant affair. The splendid hall of the Twin City Club was gorgeously arrayed and the number of guests present must have been three hundred. The toasts lasted about two hours and they were most heartily received. Never did the speakers acquit themselves more creditably. In every sense of the word it was a royal feast.

To-day an excursion was run to Wilkesboro, seventy-six miles distant from Winston. It was a delightful trip. The route is a lovely one, winding along in sight of brushy mountains and beside the rippling and dashing waters of the picturesque Yadkin.

Arriving at the old, elegant and salubrious town of Wilkesboro, we were warmly received and shown every courtesy possible by the genial, hospitable, open-hearted citizens.

THE FIVE THOUSAND FED.

At What Stage of the Miracle Did the Miraculous Change Take Place?—When and Where Did the Increase Take Place?

In the International Series of Sunday School lessons, the above topic is set for August 16th, based upon the passage in John vi: 1-14.

Dr. Alexander, the writer of the explanatory notes in the Sunday School magazine, published at Nashville, Tenn., in commenting upon verse 11: "He distributed to the disciples and the disciples to them that were set down," says: "It would be interesting to know just when and where the increase took place, whether in the hands of Jesus, or as he passed the pieces to the disciples, or as the disciples passed them to the people, or as the people divided with each other, and passed portions of what they had received to their neighbors. Who can answer this question and give good reasons?"

I do not propose authoritatively and finally to settle this vexed question, but like Job's friend, Eliphaz, to show mine opinion, and I hope to give some "good reasons."

The principal clue to the solution is probably to be found in connection with the "baskets" mentioned further on in the story. In that country no public houses, restaurants or hotels, in the manner of the present day, among us. What were called caravansaries—halting places for caravans—were infrequent, scarcely lodging, little more than shelter. Hence it was the usual custom, born of necessity, for travelers on a journey to carry provisions with them in baskets. Christ and his apostles in the prosecution of their work were sustained by the hospitality and voluntary gifts of the people among whom they ministered. Judas was their treasurer, and handled the contributions in money—other donations went into the baskets of the "twelve." Mr. Barnes says: "It is probable that each of the apostles had one."

When the time came for their evening meal, the vast multitude were arranged with military exactness. Five thousand men—fifty ranks, a hundred in a rank—reclined at length, according to their unvarying custom, upon the grassy plain sloping down from the base of the mountain to the sea. The large number of women and children were arranged and fed in a separate company. They may have been equal in number to the men, swelling the aggregate to ten thousand.

Now when this order of arrangement had been effected, it would seem most natural and therefore most probable, that after the blessing Christ distributed "the loaves and likewise the fishes" to the disciples (apostles) by breaking them and placing them upon a cloth or cover spread upon the ground. It is hardly to be doubted that Jesus and his twelve were seated at the head of the table, and where the increase took place. From this increased and sustaining supply the disciples filled their baskets and "distributed to those who were set down." As each reached forth his hand and took a portion, it was, as in the days when the manna fell in the wilderness, "according to need."

As there was a certain parallelism between the feeding with manna in the wilderness and with the loaves and fishes in the desert, we might look for a similar analogy in respect of the portions in their hands. He who had helped himself largely had nothing over, and he who had taken less had more. All were just satisfied—"filled." There was no occasion for the people to divide with each other or pass portions to their neighbors.

The expression in the thirteenth verse "They gathered them together and filled twelve baskets with the fragments" which remained over and above unto them that had eaten, is perhaps sometimes misunderstood. The word "fragments" is proper because the loaves and fishes had been broken by Christ at the first, but the idea must not be entertained that they were gathered from the crowd like the broken victuals from a picnic table. They were not taken from the original increased pile, each apostle filling his basket, and were of the same appearance, quality and condition as that distributed to the multitude. Mr. Scott says: "On these broken pieces  we may suppose that Christ and his disciples made afterwards many a contented and thankful meal."

In closing this article I add this remark by Mr. Henry: "There was more real grandeur displayed by the Master of this feast than by Ahasuerus in his royal feast, which was intended to show the riches of his glorious kingdom and the honor of his excellent majesty."

FARMERS AND DENTISTS.

Conventions Close—Third Party Question—Dental Banquet—Officers Elect.

MOREHEAD CITY, August 15.

The Dental Association and the Farmers' Alliance have closed their conventions and many of them have left for home and other parts. They have both had a most delightful session and a profitable conference on matters pertaining to their professions.

I do not know what action of a political nature the Alliance took, if any, but from conversation with some of the members I think the Third Party movement has but few followers in this State. The Democratic party is strong in Alliance in its make up. And the Alliance is almost entirely Democratic. So it would seem difficult to frame a Third party out of either.

From the tenor of remarks made by members in an unofficial way, I draw the inference that the strength of the order is to be concentrated on legislation for the improvement of the farming interest.

The universality of the order throughout the State, and in fact throughout the United States, gives it an excellent opportunity to work out reforms, and they seem determined to do it. Of course some unwise suggestions will be made, but there is an element of conservatism that may be relied on to govern and control their actions and bring all down to the one great purpose of the greatest good to the greatest number. And this has always been the slogan of the Democracy.

The Banquet given to the Southern Dental Association by the North Carolina Association on Thursday night was one of the largest spreads ever had in this State, and it is much to the credit of the profession that no excesses marred the pleasures of the occasion. Solid enjoyment was the order of the evening and was realized by all present.

The North Carolina Association elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—C. W. Alexander.
First Vice-President—C. A. White.
Second Vice-President—Frank Boyth.
Secretary—J. S. Wyche.
Treasurer—J. W. Hinton.
North Carolina State Board of Dental Examiners: J. W. Hinton, V. S. Turner, J. E. Matthews, J. T. Griffith, J. H. Durham, E. L. Hunter.

What Is Fame?

The reporter of the State-Chronicle, writing from Morehead City, speaks of Rev. John Todd Browne, quotes some pretty verses of his, and repeats the opinion of Dr. Arendall, that he was the most brilliant young minister in the State in his day. Evidently the reporter had never heard of him, and even our good friend Dr. Arendall has almost forgotten him if he gave his name as Browne. But who that ever looked into his speaking face could forget the gifted John Todd Browne, the scholar, orator, poet and thinker, who was the very magician of his holy profession in his time and generation? He gave to the writer his first lessons in Latin, and was the first star of his boyhood. How is it possible to forget him? He was the first honor graduate of his class at Randolph-Macon, and was easily the master of every body of men and of every department of learning. With a small, alert figure, a high, retreating forehead, soft gray eyes and thoughtful pure countenance of a woman, his brain was loaded with lightning and from the pulpit his scholarship and eloquence glowed together. He was one of those celestial lights that set early, and which North Carolina manages so easily to forget. He died in Washington in 1844. His secret door of sleep in our cemetery here at New Berne. The brick work that supports the marble over his grave is rapidly decaying, and we hope that our Methodist friends, who he so highly honored by his genius and his learning, will repair his tomb.

Everybody Invited.

To the grandest picnic of the season to be given in New Berne, Saturday, Sept. 13th, and refreshments, such as lemonade, etc., will be furnished FREE of charge. Seven interesting speakers will be in attendance and address the people on the most important issue of the day—Finance. They will inform the people how to get more money and make it go further. The opening address will be delivered by Big Ike. His subject will be "Who the devil it is and where he came from?" He will endeavor to show the people the advantage of the cash system and how it is the only way to get on. He will also show how to trade a dollar with him. He will give a 25 cent present to all who trade a dollar with him. The price of his 25, 50 and 100 cent women and children shoes down to 25, 35 and 50 cents a pair. Bring your children along and get them a pair and let them see Big Ike and enjoy a cool and refreshing glass of his lemonade. Now, if the merchants who credit can afford to lose from 5 to 20 dollars a week by crediting, then Big Ike, who buys so many merchants out at 40, 50 and 60% cents on the dollar and sells to every living man for cash, can afford to give the same amount to his trade that other merchants lose. Bear in mind I advertise nothing but facts and a visit to my store next Saturday will convince you.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. A standard of the ordinary kind, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, adulterated, and impure powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., INC., NEW YORK, N. Y.
