ALL the signs point to the rapid breaking up of the Farmers' Alliance. The farmers have real grievances, but nothing quite so serious as the proposed measures of relief advocated by the cranks who have fastened on the Alliance like burrs. The good crops and fair prices, as well as the manifest follies of the leaders, have had much to do in restoring good humor among the country people and making them.—Ex.

THE acquittal of Haines for the murder of Hannegan, at Norfolk, on Tuesday, will be regarded throughout the country as a woful miscarriage of justice. It has occasioned no surprise however. Things have reached that pass in the South where surprise is excited only when a white murdered is convicted.—News and Courier.

That is a severe and perhaps a just commentary on the administration of justice in the South. But two prominent white men, H. Clay King, of Tennessee, and Dr. Baker, of Virginia, are under the sentence of death and may be hanged. But it is a notorious fact, that when a white man of wealth and influence murders an inferior white man in these essentials or a negro he is acquitted. It is a bad business.—Charlotte Chronicle.

THE Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore has established an office in London, having recently sent over a member of its staff for that purpose. This step is brought about by the continued growth of British interests in Southern investments and the consequent expansion of the circulation and influence of the Manufacturers' Record in Great Britain. By means of its London connection English investors will be kept more thoroughly informed as to the resources, the investment opportunities, and the progress of development in the South, while the South will be enabled to keep in touch with financial London. English investors, financiers on the one hand, and the owners of Southern properties and the projectors of Southern undertakings on the other, will be brought into closer contact and made better acquainted.—Wilson's Southern.

An Electric Road in North Carolina.
The Chattanooga Tradesman, of the 10th inst., says: North Carolina is to have a forty-one mile electric railway, running from Asheville to Rutherfordton, for which the power operating the electric works is to be furnished by water. The road, when completed will be the longest electric railroad line in the world, and the only one built to operate both freight and passenger cars.

A Common Sense Remedy.
In the matter of curatives what you want is something that will do your work while you continue to do yours—a remedy that will give you no inconvenience nor interfere with your business. Such a remedy is ALCOCK'S PAIN EXPELLER. These plasters are not an experiment; they have been in use for over thirty years, and their value has been attested by the highest medical authorities, as well as by testimonials from those who have used them. They require no change of diet and are not affected by wet or cold. Their action does not interfere with labor or business; you can toil and yet be cured while hard at work. They are so pure that the youngest, the oldest, the most delicate person of either sex can use them with great benefit.

Beware of imitations, and do not be deceived by misrepresentations. Ask for ALCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

MONEY.

Pithy Definitions of this "Root of All Evil."

The Philadelphia Record offered a valuable prize for the best definition of "Money." The first definition given is the one to which it was awarded. The ones that follow were considered the next best and were deemed worthy of giving to the public. Some characteristics of money are quaintly and forcibly expressed as a perusal will show.

An article which may be used as a universal passport to every where except heaven, and as a universal provider of everything except happiness.

The reward that sweetens labor.

The balance that adjusts the scales in well-nigh every transaction of human life.

The recognized measure of value and medium of exchange.

Money is an idol, worshiped in every clime without a single temple.

The sugar that sweetens life.

The best microscope for finding relationship with.

'Tis a bee that stores honey if you know how to use it. But it stings, and then wings, if you only abuse it.

The only commodity that remains in fashion from generation to generation.

The father's independence, the mother's satisfaction, the son's snare and the daughter's blessing.

The god of the miser, the plaything of the rich, the joy of the middle classes and the envy of the poor.

The bull's-eye of ambition.

Hard to get, easy to spend, awkward to borrow and unpleasant to lend.

What father wishes for, what mother spends; What old aunts leave us, what uncle lends; Boys cannot keep it, and girls soon disperse;

Used right 'tis a blessing, used wrong 'tis a curse.

When we possess love and health, money is the one thing wanted to make life worth living.

The traveler's best pocket companion.

One of the umpires in the game of life played between Happiness versus Misery.

The best friend of the masses, the mainstay of the classes, the grand aim of the lasses and the ruin of the asses.

Honest Iago calls it trash, but with many it is next to their religion; with some it is a religion, and fools throw up their interest in both worlds for its sake.

The steam in the great engine of life.

That which a man struggles for in life, and after life leaves for others to struggle over.

The guardian of industry, the will-o'-the-wisp of indolence, the servitor of love, the sinews of war, the good man's portion and the bad man's idol.

Money is, next to religious faith, the mightiest comforter in life, whose value, however, can only be fully appreciated by those who have both possessed it and have felt its want.

Amunition for the battle of life.

Mrs. Grundy's standard of respectability.

That which everyone desires to obtain in order to have the pleasure of parting with it.

Palm oil.

A most useful commodity, capable of transmitting to its fortunate possessor everything but health and happiness.

That which it is man's mission to get and woman's mission to spend.

The "Mint" sauce which suits every palate.

The dust that blinds all eyes.

Money is like a monster eel, which everyone is anxious to catch, but, being very slippery, it is hard to hold but easy to lose.

The shot required in life to hit the target of success.

A child's tear-dispeller.

The "counters" used in the game of life.

Money to a man is like water to a plant, only useful as long as it promotes and facilitates growth; like water in the fountain or water in the tank, keep it flowing and it blesses, keep it stagnant and it injures.

Money is that which has eagle's wings, and yet cannot mount so high as man's desire.

A commodity invented for the purpose of enabling the clever portion of the community to gain greater advantage over the fools than was hitherto possible.

"A curse" which everybody is most happy to be blessed with.

A commodity, the value of which is best appreciated by those who haven't got any.

A tangible expression of fickle Fortune's smile.

A sign language that holds good throughout the world.

The honey-pot that has all the world for flies.

The only altar before which all mankind worships.

The motor of life, without which all its pleasures and enjoyments would come to a dead stop.

That which, having not, we want; having, we want more; having more, we want still; and the more we secure the less happy and contented we become.

The most unevenly distributed commodity on the face of the earth.

A remedy which cures more complaints than all other remedies put together.

A great evil that does a lot of good.

The sole qualification required to render a man eligible in the nineteenth century matrimonial market.

An convenient handle for the grip of avarice, a lever for the effects of benevolence, and an impulse to the practice of thrift.

The world's passport to everything but health.

That for which we spend the best years of our lives in accumulating and the remainder of our lives in finding a means of spending.

The cloth with which breaches of promise are patched.

A taskmaster to whom everybody is a willing slave.

An article which is made round and intended to be kept going round for the purpose of making things "square."

A capital material for lining pockets with.

STOP THE SURVEYS.

That is Gov. Holt's Advice—Commissioner Lucas Will Do So.

Col. W. H. Lucas, who has just been in consultation with Governor Holt on matters concerning the oyster troubles arising from entries of grounds by different parties of the State on which natural beds were located has decided to exercise the authority vested in him by the laws of 1891 and stop all further surveys until the natural beds can be located by the Board of Shell Fish Commissioners created under those laws.

Suits will also be entered at once for the recovery of all grounds taken up on which natural beds exist.

That Governor Holt is in harmony with the vigorous efforts of Col. Lucas in his firm and undaunted championship of the rights of the law and the rights of the people against avaricious and burdensome monopolies is shown by his former utterances on the subject and still further by his last letter to Col. Lucas which we publish below.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA.
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 23rd, 1891.

Capt. W. H. Lucas,
Chief Commissioner of Board of Shell Fish Commissioners.

Dear Sir:—In reply to inquiries, as to whether or not, you have the authority, to order a stoppage of the survey of the oyster grounds of the State, now being surveyed by Gen. W. G. Lewis, I have to say that I have advised with the Attorney General and others learned in the law, and all agree that you unquestionably have that right. I am of the opinion that the surveys of the warrants issued in the hands of the Engineer at Vandemere in Pamlico county should be completed. Recent occurrences there make it obligatory upon the State authorities to see that the officers who were charged with the duties of those surveys shall be protected and supported until their duties in that respect are ended. In the event, I think the Shell Fish Commissioners should direct a suspension of any further survey for the present, within that territory, embraced within the Act chapter 119 Laws of 1887.

I am induced to advise this course because of the fact that it has been agreed to me that the further entry of a large number of natural oyster beds within the territory above mentioned, which were not located by the surveys heretofore made, and that the present Shell Fish Commissioners have not had an opportunity to locate them.

Without such additional surveys it is apparent to me that the further entry of the bottoms would be productive of great confusion in titles, loss of money and troublesome litigation among the people—a result to be avoided if possible. I trust your Board will proceed at the earliest practicable moment to have the natural oyster beds not already located surveyed so that the other lands which are subject to entry may be thrown open for entry and improvement as contemplated by our statute.

Yours very truly,
Thos. M. Holt,
Governor.

To the Public.

I have leased the old reliable and popular Reams warehouse, Durham, N. C. for a term of years. I have had many years experience in the warehouse business and understand thoroughly how to guard the Farmer's interest and get the highest market prices for tobacco. I have an elegant warehouse well equipped. The best light in the world, and a well trained warehouse force. I will have my opening sale October 1st, and you will do well to have a shipment there in time. Give me a trial and I will look carefully to your interest. Ship to Reams warehouse, Durham, N. C., and write to

Yours very truly,
