TWO SINGERS.

Who Distinguished Themselves at the Raleigh Festival.

Prof W. H Neave, a musician of much more than State reputation, writes the Charlotte Chronicle referring to the Musical Festival recently held at Raleigh in which a fitting tribute is paid New Berne's sweet singer, Miss Marian Radeliff:

"Your Raleigh correspondent in your issue of the 4th., says: "The vocal honors of the entire festival were borne off by Miss Nellie Waddell, of Smithfield, whose voice is of surprising clearness, delicacy and scope," etc. By a single pen wave he thus essays to "sweep out" all the male, as wall as female soloists, and part singers, as well as the chorus. Uncorrected this bold, but thoughtless assertion besides being inappreolatively ungenerous, is fraught with danger to the future of festivals purely North Cerolinian.

I am therefore impelled to call thoughful people's attention to the fact that musical renditions may be compared with dining table viands, in each case all may be defectably good but in no degree comparable; the soups can-not be compared to the fish, the fish to the meats, the vegetables to the pastries, etc., and yet each be superlative deli-sious in itself.

But I must bridle my garrulity and briefly say that,—with two or three exceptions—all the soloists and part engers did so well as to merit individual eulogy, but I will briefly present the folly and danger of comparisons—for the most sublimated of human beings cannot afford to have their finer feelings wantonly wounded. Miss Woddell possesses very superior capabilities, both vocal and histricnic. She is a light dramatic singer overflowing with charming vivacity, and this appears to be natural as her colorature is delivered in exquisite purity and evenness and without the elightest effort. Her pearly trills run and in general, are
