Our Bailroad Visitors and the Meeting Last Night.

A committee of business men took the entire party of railroad visitors out driving yesterday to the prominent points of interest in and near the city The gentlemen express themselves as pleased with their visit and favorably impressed with the city, which they say is the prettiest they have seen in North Carolina and they think well of its surroundings, industries, and prospects. Last night they gathered at the city Hall and a good representation of our sitizens met with them.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Manly and a speech of welcome presentation of the importance of the every hand.

Gen. C. A. Battle spoke next in beautiful and appropriate words, and was followed by Hon. A. S. Cadwallader of Yardley, Pa., a wealthy capitalist, and one of the prime movers in the scheme.

Hon. J. S. Long spoke next with appropriate and zealous remarks, at the close of which the meeting adour citizens to the visitors, who have proven themselves to be an extremely olever and genial body of gentlemen since they have been in our midst.

This road is a very important enterprice for this section. Our people generally are awake on the matter and strongly desirous that its main line should come to this city. A branch line well not answer our purpose. We want every passenger that travels over it find out some thing of the city. The still gives trouble.
