'Cotton Movements and Fluctuations." We have received from Messrs. Latham, Alexander & Co., New York bankers and commission merchants, a copy of their valuable work "Cotton Movements and Fluctuations, 1886 to gold and silver front and back stamps. This is the eighteenth edition of this publication and it has grown to be the It gives the total visible supply of the seven years mentioned; the weekly Mr. Walter H. Page, editor of the movement of cotton in United States ports and inland towns, Liverpool and Bombay for each week of the same period, cotton trade of the United States for fifty years, consumption in Northern and Southern States for the past year etc., and besides the usual tables of receipts, stocks, exports and fluctuations there is much original matter that cannot be found elsewhere in so concise a form, rendering it a very desirable book for any one interested in and highly intellectual sons. Quite a section. We append a brief extract from number of the students in expressing it in reference to last season's crop:

"The grand total of the American crop value of experts and other interesting facts we give as follows:

Total crop of United States, bales 8,652,597. Total value of crop $429,792,047.

Total value of American consumption Average price of mid upland in New York 1890-91, 9.03; do, 1889-90, 11.53 The crop of the United States for the season just closed shows an excess over that for 1889-90 of 1,345,316 bales. The phenominal increase over a yield which only a year ago was the heaviest on record is susceptible of but one explanation. The farmer, elated over the gratifying returns for his product in 1889-90, determined to extend his area to its utmost capacity under cotton cultivation. The result has therefore been that is estimated at $8,000 or $9,000. No of the world and the raw material has insurance. They had been carrying sold at a price the lowest within the memory of the most of us."

It seems to us the above figures and deductions contain strong argument for the position the JOURNAL has long maintained and argued. Make cotton. not the first, but the surplus crop. If all the farmers of the South had aimed first of all to produce everything used on their farms that they were capable of raising, not only would they have had the supplies thus raised without any greater outlay of labor or capital than they did expend, but the acreage and yield of cotton would have been so reduced and the price so advanced that every pound sold would have given a handsome profit and the total crop of the reduced acreage have brought more clear profit than was yielded by the immense crop that was marketed. Thus the growers would not only have had the growers would not only have had nent divine we were induced to try the the same money income as they did Electropoise. After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. the necessity of expending the money received for supplies and they could have used it improving their home, their stock and their lands. The figures and argument in the extract warrant these conclusions.

General Fitzhugh Lee, ex-Governor of Virginia is the President of the company with the leading bankers of Roanoke as officers and directors. The company has branches in Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore for the sale of its paid up stock and has placed five million of its stock with the leading bankers and business men of the country. New Berne should have a branch of this company in this city, for such an or-ganization will be a developing factor and at the same time afford the means for the most profitable investment. Mr. Mallory will be pleased to give informa-tion concerning the plans and workings of the company. Company earned twenty per cent dividens for the stockolders on last years busines

ATLANTIC ELECTROPOISE — Gentlemen:—
FOI the a-st five years my wife has been a sufferor from dispensia. So completely did the disease make a wrock of her former soif that life was almost despaired of. Her nervous system was almost entirely destroyed and the slightest noise would throw her into a nervous spasm, which would last for hours. Medical skill failed to hring any relief, Through the recommendation of an eminent divine we were induced to try the Electropoise. After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. Her nervous system has been restored to its almost normal condition; her digestion is wonderfully improved; she is rapidly gaining in feet; and, upon the whole, is making a rapid recovery, which speaks volumes for the wonderfuld curative powers of the E-ectropoise, as her case was considered hopsiess. If any are skeptical on the subject, let them try the Electropoise, and its wonderful powers whil quickly dispai all doubt. W. M. PROPST.
