The city gave him an ovation on his arrival, and has been crowding honors upon him ever since.

The speeches at the Exposition on Wednesday were made by Mr. Harris of Alabama, and Dr. Gat. ling. "At the close of Mr. Harris" address Judge Fuller arose and said he wished to present a North Carolinian whose name was coextensive with civilization. His name was better known than that of any King or any Prince or any potentate upon the habitable globe. Judge Fuller said that strange as it migh sound the invention of Dr. Gatling instead of being an engine of destruction was the greatest peace maker in the world and Dr. Gatling had performed a humani-

THE UNFORTUNATE.

We answer, yes. Every man is more or less responsible for his fellow. It is so arranged in the divine economy that no man liveth to himself. The strong must pose that the South produces only carry the weak through the turgid cotton. Her productions are varied waters, and the brave throw their and cotton is not even the chief of protecting shield over the defense- them. The Tradesman gives the less.

There is no better test of the agricultural productions: manliness of a man or the woman- Cotton, liness of a woman than the influence Corn, of appeals to the higher sensibilities Lumber, of our nature.

The State of North Carolina has no brighter page than that which records the history of her public benevolent institutions. Her In-Asylum, her sane for the Blind, the Deaf and the Dumb, are imperishable monuments to the humane and christian character of her people.

But, if the better elements of manhood demand the establishment of such institutions how much more do they require fidelity on the part of those having the per sonal care of the unfortunate !

Not long ago the Superintendent of the Insane Asylum at Raleigh was charged with a mostrous wrong to one of its inimates. He appealed to the board of Trustees and they declared him innocent. But the damning suspicion had left a blot that all ocean's waters could not wash out, and all the salves of the apothecary could not
