Having The balance well timbered with PINE recent troublesome experience in mind, Messrs. Alex. Sprunt & Son, commission merchants of Wilmington have issued a circular letter to cotton planters and interior buyers calling the attention, in view of prospective wet and stormy weather to the important months. They say:

"It will be remembered that a large part of last season's holding was rendered unmerchantable and worthless by previous exposure to the weather in open fields or under the eaves of outhnouses, either from indifference or with the unworthy purpose of adding to the weight by moisture and thereby increasing its marketable value. Many exporters of cotton were thus deceived and made such beaver leaves deceived.
