THE silver debate has opened in the Senate.

HEAVY snows in Pennsylvania have blockaded the railroads.

THE Czar denies that there is any wide spread famine in his dominions.

THE vote in the Ohio Republican caucus to nominate a U. S. Senator was, Sherman 53; Foraker 38.

GEN. PORTER wants $1,000,000 in order to make up the census of 1890. He has already had $6,400,000.

THERE has been bloodshed in Brazil. A pitched battle has been fought between the troops and the revolutionists.

SECRETARY BLAINE is again sick. He was prostrated while attending to his diplomatic duties and much apprehension is felt.

THE many friends of the old Confederate veteran, Gen. Kerby Smith regret to learn that he sustained a severe loss by the burning of his residence at Sewanee, Tenn.

THE citizens of Peonabuco reneged a military Governor being sent there and attacked his troops. A pitched battle followed in which thirty citizens were killed and many more wounded.

THE works of the Atlanta Glass Company was burned on the night of Jan'y 6th. The loss is estimated at $50,000. The works gave employment to about one hundred and fifty men and as many boys.

PAPERS have been forwarded to Secretary Blaine for a claim against Chili for $50,000, by Patrick Shields, the fireman of the steamer Kewanawa, who was maltreated while in Valparaiso, by a Chilean mob.

TENNESSEE is in a bad way. It is the same old trouble at the mines. The convicts are being returned, and the miners say they will resist convict labor to the bitter end. A bloody conflict is apprehended.

THE Chattanooga Tradesman is indeed a great publication. It is immense. It is issued twice a month at $2 a year. It is a Southern trade journal of great merit. Its issue of 1st January is of high value, and sets forth a great deal of facts and figures concerning the South.

THE "grip" continues its fatal work. An Easton, Pa., dispatch of Jan. 6th, says: The triplets, sons of Mitchell Brown, proprietor of Lafayette Hotel, this city, born December 6, died at different hours today from grip. John Brown, their grandfather, died also today in the same house from the effects of a recent stroke of paralysis. They will all be buried in the same vault.

It was stated that the profits of the exposition were $17,000. Now from another source comes the news that there was a loss of $4,000, which falls on John T. Patrick, who guaranteed the payment.

This looks like a veritable mud-dle. We hope it will clear up. We have full confidence in the patriotism and integrity of Mr. Patrick, and we trust that we will not lose by his efforts to advance the interest of the State and our people.

REPRESENTATIVE FITCH, of New York, says that the illness of Speaker Crisp, while unfortunate, gave the Democrats of the House an opportunity to heal, to a certain extent, whatever may have been felt among members on account of the Speakership contest.

The fact that the Speaker was personally anxious to have Mr. McMillin chosen as temporary presiding officer was gratifying to all Democrats, and especially those who favored Mr. Mills in the campaign; because the former, when the break came, announced himself in favor of the Texan.

THE Washington Post, Jan'y 7th, says: The Speaker, it is said, passed a restless night Tuesday, due to a severe coughing spell, and consequently was weaker yesterday. This is the first coughing spell he has had for some time. It was hoped that he was entirely over this trouble, as it disturbs his rest and always weakens him. With the exception of weakness, due to the loss of rest, he is reported by his son to be slowly improving. He took nourishment yesterday morning, after which he went to sleep. It is stated by his family and friends that he will soon be up and out again. Judge Crisp has passed through every stage of the grip, and little apprehension is felt that some new form of it will attack him. Notwithstanding this belief it was reported last night that pneumonia was feared.

Weather Signals a Day in Advance. We are in receipt of the gratifying intelligence that an important change has been adopted by the U. S. Weather Bureau so that the weather probabilities for one day will hereafter be indicated by the flags displayed the evening before. Director Battle makes the following statement in reference to the manner of conducting the future operations of the service in relation to notifications and displays:

"In order to extend the usefulness of the Weather Bureau in connection with the preparation and distribution of the official forecasts, on and after January 1st, 1892 the period of time covered by the forecasts prepared upon the 8 a. m. observations, (which have heretofore been for 24 hours) shall be for 36 hours ending on the following day at 8 p. m. At display stations receiving the forecasts by telegraph the flag will be hoisted in the afternoon and will indicate the weather to be expected next day.

A large number of places will now be able to receive the forecasts the day before by mail."

IN MEMORY.

The death of Mrs. Mary Shepard Bryan, the beloved wife of our esteemed fellow citizen, James A. Bryan, Esq., in Brooklyn, New York, on the first day of the New Year, was a shock to this community and a sad surprise to the numerous friends of this attractive Christian lady. Her remains reached here near the hour of midnight, as the last sands of the first Christian Sabbath were running low, and were carried by a long train of mourners from Christ Church, on the next day, to Cedar Grove Cemetery.

One of our best and noblest citizens has thus fallen asleep. She came of a long line of gifted people, who were raised by their talents to conspicuous places in commerce, in government, at the bar and on the bench. The Speights, the Donnels and the Shepards were all men of learning and mental force, who not only illustrated the annals of Craven county, but gave influence and distinction to the State. Even back to Continental and Colonial times her honored line reaches, and in the Battles of Philadelphia even touches the wide circumference of the Nation's history. And yet, as deserving as were her ancestors, we believe that by her true, womanly, Christian character she added dignity to them all.

No unpolished spirit of false pride touched her at any point. With so many brains men back of her she might well have carried herself offensively. But with her "it was only noble to be good." And so struggling with her bodily pains with meek courage, she became a loving daughter of the Church, finding the Cross in her suffering, but following the star of hope at its altars, until she passed beyond the veil.

Her eminent father, Charles B. Shepard, honored by the people of this section with two terms in Congress, and yet carrying his eloquence and his talents down to the grave at the early age of 35, seems to have left to his gentle daughter a life almost as short as his own. Educated at the famous seminary of Bishop Doane in New Jersey, she was from the first a girl of studious habits, free from the vanities of youth, devoted to the mastery of good books, and marked among her companions for the sweetness and steadiness of her character. Married, when the storm of war had drenched the country in blood and tears, she seemed to borrow from its walling story the sad key-note of her future. For though happily wedded, and always surrounded by loving hearts, from her husband to her grandchildren, hers was a heritage of pain until her last hour struck.

And yet she was gentle, good and useful through it all. The little boy who followed so quickly the last glimpse of her passing spirit, was the special object of her tenderness. The poor were her friends. They had her pity, her sympathy and her help. Her bright and active mind, well trained and enriched by beautiful thoughts, was like a lamp shedding its light wherever she went. And yet so kind and modest was this gentle woman, so shrinking from the rude glare of mere social pretension, that many knew not her full value until the shining ones had borne her away.

And what more can we say, except that out of her family and out of her church has passed a noble, redeemed spirit, for whose coming we shall long and long wait in vain! Ours may take her place at the Cross, but few will be like her early at the sepulcher.

Northern Sportsmen and Business Men. Messrs. H. C. Compton and Chauncey Burt, of Plainfield, N. J., who have been spending a couple of weeks visiting Mr. Thos. Leary, of Riverdale, left Friday on the steamer New Berne, of the O. D. line returning home. They went out hunting the day before their departure and carried along with them as trophies of their prowess a splendid buck and a nice supply of quail and woodcock. Mr. Compton informs us that the deer were quite plentiful, and they jumped several—once they jumped two at a time.

Mr. Compton had two fine dogs along with him. One was a pointer, remarkably well trained both in tricks and for field service; the other was a beautiful setter about one year old whose father, Mr. Compton informed us sold for $3,000.

Mr. Leary, whom the gentlemen had been visiting, and his daughter, Miss Lizzie, came up yesterday morning and spent the day in the city and Mr. Leary purchased a supply of furniture for furnishing a dwelling and a club room for Northern sportsmen at Riverdale. Mr. Leary is agent for W. H. Bell, Esq., who recently purchased the factory property at Riverdale, and he tells us that Mr. Bell will shortly be back with the saw mill which he will erect there and after that is established he will again start the factory.

GRIMSLEY, THE HUSBAND SPEAKS.

Misstatements Unjust to Him Have Been Made and he Writes to Correct Them.

The Greenville Reflector publishes the following card and note thereon: I have just been shown a copy of your paper of the issue of December 28d, which does me serious injustice through misstatements of facts which I am sure you have made only on information which you deemed reliable, and from no purpose on your part to injure me or mislead the public mind. I regret the necessity that compels another statement to be given to see public concerning the two attacks which I made on Rev. J. T. Abernethy; but as a matter of simple justice to my character I have respectfully to ask that you will give me the privilege of correcting, through your columns, the erroneous statements alluded to, and also to refute sundry slanderous reports which have been sent out through the press of the country on the subject named. A man who defends the sanctity of his home, and especially the purity and honor of his wife even by use of violent methods (which are often the only effective ones) may as a general rule well content himself with silence amid the exaggerated stories to which such occurrences invariably give rise, in the certain assurance that a just public opinion will sooner or later see he has his due and that truth shall triumph. This is the course I much preferred to pursue in regard to this matter, and only the peculiar nature of some of the charges referred to impels me to break that silence now.

It is charged that I invited Mr. Abernethy to my home, and that I went with me with the view of getting him within my power for the purpose of assaulting him. This is utterly false. The only semblance of truth it contains is that on the Saturday before the Tuesday on which the first shooting occurred he informed me that he would come over to my home on the last named day to go bird hunting with me, to which I assented. It is true I had previously had reason to suspect that he had in his mind the impure design that at last produced the crisis, but my firm conviction of my wife's unswerving virtue (which has never yet for a moment been shaken) and the friendship and esteem I had entertained for him lulled those suspicions to sleep, and I met him kindly when he came, but conduct of his after his arrival gave me fresh cause to believe that I had not erred in my previous misgivings. This alone led me to suspect that he had in mind the impure design that at last produced the crisis, but my firm conviction of my wife's unswerving virtue (which has never yet for a moment been shaken) and the friendship and esteem I had entertained for him lulled those suspicions to sleep, and I met him kindly when he came, but conduct of his after his arrival gave me fresh cause to believe that I had not erred in my previous misgivings.
